COLLAPSE OF VON KAPP GIVES HEADWAY TO THE SPARTACISTS

EBERT HASTENS TO LAUNCH MILITARY OPERATIONS FOR SUPPRESSION OF MOVEMENT

Von Kapp Various Reported as Suicide and as Captured by Spartacists—Soviets Are Being Rapidly Established

The real situation in Berlin today was unknown, as no messages had been received direct from that city from midnight until this afternoon. Numerous reports from Copenhagen, The Hague, London, Paris and elsewhere indicated the Spartacists' movement was still making headway and that it had gained impetus from the collapse of the revolutionary regime of von Kapp and von Luettwitz.

There were conflicting rumors as to the fate of von Kapp. One unconfirmed report from Berlin stated he had committed suicide after fleeing from that city. A later report had him arrested by Spartacists.

It was unofficially reported that President Ebert and Minister of Defense Noske of the Ebert government, had arrived in Berlin but this was doubted by the German charge d'affaires in Paris. The Hingue received a report that von Luettwitz, who fled from Berlin following the collapse of the 'Upstart' government, had begun negotiations with the Spartacists for the establishment of a Social Republic under military occupation.

No further reports of fighting in Berlin had been received but the Spartacists were said to have erected barricades throughout many suburbs and were strongly armed. There was a violent battle at Leipzig, where twenty more persons have been said to have been killed. A Soviet has been proclaimed at Purb, one of the biggest industrial cities in south Germany.

LONDON, March 18.—The Central News agency circulated a report yesterday that von Kapp, the originator of the late yesterday as revolutionary chancellor at Berlin, has been arrested by the Spartacists. The agency advised to this agency, communists in Westphalia were attacking both von Kapp and Noske troops.

The End of a Perfect Day

TIME TO DROP IT

Citizens of Twin Falls, disinterested in either faction and wholly neutral in the needless clash of employer and labor have watched with growing disapproval and uneasiness the activities and methods of the Twin Falls Employers' association tending toward business and industrial disruption. With the progress and growth of the city at stake, the general public is little inclined to tolerate obstructive elements in the community.

The year 1920 is a preface to the greatest period of construction in the nation's history. Standing at the threshold of so prosperous an era, Twin Falls faces robbery of its opportunities through misdirected energies of the very forces that should have community advancement most at heart.

Launched with an ill starred effort to make the American flag into a trademark, The Employers' association conducted a line of indefensible conduct that has led to a point where some plain talk is not only deserved but is imperative for public welfare.

As the situation now stands, the merchants, many of whom were unwillingly forced into the unsavory movement through credit pressure, are suffering a sharp loss of trade from the defensive retaliation of the labor group and its farmer sympathizers. This means injury to the city.

Union labor is suffering not at all in a financial way, as there is plenty of work elsewhere for all the labor that can be mobilized. But the situation had produced some emigration of steady, industrious workmen and their families, which make up what The Times considers the very best type of citizenship. Stagnation of industry has developed and is steadily increasing as a result. What slight relief has been obtained has been in the nature of a floating class, always found in the wake of labor troubles, that certainly cannot better either the type of citizenship or the standards of workmanship. This has already been demonstrated as an injury to the city.

No one will dispute the right of the employers to organize. No one should dispute the right of labor to organize. The general public, disinterested in either group, can see wrongs in both. Labor is in some cases inconsistent with its principles and has made mistakes. But labor has a right to organize and since the closed shop is the foundation of its organization, labor cannot be blamed for demanding the closed-shop providing it is willing to play fair and give value received. Organized labor today is the bulwark of the working class and as such must be regarded as a bulwark of the very nation since it has raised standards of citizenship from the old down-trodden wage slave class that preceded the unions.

What we are most concerned with just now, however, is the fact that two groups of citizens are warring while the public, as usual, suffers and the general welfare of the city is endangered. Since the Employers' association seems to be the aggressor in the controversy, it seems proper to devote public attention to that group.

It is time that whatever financial, political or business interests are behind the Employers' association and its effort to break organized labor realize that everything comes up out of the soil—that instead of the public being supported by them, they are being supported by the public no matter how powerful they may be or how far they may think themselves beyond the reach of public sentiment.

