TRADE CONDITIONS WILL CORRECT EXCHANGE RATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Current conditions tend to bring about their own correction in the foreign exchange market, according to Franklin Escher, financial writer and lecturer, and member of the firm of John Mair & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, in a statement to the United Press today.

"Low exchange rates such as we are having here at present, in themselves have the effect of greatly increasing our imports and greatly decreasing our exports," he said. "When an American buyer at an expenditure of $1.00 can purchase in England, for example, what is normally worth $1.48, it stands to reason the amount of the dollar is going to increase."

"On the other hand, when the American seller can only receive $3.00 for each pound sterling of the draft he has to offer where normally he ought to realize $4.00 he is going to hold back before he sells his goods in a foreign market."

Escher answered the three questions appearing in the minutes of those who have watched the gyrations of the exchange rates to the lower levels during the past few weeks:

1. What is foreign exchange?
2. How is it bought and sold?
3. What determines the rate of exchange?

"The average American, even the business man, rarely contemplates domestic banking matters, with the exception of foreign exchange some deep dry matters," Escher declared.

"It is simply one application of the old law of supply and demand—that is to say that more drafts are being offered for sale in the New York market than there is a demand for."

Berger Items

BERGER, Feb. 27.—Mr. Philip Berger, a business trip to Twin Falls Saturday.

Friends and neighbors of John Humphries extend their deepest sympathy in this sad hour. Mrs. Alice Humphries aged 38, passed away at her home in Berkeley Friday after a long illness. She was the wife of W. H. Humphries, a well-known resident of Berkeley, Cal. The body was taken to the W. H. Undertaking home where it was laid out ready for shipment. Mrs. Humphries is survived by her husband and four children, the youngest a mere babe of nine months.

Mrs. Nixley the intermediate instructor started back to Berger this evening to resume her teaching, but chance market than there is a demand for.

"When we sell abroad—goods, securities or anything else—we get our money by drawing a draft on the buyer in Europe in pounds or francs as the case may be and then by selling that draft here in New York for American dollars."

"The importer of goods or receipt into this country on the exchange market in New York and buy drafts drawn in pounds or francs or whatever the currency may be of the country from which the articles are bought here is at a loss in answering the first two questions."

Explaining the cause of the fluctuation in rates of exchange, Escher cited the present demand of rates as an example.

"On account of the fact that our imports are much greater than our exports the volume of drafts drawn in foreign currencies and offered in the New York market is much greater than the demand for such drafts," he stated.

Strength money conditions here have greatly aggravated the situation, he continued. Money is worth so much here and banks are so unwilling to lend that they are buying drafts to sell is compelled to throw them on the market for whatever they will bring.

"The money conditions will do a great deal to alter the situation," Escher added, "but the real corrective measure will only come when the demand for drafts drawn in foreign currencies gets up somewhere near the amount of the supply."

unfortunately injured her ankle again and was compelled to return to her home in Twin Falls.

Surplus Farm Funds

The farmer, like a good business man, must keep his surplus money in such shape that he can use it in his business when funds are required.

Investments outside of your business, even safe ones, are not always easy to turn back into cash. But an Interest Earning Certificate is an investment on which you can collect your money, with interest, on a specified date. If necessary, you can cash it any time without any loss of principal.

It is a good plan for every farmer to keep some funds earning interest, and thus have ready cash for emergency or opportunity.

CLASS POLITICS

The records and hearts of political candidates are to be thoroughly sifted this year. First, organized labor is going to take them in hand, one by one, and by a drastic process of inquiry determine whether they are worthy of its support.

Each of these great groups has announced its intention of supporting or opposing candidates for congress strictly on a basis of their attitude toward its own program. In other words, the trade unionists announce that they will not vote for any candidate who is an enemy to organized labor.

If this intention is adhered to throughout the campaign, it is bound to have a big effect on the personnel of the next congress and on subsequent legislation. Any large group of citizens can accomplish much in American politics, if it is thoroughly organized and has a definite purpose.

After all, such organization of labor and of the farmer does not in reality represent class or group politics, although such action would be justified in self-defense. The fact that they will in all likelihood join in the campaign, eliminates the class aspect.

A GUIDE TO LOVE-MAKING

A Chicago pastor, Rev. Dr. Thompson, a Methodist, speaking in Pittsburgh, urges church protection for spotters. He would use the churches for trying places. He wants cozy corners where the young women and young men may spoon, may do their "love making under favorable circumstances," he says.

Now, every city pastor will agree with Dr. Thompson that city girls have some difficulty in finding proper places to meet their young men friends, and every citizen will agree that it is too bad. But probably that is as far as they will be willing to go with Dr. Thompson.

