FRIDAY THE 13TH, NOT DAY OF ILL LUCK

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Friday was Friday, the 13th and leap year, at that.

If statistics are reliable, superstitious persons need have no fears that the day will bring disaster. By the law of averages, in fact, the day probably will not bring anything more than the ordinary run of the mill. This Friday, the 13th, of the last ten years, instead of being nothing days of bad luck, have been nothing whatever out of the ordinary.

Last year had only one June 13 for which is recorded nothing more exciting than the resignation of a "Chicago" editor.

In 1918 there were two September 13, a new harvest day, and December 13, on the latter day, General Pershing killed two officials of the East River bank, for whom death he paid the price of millions. In 1919, the Government of Colorado, and President Wilson were not on French soil at that time. In 1917 there were two Fridays the thirteenth and, for all the newspaper editors, they may have been the very dullest days in the year. As for 1915, one day of the double curse, was so far from unwise as to mark the end of a milk strike in New York water made on a Friday. (It) a quart cut in the city's supply since October 3.

August 13, 1915, recalls no outstanding calamity. Friday, July 13, 1913 (triple curse!), was just an example of news, and so were the four preceding years.

On May 13, 1910, the first Friday the thirteenth, in the domain and the only one in that year, one man was killed and three hurt in a twenty-four automobile race at Irkutsk.

We haven't got around to the point of view of the ancient Scandinavians, who called "Friday" the day of the Old Norse, or Freya, the luckiest day of the week; but we are getting more like the Moslems, whose conviction that the day of the week is a pretty average day after all, is expressed in their belief that it was on Friday that Adam was created, entered Paradise, was expelled, repented, and died, and that Friday will come the day of resurrection.

Chairman Most Powerful Man in Soviet Russia

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Bolshevik newspapers declare that the most powerful man in Soviet Russia today is a Chinese or Confucian Buddhist named Tsai Yen, who was formerly a barber assistant in Shanghai. Mr. Yen (Tsai) who was nearly hanged as a spy during the Russo-Japanese War.

For two months past Tsai has been working quarters in the Grand Palace of the Kremlin, and also has a private palace in Moscow, where he keeps up great state, and on Sunday in gilded carriages with his four Christian wives.

The orthodox Communists bitterly criticize Tsai and his ways. The cause him of having accumulated $5,000,000 roubles nominally $1,750,000 in six months. Tsai owes his power, it is stated, to his powerful industrial ways, moderation, cunning, and ability to keep on good terms with different parties. He is on first rate relations with Lenin, who calls him "My Celestial," and who takes no important step without consulting him.

The Communist leader, Jakovlev, lately declared: "We have no Russian, who hypocrisies our new Czar (Lenin)."

Medical Profession Attracts Women In England

LONDON, Feb. 14.—By 1925 it is estimated that there will be a total of 40,000 women doctors practicing in England, for there are nearly 30,000 women students taking up medicine today.

According to an administrator of one of the biggest colleges in London there has never before been such a flood of women doctors practicing in England, and besides at the other institutions showed a similar state of affairs. At the Women's School of Medicine in London, the number of students is said to be 10,000.

"There are many reasons for this," said an official at one institution. "First there was the scarcity of men doctors, which was the case when there was the very large number of additional jobs open, through the progressive public attitude towards women workers and child labor.

"These appointments will increase from year to year, as it is realized, what great factors the clinic and the medical institute are in the educational and industrial world."

"The girls who are in training to become obstetricians, gynecologists, and general practitioners are quite a large number of cases where the girls are the daughters of rich merchants, and have inherited the money and are independent."

They couldn't be built now for twice $71,000

When the talk turns from politics to railroads, and the traveler with the cocksure air breaks in with, "There's an awful lot of 'water' in the railroads," here are some hard-pan facts to give him:

- American railroads have cost $80,900 a mile—roadbed, structures, stations, yards, terminals, freight and passenger trains—everything from the great city terminals to the last spike.
- A good concrete-and-asphalt highway costs $36,000 a mile—just a bare road, not counting the cost of culverts, bridges, etc.
- Our railroads couldn't be duplicated today for $150,000 a mile.
- They are capitalized for only $71,000 a mile—much less than their actual value. Seventy-one thousand dollars today will buy one locomotive.
- English railroads are capitalized at $274,000 a mile; the French at $155,000; German $132,000; even in Canada, still in pioneer development, they are capitalized at $67,000 a mile. The average for all foreign countries is $100,000.
- Low capitalization and high operating efficiency have enabled American railroads to pay the highest wages while charging the lowest rates.

