When War Ended, German Mind Was in Depths of Despair, But Reiteration of Stories of German Involuntarily Convinces Him Against Himself

GERMAN EDITORS EAGERLY REPRINT TALES FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT

(By Frank L. Mason, I. S. Staff Correspondent at Berlin, Jan. 2.—France's feat is Germany's tonic. Every time France has a new disaster, anxiety over the German military machine, or progress new plans for rebuilding or crippling Germany's reconstruction, the mercury mounts in the thermometer of Germany's morale.

Secretary Houston says road work has been facilitated and much help has been given the road builders. The amendments to the Federal road act, which were adopted during the sixty-fifth congress, which was under Congressional control.

Friends of the defendant cheered so loudly after the prisoners were allowed that Minister Corrigan's deputy rebuked them for attempting to "take the court into a monkey show." Most of the spectators were women.

These "material witnesses" include Gladys Summitt, who is a statement implicated the Vester woman in the murder of Brown.

After the armistice, morale was the lowest thing in Germany. As the German looked around and saw no food, no heat, no work, no money, no hope, he felt that the German mind was in depths of despair.

CONTRATION OF THOUGHT IS USED ON JURY

Claim Verdict of Acquittal in Murder Case Was Won by Thought Transference

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Dec. 31.—(Hunted by skeptics who assail her assertions as impossible, Mrs. A. Ribbes of Los Angeles, yesterday created today that thought transference across sixty miles of space helped to win acquittal for her brother, Elmer B. Brown, accused of having slain Thomas Pugh.)

The amazing statement was added last for friends in Los Angeles concentrated their thoughts on the court and jury, establishing such clear connections with both that they knew at the conclusion of each day's proceedings just what had happened without any receiving the information from any other source.

Having the utmost faith in the power of thought, she said, she sat in the court room throughout most of the trial concentrating her mind on the thought that truth and right must win out in the end.

Friends in Los Angeles who shared her ideas also concentrated their thoughts on the court and judge and jury.

"I don't intend to land importance in any doubt, of the efficacy of thought transference by leading a defense," said Mrs. Ribbes. "It is to be at the trial. I am not a nurse at a student of metaphysics for twenty-five years."

Brown killed Pugh in self-defense. Brown claims to be a descendant of Abraham Lincoln. He says his mother was born on the old Lincoln farm in Illinois.

The costs of getting tea from the tea-garden to your kitchen are about the same for good tea as for common tea—and they are much greater than the original cost of the tea in the Orient. Decision to Submit Case to Grand Jury Will Not Stop Further Investigation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The department of justice official announced today that although the grand jury's decision to submit a case to the federal grand jury for trial and hearing on the investigation, which has been under way for two weeks, is now at an end.

"In the contrary," it is understood, the results thus far have not proved the necessity to press still deeper. While there is apparently sufficient cause for the grand jury to warrant submitting five or six named to the district of Columbia grand jury, similar steps may be taken in regard to all others.

Assistant Attorney General C. H. Alton has led it to be known that "it will not consider the case as a whole and in all its ramifications has been affixed to the jury both before and after the case has been accomplished."

Great Colored Man Promoted to Job if Services Should Be Needed

The race riots in Chicago remind me of the case of a friend of mine who was an African when I was living there as a young man," said George McDaniel of Metro, Cal., who was in Chicago during the riots.

"My brother and I were both members of smooth and virgin societies. We shared the same fire and landed at the same counter. In the midst of wild confusion, one day, a wounded negro rushed into our office and begged for protection. This was freely granted, for we had no sense prejudice, in spite of our Southern upbringing. He also pointed out the negro who had been shot."

"To much been done to help and the grateful negro, turning to me and saying, 'by the way, $1.50.' I remember it as if it were yesterday. Anybody man friend and I'll get the money and have to pay the bill to do it."

MEMORANDUM OF THE HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

Submitted by Mr. C. B. Channell, president of the Highway Commission, to the committee on public utilities of the Farmers' association last August, though quite a number months upon which to form an estimate of what could be accomplished during the intervening time. The committee of the public into the commission, and they accordingly ending any speculation as to how and how many miles of highway have been surveyed, and the surveys have covered the same territory. of such a report, however, and in order to quiet some which seems to be growing in denunciation and proceedings advisable to point out a few things that seem to have been reported by the report of last August. Much of the criticism likely unjust, because it is not founded on anything more than the fact that no highways of hard surface grace the land, and so far as present appearances go highways are to remain an illusive dream.