Who would do not pretend, either, to be an authority on the subject "Love-Making Under Favorable Circumstances," as the good doctor expresses it, cannot be believed by regularly organized or freely offered spooning-rooms or cozy corners. "As a matter of fact," no church, no sect, no city, no government, can create "favorable circumstances." Young men do not deliberately make love in pre-arranged and properly organized cozy corners, and young women cannot play their divine part under carefully organized and strictly supervised church chaplainage.

The Nebular Hypothesis
An hypothesis in the simplest expression, is just a great big idea. It is a theory worked out for the purpose of attempting a solution of some unknown phenomenon, or rather, one that we are not sure of. We should say, concerning whether or not the formation of the little is known. In solving nature's Solar System, and she answers with the phenomena, we proceed along two different lines of reasoning; generally, and we proceed by means of what are accepted natural laws and analogies. We see a wild grass and we watch its development thro' the formation of. There has been two hypotheses ad-

...a solution of the problem...
...the sun by a series of gigantic explosions...
...the Nebular Hypothesis...
...the sun by a series of gigantic explosions...
...the Nebular Hypothesis...
...the sun by a series of gigantic explosions...

According to this solution of the matter, not being able to grasp with our finite perception the great areas of cosmic matter, we must have recourse to a familiar phenomenon. If, in a circular tank of water, an opening be made, a rush toward the center of the tank toward the center in an effort to escape by the law of gravitation. In this effort, the water will pass by the center and back out at the top, creating a whirlpool or what we call a vortex. If the supply of water in kept up, this spiral motion will continue until all the water in the tank has been in circulation around this vortex. Now, if we substitute for the water in the tank, this mass of cosmic matter, giving it a great dash over this immense area we shall see that it, actuated by this same physical law, will eventually be brought into circular motion in space. As this tendency of the disk to rush toward the vortex becomes stronger the center of the mass becomes more and more solidified and the outer edge more and more attenuated, until, as the rotation increases, a ring many millions of miles in width is torn off the outer edge and the separate atoms continue in independent rotation about the central vortex. Then, in obedience to the law of cohesion, this ring is concentrated into a sphere, and continues to rotate about the center at the same rate of speed (but was communicated to its individual atoms. Thus, according to our hypothesis, the planet Neptune formed.

Then the central mass continued in revolution at an increased speed, as the matter became more solidified, and the outer edge more and more attenuated, until, as the rotation increases, a ring many millions of miles in width is torn off the outer edge and the separate atoms continue in independent rotation about the central vortex. Then, in obedience to the law of cohesion, this ring is concentrated into a sphere, and continues to rotate about the center at the same rate of speed (but was communicated to its individual atoms. Thus, according to our hypothesis, the planet Neptune formed.

As an attraction produces heat, it follows that matter which was attended with heat unknown to us, and these planets became thus heated to greater than white heat and, for a time, radiated as much as a miniature sun. At this point we may leave them, closing this chapter of nature's book on astronomy and opening her work on geology. It is, however, pertinent to consider the conditions in which the several planets were left by the cooling process. The major planets, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter, were far from the sun, and on account of their great size, must have cooled much slower in cooling, although formed last, by the time they were formed. Some of them may well suppose that some one or more of them may be in about the same physical condition as some of the minor planets, like Mars or Venus. Indeed, it is likely that the cloudy appearance of Jupiter and Saturn may be caused by the fact that they are so hot that water cannot settle on their surfaces, but is suspended in their atmosphere in immense envelopes of cloud impeding the light of the sun, as the earth was at one time, and as Venus probably is at the present time, which may account for the fact that Saturn is so bright than water. Taking this view of the subject, we may suppose that Mars and either Uranus or Neptune would be the planets that would be the ones that would be in condition to support animal or vegetable life something like what we have on the earth or such as we know, by the record of the rocks, once cooled here.

The general consensus of opinion among astronomers is that admitting the hypothesis of the habitability of any of the planets to be inhabitable ground, the probability of Mars being in that condition is stronger than in the case of any of the others. In fact, they tell us that the sun would appear to Neptune about the size of a lady's finger ring, that planet would show a feature that is so far fetched, believing that, aside from the fact that almost nothing of this condition of internal heat, there is a possibility of almost conditions there, they develop from sources of which we are wholly ignorant.

Just received by express the new Columbia Record supply. Hear it played at the Columbia Store at 251 Main Ave. East.

Between now and June 2 Twin Falls will have an opportunity to hear some of the world's greatest men as regular numbers of the Ellison-White Lyceum courses.