ANOTHER CHILD LABOR BILL

A new child labor bill, drafted by members of the Children's Year Committee of the District of Columbia, the National and District Consumers' League and the United States Children's Bureau, has been introduced in the Senate. This bill, although applicable only in the District of Columbia, will really benefit the whole child labor movement. If it passes the test of constitutionality it will serve as a model for a bill of more general application. Also, if it goes through successfully it will put Congress on record in regard to child labor and set an example to the favorable legislation in behalf of the children of the country.

"This bill will raise the compulsory education age from 15 to 18 years. It puts a premium on education, too, by making it possible for a child over 15 years of age to go to work if he has completed the eighth grade. Of course, the normal child has completed the eighth grade by that age or a year or two younger, but there are no children who drop out of school before they have reached that grade and before they are 15 years old."

Children engaged in industrial pursuits before the age of 16 are usually found to be in blind-alley jobs with no educational value at all. After 16 a boy or girl is more nearly ready mentally for such work, and to advance to better positions.

From every standpoint, both selfish and humanitarian, it has been proved that real progress in community life is blocked by child labor. Literacy, education, mental and physical development as well as a happy childhood for the boys and girls of the land are found to be inextricably bound up with civilization and national prosperity.

CRIPPLING RESERVATIONS

"Send over a shipload of reservations; what do we care?" Thus says the London Observer. Taken in connection with Lord Grey's letter discussing our attitude toward the peace treaty and the League of Nations, this statement may be accepted as indicative of the opinion, even the desire, of many of the thinking statesmen of Europe.

Drastic reservations by America—assuming that we finally do enter the League—will only be so much the better for England. When we participate in the League with reservations, we participate with influence weakened by just the depth and the breadth of the reservations. If they are crippling, there will be no authority in our participation. Europe will always realize that American representatives are acting tentatively, qualifiably. They will remember the history of President Wilson's actions in Paris and the fate of his pledges—lack of certainty, minus authority, hampered by a partially-undefined congress, and representatives can never assume leadership. They must hang back timidly while nations which have assumed full responsibility, and thereby acquired full authority, take precedence and mold the actions of the League.

Always and ever it is those that influence and that leadership most likely to get Lord Grey's answer. The editor of the London Observer knows when, tongue in cheek, he writes:

"Send over a whole shipload of reservations; what do we care?"

THE GIRL WHO LAUGHS

A young woman wrote in the "Heart Interest" column to say that she has a cheerful disposition and smiles at everything. She also says her mother criticizes her, insisting that she lacks depth of feeling or has not a laugh so much. In great distress she inquires: "Isn't it positively true to be cheerful and smiling at all things?"

As the first old gentleman said when he heard of the couple who had lived together for fifty years without a quarrel, "It may be peace-worship, but it must be damned monotonous." Smiles and good cheer have their high places among the excellent attributes, but if there is anything more maddening to the average soul than a perpetually cheerful person, it has yet to be discovered. Probably more couples have been persecuted morally upon those cheerful people who stay first thing in the morning, and laugh when other people fall down, than on all the victims of the earth; and the grinning idiot who stands beside the dead, be they friends or hopes, and chatters that all is for the best, most certainly cumber the ground. Horset rage was given to mankind for a definite person; so was deep discouragement. The highest courage sometimes goes its way with tears pouring down its cheeks.

Youth, however, laughs because it is youth; and that is a stingy spirit which tries to anticipate life and take away youth's cheer. Sobriety generally comes soon enough.

POPULAR ASTRONOMY
No. 4
Where Are the Planets?

Should we go out in some clear, moonless evening at about 9 o'clock P. M., we should see high up in the eastern sky a bright star which is brighter than any other of the night bodies, except that he who runs Venus. This is the planet Jupiter, so named after the Roman god, because of its size. Down some 20 degrees toward the eastern horizon we should see another much dimmer star, the one of the first magnitude. This is the planet, Regulus, in the constellation Leo, or the lion. Following in nearly a straight line about 10 degrees farther toward the horizon, we should see another rather bright star, the not so bright as Jupiter. This is the planet Saturn, the next to the largest in our system.