It is time that the merchant, caught between the mill stones, be given relief from the pressure exerted on him from both sides.

It is time that the financial uneasiness resulting from the situation is halted in its spread through the community.

It is time that the building situation be cleared. It is time, in fact, that the neutral public take a hand in the affair and assert the right of public welfare above private interests.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS ACCEPT CONTRACT WHICH PROTECTS BONUS FOR LINE TO WELLS

Meeting at Chamber of Commerce Yesterday Reaches Agreement on Conditions Governing Half Million Dollar Offer

Acceptance by railway officials of the bonus proposal offered by a committee representing the Twin Falls tract at a meeting yesterday afternoon paved the way for active operations on the Boggs-Swells line of the Idaho, Nevada and California Railroad company. It remains for the railroad company to meet the terms of contract, with a surety bond for $25,000 to cover that sum. The bonus, it is further guaranteed immediately for promotion work on the remaining $175,000 of the bonus until completion of the road. Construction must commence within 30 days of transfer of the $25,000, under terms of the contract. Surveys will be started by May 1, the officials announced some time ago, so it is expected that no delay will be encountered.

Final Action on Peace Treaty Comes Tomorrow

Defeat Is Expected by Both Sides After Four Weary Months of Wrangling Since First Defeat

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Final action on the peace treaty by the senate is scheduled for tomorrow—four months after its first defeat on November 19, Senator Lodge, the republican leader, asserted today he will hold the senate in session tonight if necessary, that the resolution of ratification may be slipped into today's session.

Under the rules of the senate, the resolution would be over a day, or until tomorrow. A suspension of the rules would however permit a final vote on it by tonight.

Senator Lodge plans to get rid of all pending resolutions and amendments and of other loose ends of the treaty situation at today's session so that a final vote will come not later than tomorrow.

In defeat of the treaty for a second time, despite last hour efforts to force ratification, is generally anticipated on all sides.

By a vote of 27 to 43 the senate rejected the treaty yesterday's rejection by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, that the United States reserve 'exclusively the right to decide what questions affect its national honor or vital interests.'

The senate took up another resolution offered by Senator Reed, republican of Missouri, that the United States assume no obligation to employ its military or naval forces, or resources under any circumstances under any article of the treaty.

It was defeated by a vote of 17 to 35. Senator Reed offered a third reservation that the United States assume no obligation to employ its military or naval forces, or resources under any circumstances under any article of the treaty. It was defeated 16 to 37.

EVERY ONE WANTS MONEY'S WORTH

Natural Desire is Not to Get the Worth of Any Business Transaction.

CHEAPEST NOT ALWAYS BEST

Person Who Buys From Catalogue House Sees Only the Price and Forgets That Value is Thing That Counts.

When you spend your money you naturally want to get all you can for it. No one can criticize you for having that desire.

That is the defense of the man who buys from the mail order house instead of patronizing the merchants in his own town.

In most cases the man who buys goods from a mail-order house does so because he thinks he is getting the goods for less money than he would have to pay for them at the store in his own town.

Price Not Only Consideration. If buying an article of any kind, whether it be a house and lot or a pair of shoes, the price is not the only thing to be considered by any sensible person.

Can Under Sell Mail Order House. The home merchant can sell cheaply as the mail order man if he sells as cheap goods as the mail order man sells.

Ready to Compare Prices. Your home merchant is a business man. He gets the best values he can for his money when he buys goods, and he does not expect his customer to do anything else.

NAVY CHIEFS WERE LAZY, IS SIMS OPINION

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The navy department delayed action for months on important recommendations for improvements in the navy, says the war news editor, who charged today before a senate committee "indefatigable" the navy's conduct of the war. He charged that his request for a planning section of his staff was not executed until nine months after he had forwarded the suggestion to the authorities in Washington.

"The efficiency of our co-operation with the allies was seriously impaired during the critical first months of the war," by this inactivity failure by the department to act on the information and "typical" of our failure to act.

"Throughout the first months of the war," Sims said, "the department showed a tendency to demand, the fullest and most complete explanations of every thing made by them and of every detail of the operations of the forces before they would approve such requests or sanction such operations."