On June 2, Arthur Walsyn Evans, nephew of Premier Lloyd George of England, will speak on the subject of the great men of the world. "What America Means to Me," Mr. Evans is said to be one of the most brilliant speakers on the lyceum platform today and for several years he traveled with the Ellison-White Chautauque, delighting his hearers throughout the country with his forceful message. Those who wish hearing this great man, who took upon America as his country through an "Establishment" by birth, will miss one of the most interesting numbers of the Ellison-White course.

On March 23 Dr. Frank Holt, professor of history in Columbia University and during the war European correspondent of a big New York paper, will speak with all of his usual fire and enthusiasm on a well-selected topic. Dr. Holt, like Mr. Evans, spoke here several years ago and so delighted his audience that a return engagement was requested. Dr. Holt has met and interviewed many of the great men of the world in the course of his newspaper work, and speaks with authority. His views and opinions on world politics are most interesting and he has a wide knowledge of politics and has that rare gift of imparting to his audiences the things he has seen and learned while engaged in his various lines of work.

Mark Sullivan, editor of the "Congress Magazine," and one of the foremost writers in America will follow Dr. Holt. The course done for Mr. Sullivan has not yet been set but it will be between March and June. Mr. Sullivan is one of the best known men in America and has written magazine articles on many vital subjects of the day.

His talk will bring to the people of Twin Falls the problems of the after war period and he will discuss many of the issues of world wide importance.

Mr. Holt's talk will be in the evening at 8 o'clock. The subject has not been announced but it is understood that he has chosen a topic in which all are interested.

TAFT IS COMING TO TWIN FALLS

Will Lecture Here June 2 Under auspices Lyceum Committee Says Announcement.

William Howard Taft, ex-president of the United States, will appear in Twin Falls June 2. This is the first time that a man who has been president ever visited Twin Falls. Mr. Taft is an eloquent and forceful talker and the next approach of the political conservatism with which he speaks, unusually interesting. Unfortunately only a small percentage of the people will be able to hear him as less than a thousand can be accommodated in the Lyceum theater.

Mr. Taft, proprietor of the "Corcoran" Rooms on Shoshone street, has sought an injunction in the district court restraining Kate Weston, former manager of the Lyceum, from interfering with the operation of the rooms. In the complaint, Atkin alleges that because of a fall some time ago he was forced to place the management of the rooms in the hands of another but the defendant refused to give up the keys to the place, he alleges.

Attorney Wolfe and Martin are representing the plaintiff in the case. Frank Bowser was the man to whom Atkin had entrusted the management. He will appear as a witness in the case, which will probably come up for trial at the next term of court.

The Pythian Sisters and the Knights of Pythias will give an entertainment on next Friday night, Feb. 27, at the Lyceum temple, consisting of music, dancing, speeches and a lot of good things for the "Inner Man." All members of both orders, all applicants for initiation, those who have taken part of the work and all visitors are cordially invited to be present.

By Order of Committee.

MAYER AVERS HE KILLED WIFE IN SLEEP

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 27.—"My wife killed me and went to sleep on my arm. The next thing I remember I was walking on the railroad tracks and knew that I had killed her."

This is the amazing statement made to the police by L. Garmon, 36 years old, who in jail here, charged with the murder of his wife who was found slain in bed in her home in Pontiac. The circumstances surrounding the crime are the most curious that have confronted the authorities here in years.

Garmon, who told the officers that he worshipped his wife, asserted that he suffered a loss of memory, during which he could remember nothing that took place.

He regained his memory, he said, and found himself fully dressed walking from one of the railroad tracks toward the city. He gave himself up to the first policeman he met and at his request both returned to the home, where they found the body of the murdered woman, her head crumpled and a blood-stained axe standing beside her. A fatal stab wound was that the woman had given to herself.

"I loved my wife," Garmon told the officers. "She was a good woman, very considerate and dutiful. I had no trouble. She was previously married and had a hard time and I tried to help her, but she was unappreciative. We did not quarrel."

Great beads of perspiration poured down Garmon's face as he told his story. It was apparent he was under great strain. As a result of a train wreck two years ago one arm, part of a foot and hand and he has since been forced to wear a brace. He has his skill to cover a fracture. He told the officers that of late his hand bothered him a great deal and he did not sleep at all at night.

The couple spent the afternoon before the murder shopping and in the evening attending a dance.

"After we returned home we spent some time making plans for the summer. My wife killed me and went to sleep on my arm. I remember I was walking on the railroad tracks and knew that I had killed her."

Coroner Parker took charge of the body and decided to hold an inquest. C. H. Wooten, an agent of Mrs. Garmon's insurance company, was present. She had no parents, but a son by her former marriage survives.