Both of these planets are now making what is termed their retrograde motions. That is, their direct motions are toward west to east, yet they appear to be moving toward the west. This is on the principle that, if one was riding on a train at ordinary speed and a wagon was moving in the same direction, but at a slower speed, the wagon would appear to him to be slowly going the other way in regard to more distant objects in the distance. Jupiter, passed his opposition on the 3rd of this month, and being on the opposite side of the sun from the earth, he is going much faster, he appears to us to be slowly moving westward. The same is true of Saturn, only, the retrograde motion is not so marked. After a time, we shall have moved into a position where the westward motion of these planets is stationary, and then they will resume their proper direct motion to the east. These motions are steady ones, but observing that Regulus is slowly, night after night, getting farther from Jupiter and nearer to Saturn—about 100 degrees ago, it was nearly between them. As Jupiter moves more than twice as fast in its revolution as Saturn, his high direct and retrograde motions are that much faster. Next year, at this time, Jupiter will be about 30 and Saturn about 12 degrees farther to the east than now. At the time of retrograde motion, a cycle and 3/4 days in a year, it is evident that all the heavenly bodies revolve almost exactly one time around the sun, equal to a minute of time.

As the planets only shine by the reflected light of the sun, it follows that, at opposition, the planets are at their greatest, as they then present to us their full face, like that of the full moon.

Stars near on the 21st of this month are Mars at 23 P. M., and so will soon be in a good position for study in the evening. He makes his opposition on April 21, when he will be at the chief of his distance from the earth. This will be the time when the astronomers on this planet will be trying to find out some puzzling statistics concerning Mars, among them, whether there are any folks there, I believe there are, and, on this subject, I may give my views at a later date.

The two inferior planets, Venus and Mercury, evidently have no oppositions, as they, being on orbits interior to ours, cannot get on the opposite side of the sun from the earth to compensate for this lack, they are long on conjunctions, each having two, one superior and one inferior, when they are between us and the sun.

They are the best seen when at their western or eastern elongations, that is, at their greatest angular distance from the sun. Mercury is so close to the sun that he can only be seen for a few days before and after his elongations. He made his superior conjunction on the 6th, when he was at the greatest distance from us, and in a direct line with the sun and earth, and only a few minutes before he was seen at all. On the third of March, he will be at his greatest eastern elongation, when a person with good eyesight or a telescope can see him after sunset, as a bright little jewel above the western horizon. For a little while, Venus is still making her retrograde motion on the 6th of the month 4:55 A. M. It will be making star until about the third of July, when it will make its superior conjunction, now by the sun and be seen for the first of the year.

Venus is evening star, setting on the 22nd, about 1 1/2 hours before the sun. Venus, as a morning star, sets and a good field-glass might be able to discern his minute disk in the evening. Neptune is evening star, setting on the 3rd of August 11:30, but as he is out of range of anything but large telescopes, we may discuss him with a paraphrase.

Wife Kissed "Fido" Too Often, Hubby Gets Divorce

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 14.—Kissed a dog in the mouth in the presence of a husband, constitutes extreme cruelty in the husband.

This, in effect, is the opinion of Judge Harry A. Mandall, of Circuit Court, in awarding George Hall a divorce.

"My wife had a dog," Hall testified, "and kept it in the room, slept with it and even kissed its right on the mouth too."

"That will be about all about the dog," the Court said. "That is sufficient to constitute extreme cruelty."

COPIER MINEERS RETURNING

Three more were arrested yesterday afternoon, two of which were charged with interfering with miners on their way to work and one with being an active member of the I. W. W. and carrying concealed weapons.

MR. NYGORD OF THE FIRM OF NYGORD & BURTON

EVERY worth while person in Twin Falls reads some newspaper every day.

ABSENCE OF GOOD SOUTHPAW ALARMS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Crack southpaw pitchers are worth their weight in gold to major league clubs these days.

That was when the big league manager could dive into the grab-bag and come up with a fairly good part-sharer almost any day. But that day has passed.