It was easier, Sims said, "to cooperate with the allies than it was to act upon our own department."

TIERSMAN VISIT TWIN MISTER

SHOWHERGAN, Mo., Mar. 18.—"Did Bartley" guest visit his twin sister. The visit was made at all points to trying to solve.

Nelson Bartley, picturesque frontiersman and hunter, was murdered on the road to Canada on the night of October 15. John A. Burke, former sheriff of Jackson, Mo., was charged in the trial.

The hotel man's twin sister, Mrs. William Elliott, a witness at the trial, is a strange story.

Mrs. Elliott and Bartley were devoted to each other to an extent unusual between brother and sister.

On the night of October 15, according to Mrs. Elliott, she and her husband were in one of their camps on the west bank of the Neustadt river. Their room was off the camp office. The door was closed. Just as the lights were extinguished Mrs. Elliott detected a shadowy figure. She called Mr. Elliott got up and closed it. A short time later the door again opened, and Mrs. Elliott became alarmed, as she felt a hand placed on her shoulder on the door. After being restrained the door swung open for a third time.

A few days later, Mrs. Elliott said she leaped that at the very time the door was swinging open her twin brother was being murdered in the lonely stretch of woods on the Canadian border.

Mrs. Elliott said she could not help thinking that there was some psychic connection between the opening of the door and the death of her brother, and that perhaps his spirit was trying to communicate with her before it left the earth.

The authorities attribute the death of Bartley, a wealthy citizen of Jackson, to a feud between international whiskey runners.

A SILLY QUARREL

Peace hath its conflicts in certain Massachusetts cities where they happen to be some leftover war chest funds. The Red Cross organizations in those communities claim the funds on the ground that they were originally raised for relief purposes...

The squabble is both pitiable and amusing to other communities not troubled with that particular problem. It would seem that the people who contributed the money and who probably include most of the citizens of any given community, might justly be called upon to settle the dispute.

However the money is finally disposed of, it all becomes either the Red Cross or the American League to assist selfish schemes for it. Each organization represents men and women who worked manfully, efficiently and loyally in a great cause.

MILK BOTTLES AS GERM CARRIERS

During a recent scarlet fever epidemic the health officer in one of the big cities decreed that no milk bottles should be collected from homes bearing the quarantine card. He declared that germs of disease are sometimes carried in the milk bottles, and thus epidemics are spread.

This, if true, is an indictment of two agencies, the home and the dairy company. Both should be held responsible. Both need education and observation.

Washing dishes where there is any contagious disease is a simple matter. All dishes coming from the sick room may be placed first in an antiseptic solution, and then thoroughly washed with hot suds mixed with boiling water, or they may be put on the stove in cold water and brought gradually to the boiling point, and boiled for a few minutes.

So much for the home. The next agency, the dairy, should be compelled to sterilize all bottles thoroughly before using, no matter if seemingly clean when collected, and one of the chief duties of the health department should be to see that this is faithfully done.

POPULAR ASTRONOMY

The Fixed Stars and Revolution of the Heavens. If we go out any of those clear moonless nights and look high up in the southwest sky, we shall see three most brilliant stars, not far apart in line and at about equal distances apart. These form the belt of Orion.

They are, of course, the three stars of the belt of Orion, the belt of the hunter, and the three stars of the first magnitude, an honor conferred on no other constellation by the northern heavens. We say "northern" because we belong so far north of the equator, only one month of the year we see these stars in the belt are called the yardstick and make a convenient yardstick for angular distance in the sky.

As the stars in the belt are almost exactly three degrees apart. The three brightest stars standing in the belt of Orion are arranged in a line and are called the three stars of the belt, or the belt of Orion. The bright star above the belt is Betelgeuse and in the giant's right hand is the one below it. This is the left foot.

Passing to the east about two hours of time we see the great bright star Sirius in Canis Major, or the greater dog; this is the star by which we know the time daily. It is also known as Dog-day, that season being when he is rising and setting so nearly with the sun that he cannot be seen either in the evening or in the morning. He is the brightest of the stars in the northern heavens, being about 10 times as bright as the other stars in our sky.