The committee of farmers which waited upon the president of the highway commission last August declared that "Mr. Channell is a man of experience." Farmers who lack training as engineers their best to qualify as pilots, however, so, though they is not qualified to speak on the relative value of accomplishing engineers and pilots, the pilot at least has the more spectacular when he attempts to use an automobile as a steamboat. So as to the qualifications of engineers and pilots.

The farmers' committee declares: "We believe that Mr. Channell's statement should be accepted as a statement of facts." If it is that, it is valueless as a record of what was accomplished up to August 1, or as to what it seemed to promise for five months later.

Mr. Times believes, over questioned the truth of any statement in the report. The commission doubtless has made mistakes, as the committee of farmers suggests, when it says "Mr. Channell and his associates are not infallible, and it must be expected that in handling a proposition as big as the building of highways some mistakes will be made and some expenses incurred which, were the time wasted to be done again, might be avoided." The mistake stands out most prominently in the activities of the commission, which maintains such strict secrecy of its doings, if it is not, at least, once a month—and told the committee it was doing, there would be no room for adverse criticism, and the commission might be given a little constructive criticism which would help it to attain the desired end—hard surface roadways.

FILMING THE BIBLE STORY.

One of the most ambitious attempts of the film makers to make the motion picture valuable as an educational factor in our every-day life is announced by the Historical Film Corporation of America, which is preparing an elaborate pageant of the Bible at its studios in Burbank, Cal. The Bible is beyond doubt the biggest thing in the world—and if approached with reverence offers material for motion pictures as valuable as it has in past ages to painters and sculptors and musicians. One incident alone will suffice to illustrate the magnitude of scenic possibilities offered by the life of our Savior—the Mount of Olives.

It has been said of Jesus that "the common people heard Him and one may easily see in the Sermon on the Mount an admirable gathering of the common people—the kind of people that are loved and the class from which He sprang.

That which that movie has not been made of this tremendous life through with consequences to the human race, for it was the beginning of the world's history. To introducing the scene of the Mount of Olives.

It is a story that has drawn hundreds of people from Galilee, Samaria, and from Jerusalem, and from Judas, and from the East.

wending their way from all parts of the country to hear the words of truth fall from the lips of the man of Galilee—to most of them a prophet—is some only "the carpenter's son."

The mind sees the various groups coming from far and near, the mountains and desert and across the rugged flood of Jordan—the Pharisees, the publicans, the scribe, the Arab, the Assyrian, the Persian, the Egyptian, Roman idlers from Capernaum and Jericho, Roman soldiers to police the mob, Greeks, Alexandrian Jews, men from the islands of the sea, from the deserts and from the far east.

It is hot and there is much dust and confusion, complaint and calling to each other as the vast multitude struggles for places of vantage. Chillyria are there, and sucking babes, and the very old and many infirm, maimed, halt, blind and impotent. Aching heads, too, are there, and the oppressed and the poor, and those heavy laden with grief, the weak sinner and the hardened criminal, the simple and the possessed of devils, but all of them, whether they come to worship or to mock, see only one thing—the Prophet.

There, slightly above the multitude and surrounded by His disciples, He sits upon a rock, Himself the Rock of Ages, in the midst of a sea of hoping, fearing, afflicted humanity. He raises His hand, like magic the multitude stills and settles. He speaks, and the clear music of His voice soothes them like a mother's lullaby. The leper forgets his pain, the Magdalene her shame, the Pharisee his intelcrance, the Roman his pride, the sinner his sins. The restless child coos and turns to slumber, and the spirit of peace brooding over the holy place for a brief space hides the troubled world under his feathers.

All too soon He ceases and the multitude—not one soul as he was before that wondrous sermon—melts away, each to his own place.

In all history no picture like this, a world benediction, the window of the ages packed into an hour. Such scenes as this, depicted in the artistry of modern film production, approached with true reverence, may perhaps furnish the world with the needed inspiration to return to the meek and lowly Nazarene for guidance amid the distress of the time. Truly the conception is magnificent, and so a man would be fully to attempt the magnificent with inadequate facilities, the pageant of the Bible may promise more for humanity than a more profit-making adventure of an enterprising film impresario.