For the last three or four years managers and scouts have been combing the minor leagues and catching semi-pro and collegiate ranks for young southpaws of promise without encouraging results. The race to which such pitchers as Walter Johnson, Hucker and Plank belonged appears to be withering away and the lack of an incoming crop to take the places of these veterans is being keenly felt.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, has tried the way of left-handed pitchers than most big-league managers, but Miller deplores the inability in southpaw pitchers. The Yankees have been unable to find a pitcher, regularly from the port side, and Huggins could be used in an emergency.

"Every major league club needs a brace of first-class southpaws," said Huggins recently, "but getting them is the big question. Practically every club has a few left-handers available for possible pitchers and has been hunting for a long time."

"I can think of no good reason for the scarcity of left-handers in the major leagues. It is a fact that they are scarce. They are simply falling out, that's all. And with so many major league pitchers coming from the left side of the plate these days southpaw pitchers are needed as never before. We are well faced for southpaws, thank goodness. But we have to solve the problem of digging up new ones for future use. I can readily sympathize with the manager who hasn't at least one crack left-hander."

Look over the 1919 major league records and you will find that the left-hand pitchers were run, but needed. Huggins got three, and takes their regular turns in the box or out-numbered four or five to one by the right-handers.

In the National League the Cubs are well fixed with Vaughn and Tyler to get their sharpshooters from the port side. The Reds have a good man in Walter Hoge and a seasoned southpaw in Sallee. Pittsburgh has the best young southpaw in the league in Cooper, and Earl Hamilton of the Pirates also checks with his fork hand. St. Louis has Sherdell and May, but neither is a crack pitcher, though both are developing. Cleveland has the right hand of the club in the National League that would refuse to dig deep for another crack southpaw.

In the American League the Yankees with Morrigan and Thorman are fairly well fixed. The Browns have Wellman and Koob, and Cleveland has Corbin and the crack left-hander, Boston got a good southpaw from Washington in Harry Harper. Chicago has Kerr and Will-Hitsch, Detroit has Mitchell, Louisville has Philadelphia has a lone southpaw of promise in Kinney.

MEXICAN TROOP ABUSERS

BY PASO, Tex., Feb. 14.—The senate sub-committee investigating Mexican conditions insofar as they affect the United States, adjourned its sessions temporarily today to permit Senator Fall, the chairman, to go to Washington to join Senator Frankfurter in giving testimony on the subject.

Another complication with Mexican troops when acting Mexican Consul General Sandovar refused to honor the passport into Mexico of W. E. Simons, of Denver, because the latter testified against Mexican troops during the subcommittee. Sandovar declared his action was based on instructions from the Carranza government.

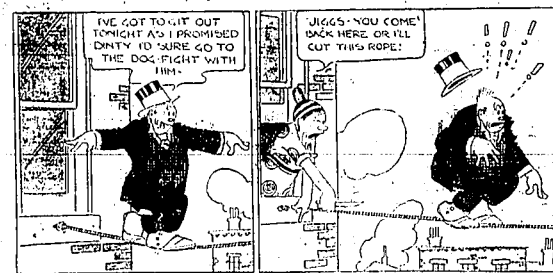

But what is at work in this kind by the Mexican government already has frightened off a number of witnesses whose testimony was wanted by the subcommittee and that he had notified Secretary Lansing of the Simons case.

HENRY ENDICOTT DEAD

DEDDHAM, Mass., Feb. 11.—News today of the death of Henry B. Endicott, 67, head of the largest shoe manufacturing company in the world, executive manager of the Massachusetts committee on public safety during the war, and one of the few of strikers that threatened to paralyze industry and appointee of President Wilson to the Federal Capital and Labor conference, brought expressions of sorrow from men and women in all walks of life. Mr. Endicott passed away at a Brookline hospital last evening. His death was from thrombotic meningitis following an attack of influenza.

Mr. Endicott employed more than 24,000 men in the factories of Deddham, Lonsdale, Endicott and Johnson City, New York, but during his 20 years in business he never had a strike.