According to Garmon the couple were married in 1912. He came here to work for the Dupont Engineering company. He is being held pending a decision as to whether to call a sanity commission.

Wrestles for Title.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Stanislav Zyzsko, 31, a slender, athletic-looking brother, who recently arrived in America to break into the wrestling game again, says he had to wrestle for his life in Russia during the war.

During the Kerensky regime in Russia, Zyzsko was scheduled to appear in Yaroslavl. Alex Aberg, his bitter rival, learned of this and made a report that Zyzsko was an Austrian spy. On entering the auditorium where he was to wrestle, Zyzsko was arrested by Russian soldiers and told that he was to be executed. He begged to be permitted to wrestle Aberg, who, the soldier said, was his accuser. Finally the soldiers consented. Zyzsko was told he would win the match if he lost the first fall.

After two hours and forty minutes Zyzsko threw Aberg. He was pushed to the corner of the ring and during the 1000 minutes of the match, after which he scrambled for the money he made his escape and returned to Poland.

POLISH RELIEF SHIP AT DANZIG

DANZIG, Feb. 27.—The S. S. Kosciuszko, the first ship flying the Polish and American flags to make the direct trip from New York to the port of Poland, has arrived here with a cargo of Red Cross relief supplies. Great enthusiasm has been aroused by the arrival, the newspaper printing large headlines saying this is new evidence of American friendship for Poland.

The arrival of the Kosciuszko has a double significance, for it is not only the first ship to operate under the Polish flag in the name of a Polish company, but it is also the first year that America would stand by the young republic in its hour of need.

The development at the port of Danzig has been extensively used for American relief supplies for Poland. Over 50,000 tons of food stuffs, clothing and medical supplies have already arrived. The Kosciuszko, which is the eighth vessel carrying Red Cross goods to the port, is the largest of the fleet. It carries 10,000 tons of grain, which will be made into wearing apparel, thus saving space to transport unemployed.

Spanish 'Flu' Is Now Raging in Poland

WARSAW, Feb. 27.—Spanish influenza is a form so virulent that it is baffling medical authorities by the suddenness of its attack and its almost certain fatality. It is sweeping through Poland, according to reports reaching Paris.

Hundreds of people are dying daily in Warsaw, according to the reports, and more than 25 per cent. of the city's hospital attendants have contracted the disease. Not Cross's explorers and nurses who have visited the city and France last winter declare that they are astounded by the almost instant contagion and the quick development that is characteristic of the present epidemic.

This is the third influenza epidemic that has swept over Poland in the past year and, from all accounts, the most severe one. Patients seldom live more than twenty-four hours after they are stricken, and the disease, with all the complications that bring on hemorrhage of the lungs frequently develop much sooner. As has been the case in previous epidemics, more young than men succumb, and more young than old.

Warshaw is given over to a continuous procession of funerals, with the mourners following the hearse on foot as is the custom of the country. Hospitals take place at night, the pall bearers carrying the dead. The Red Cross is helping to fight the spread of the disease with medicines, physicians and nurses and Red Cross trucks drivers have volunteered their services as ambulance drivers.

Lack of proper conveyances, masks are seen borne on the mourning families. In Poland where disease and death have for so long ravaged the population, there are often fewer people left to mourn. One funeral cortege consisted of only a bearded white-haired old woman and a child.

Let's Get Together, Men, and Work, Work, Work

What a glorious opportunity rests in the palm of patriotic American men today. Let us one and all strive for commercial supremacy--strain every effort to broaden the scope of our industrial prestige--let us do this by work--indefatigable work--for the common good of all Americans.

Are we working with the same vim, vigor and valiant effort as we fought? Are we holding the prestige in the eyes of the world that we won by our valorous and efficient performances during the war? Are we doing today for America what we did for the world?

We know how to fight—and we fought well—but are we working well—with 100 per cent efficiency and perseverance?

Let's work for American leadership—let's make America the ideal country in which to live.

Fight under-production so that Americans may invade the markets of Europe rather than have our markets flooded with European goods. Let's go beyond home consumption. Let us not let Bolshevism, Communism, Socialism or any other "isms" spread their dogmas of easy living and short hours.

When we fought, we did not fight by the hour—we fought until our task was done. The workmen today of Japan and the European nations are working, not by the hour, but by the task and toward the attainment of a grand purpose—a fight for industrial and commercial supremacy.

Let's not let other nations overtake us in industrial progress. Let's work because of our superior opportunities, resources and advantages.

OPPORTUNITY

but for our country. Let's work, not for today, but for posterity*