THE DEATH-DEALING KICK

Beware of the drink with a kick! During the festive season a good many of these were offered, man to man, but the wile was refrained from taking any beverage of whose content and combination he was in ignorance.

It is amazing that continued warnings of this nature should be necessary, but the press' writer continues to report deaths from drink compounded of wood or denatured alcohol, and also from drinks made at home from ingredients innocuous in themselves but poisonous in combination.

Wood alcohol is a deadly poison. In spite of precautions taken to prevent such accidents, men sometimes die from inhaling the fumes in factories where the stuff is manufactured. A small dose may cause blindness. Poisonous substances of various kinds are often used to denature pure grain alcohol, as are disgustingly nauseous drugs. Yet the amateur distiller uses both wood and denatured alcohol to give his home brew the desired kick.

Aside from these deadly ingredients it should be remembered that because poisonous combinations of non-poisonous ingredients are possible, where the laws of chemistry are not understood, there is danger in any preparation of strong or fermented drinks made by inexperienced hands.

The drinker loves the drink with a kick, but the many ways to dig, being kicked to death is among the least pleasant.

"It is strange," comments someone, "that in all these substitutes for the saloon, nobody has suggested the home." Happy thought!
 And the funny thing about it is that the home habit can be acquired just the same as the liquor habit, and there is nothing but the movie habit that can break it up.

There are those who seem inclined to criticize congress for taking a vacation, but to the majority of the people it would seem that congressmen do so little, it makes little difference what they do.

Of course the cost of living isn't any higher here than it is abroad, but here is where most of the food and other necessities are produced, and they ought to be cheaper.

It is said that 95 per cent of the people of Hungary want a king, but the other five per cent are keeping awful still about wanting to be it.

Remember the good old days when the best New Year's resolution was not to touch a drink for a year?

We would feel more sorrow at parting with the old year if he had brought us more newness.

WISE OR OTHERWISE

Our sugar at seventeen to twenty cents is unnecessary and without decease.

Wise or otherwise statements could not see that Hoover know how it wouldn't they did not on the advice, so we we must pay the price.

The senate wrangle never ceased while profane staged their feat.

In the last few months they got a monop on the white of the Cuban crop.

Now the wise or otherwise seem think of 1200 with tears They very well know they are too late after the horse gets out they close the gate.

And think to make it look very nice by leaving a commission, fit the price.

But not for men like me. From the canyon brink, where the wa- ters sink, And churns in the rivers roar, To the mountains high, that pierce the sky— Around which the eagles soar— There's never a man on the rolling plains, On the desert land of the west, But bears the yoke, with its bloody gore, Where his was but a test: Yet the sage-brush frigs and the scrub pine tree, On the desert and the bill, As monument stand, in this rough old land, To mark the time until; The rim-rock fall, from the canyon wall And we seek no more for gold. While the rancher wise forms a circle, His glory yet unfulfilled, Toss the west shall be for poets all As sailor to the sea. From your western home, you will not roam, But what of men like me? Meal—coric Shower. The baby races upon the floor, Kicks up his tiny feet, And pokes his toes into his mother's shoe, It is making both ends meet. The dog, attached to a tin pail, Goes howling down the street, And as he madly bites his tail He maketh both ends meet. The butcher slays the pensive pig Cuts off his ears and feet, And grinds them into a sausage big Thus making both ends meet.	The farmer coops his ducks and hens, Poets them with corn and wheat; The means must justify the end, For thus he makes them neat. —Bill Pickens. She Know Him. As an architect met a lady of his so- cieté that he had just been to see the nave of the new church of which they were both members. "You needn't mention names," said the lady, with an ap- proving glance; "I know the man to whom you refer."—Selected. Daily and Sunday Times, 37 a year.	An Illustration. A fresh young man was pressing a gentleman, who evidently felt bored, to give him an illustration of the transmigration of souls, showing how a person's identity might be trans- muted. At last the old gentleman re- plied: "Supposing you should die, your soul might appear in a canary bird; when the canary bird died it might reappear in a lion or a tiger; and it might reappear in a jackass—and I might stroke its ear and say, 'My dear fellow, you have not changed a bit.'"