TWIN FALLS GIRLS AND BOYS TRIM RUPERT AT BASKETBALL

(Twin Falls won a double knockout.) All of the members of the Twin Falls victory last evening. The boys beat Falls team played well, but Krengle the Rupert guard by the score of 35-21, and Carter were especially noticeable. The Blue and White girls romped at critical stages. Carter, at center, along with the Rupert guards to the early halves secured the jump on time of 2:05. Both courts were in opposition and would tip the ball. The largest crowd of the year thronged to the gymnasium to witness the contest. There was more than the usual amount of fouling done in the first half. The scoring of these was one of the features of the game. The boys' game, but the Twin Falls team continually lathered the forward lay-outs could not bring the basket. It was a valuable assistance when it came to fouling, and of course, did not take advantage of the opportunity. Rupert made a number of points, but seemed to be a little off form in free throws but the members of the visiting team fouled more frequently than the Blue and White.

At the end of the first half the score stood 17-9 in favor of the local team. This margin was not, however, to sell the problem of digging up new ones for future use. I can readily sympathize with the manager who hasn't at least one crack left-hander."

The visitors seemed to have a little better basket eye but Carter and the system made several spectacular shots which brought the crowd to its feet. Last night my views up matters with Rupert. The locals were defeated there a short time ago and went into the battle yesterday with blood on their eyes and came out with the loss of the score.

"Good" Newman, the star forward of the local team, was called to Shoshone recently and was unable to play. This, the Twin Falls high school hurt the boys' chances a great deal, but Jake Yokum played a grand game in his place.

Bill Purzer took Krengle's place in the first half and played well. He has been on the sick list for some time and will be able to play from now on. The team will again be practicing on the basketball court in the gymnasium during the latter part of this month.

Says Nationalization of Women in Russia Fact

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 14.—Colonel James A. Angleton, chief of the American Military Mission in Russia, has returned to his home here with some interesting information on Sovietism and the labor agitation generally that sponsor it.

"I only wish that some of the strike leaders and radical agitators in America could have a taste of their boasted 'free Russia,'" he says. "The Soviets take their strike leaders out and shoot them—that's the way the situation is handled there."

He declares the nationalization of women is an established fact in parts of Russia.

MOVING EAST
 Whole World in Grave Danger
 Through Advancing Tide of Bolshevism.

NOW FLUSHED WITH VICTORY
 Practically All of Asia is Open to the
 "Propaganda" and "Education" of Biological Chapter in World's History.

Washington.—The danger to the world from bolshevism was never greater than at the present moment. The collapse of the Russian national army under General Kolchak in Siberia and the retreat of General Dukhin's army from the Moscow front are regarded in every capital here and in Washington as constituting a threat of a possible invasion of Europe, a certain penetration by the bolsheviks and a menace in the peace of the entire world.

Even Prince Michael Cantacuzino, husband of a granddaughter of President Grant, who was just arrested in the United States, while hopeful that the Russian national forces would save themselves, confessed to a despair which is desperate unless aided and reached them. "They have no shoes, no clothes, very little ammunition and very little food. If they are not helped they are doomed. They are not to be spared the spread of bolshevism throughout the world they must come to the rescue of Kolchak and Dukhin."

It is in the belief of a man who is fresh from Siberia and who is optimistic enough to advance the opinion that if bolshevism can be arrested in Russia it will never lead out by its own excesses.

On the High Tides of Victory.
 The world "is" made of all differences to the world. But the fact is that bolshevism is now riding on the high tide of victory and there does not seem one chance in a million that it will be confined to Russia. Nearly all of Asia is now open to its propaganda—the defeat of the forces of General Dukhin opens the door between Moscow and the Black Sea. The connecting military link between the Russian, Chinese and English lines has now been severed and nothing remains to prevent the agents of the bolsheviks from spreading across America and the Orient, China, India. Agents of the Russian force have already stirred up considerable trouble among the hill tribes in the borderlands of China and British troops are now engaged in suppressing uprisings.

As for Siberia, the red propaganda is moving eastward rapidly. It has become so serious a menace to China and Japan that the government of those countries is taking steps to limit the export of the rails before it reaches the very approach of Manchuria and the borderlands.

During the ignorant masses both of China and India there is great opportunity for the bolshevik to spread their propaganda, and if they succeed in the propaganda, the result will be written in the bloodiest chapters of history.

But it is not against Asia merely that the bolsheviks are plotting. An invasion of Europe is among their plans and the present campaign in the Pacific is but the program of the world's military pressure to bring about a "bolshevik" program. Poland and the Baltic provinces, Finland and the Baltic provinces which the Versailles conference has been unwilling to concede and that the allied nations are fighting will this year be hurried about that front.