In speaking of hours in the measurement of the distance between stars we frequently use, as a unit of measurement, the arc of a great circle which tells us that 15 degrees of longitude equals one hour of time. This is called the arc of time and is an hour high in the morning, and that is an hour in celestial longitude.

Passing to the northeast of Sirius about two hours, we see the first magnitude star, Procyon in the constellation Canis Minor, or the lesser dog. This is some times called the "fore-dog" as he is being on much further from the sun than Sirius, and he rises earlier. About as far west farther in the northeast, we find Juppiter, in the constellation Leo, or the lion. This is the star referred to in our paper as being in a nearly straight line between Juppiter and Saturn.

Now we return about the same relative position, the star Saturn is still making his retrograde motion. The distance between him and Juppiter is about one hour of time. This is the distance which all the planets and Juppiter.

Off in the northeast, at about this hour, we see the first magnitude star, Arcturus, in Boötes. This is the star that some astronomers claim is the first star after the great constellation of Orion, and which is still in our sky. It is supposed to be among the first stars after Orion, and can always be located at any time of the year, as he is always nearly in the line of the stars of the dipper handle and about 2 1/2 hours distant from them.

Going back to Orion for a starting point again, we shall see something more than an hour to the northwest of the belt the bright star, Aldebaran. This is the star in the constellation Taurus, or the bull, one of the signs of Zodiac. The name is a Coptic word, signifying "the follower" because he always follows about an hour behind the Pleiades or seven stars, which is in the same constellation.

The great star, Capella in Auriga, is so near Circumpolar that he disappears near the northern horizon but is seen in Canada, he would last be circumpolar star or one of the "never sets." The farther north we go, the higher the North star rises above the horizon and the larger the circle of never-setting stars becomes, until when we stand on the north pole, the North star would be in the zenith and all the visible stars would be circumpolar. Then we should see all the stars half way of the heavens.

All the stars from our horizon westward now belong to the winter constellations which are slowly disappearing from the sky and will soon disappear by the revolution of the heavens to be as slowly replaced by the summer constellations rising in the east.

These will consist of Vega in Lyra, or the harp, to be followed later, by Rigel, in the scorpion, and Altair, in the eagle. These constitute the great summer triangle, the last of which Altair (disappeared during last month) is missing it will set tomorrow. A number of stars are now appearing a few useful facts on their terrestrial affairs.

To locate the north star, we take the two outer stars of the dipper bowl of the dipper, as a line drawn thru those and continued about three hours of space will locate Polaris in the north. The first distance is in the constellation "The Major" or the great bear, the handle of the dipper, the tail of the bear, while the north star is in Cassiopeia, or the lesser bear, the north star being in the end of the tail which is now nearly in the line of the handle, however turn the other way, being like a milk dipper.

On the twentieth of this month, occurs the great summer (real) solstice when the day and night will be equal all over the earth. At that time, if we stand to get a due east or west line, he can strike it out toward sunrise or sunset that day. That is the time when the equator of the earth and that of the sun lie in the same plane. The same thing will occur in September at the autumnal equinox. Next day in June we will be in an oblique position amounting to 23 and 1/2 degrees at the solstices in summer or winter.

PLANT OATS Our Advice to Farmers

FARMERS MUST PLANT MORE OATS IF THEY EXPECT to get the benefit of the demand now opening for Rolled Oats in the United States and for Export. To encourage the farmers to do this, we will enter into contracts at a satisfactory price with those who are concerned regarding future values. This offer will hold good for a period of ten days from the date of this issue.

WE NEED THE CO-OPERATION OF THE FARMERS in this locality in producing a quality of Oats that will keep up the Standard of Abers Brands throughout the world. There is no place in the United States more suitable for growing this standard of Oats than right here in Idaho. For that reason we want to encourage, in every way possible, the raising of more Oats in this Community.

UNDOUBTEDLY FARMERS REALIZE THAT the favor in which our products are held makes it necessary to have a tremendous quantity of good Oats to convert into Abers and somewhat limited, owing to the scarcity of Oats in Idaho. This condition has now adjusted itself, and the immediate future will find the volume of business from the Pacific Coast to take advantage of a large export business in Rolled Oats, as well as all other varieties of grain.

WE URGE FARMERS TO CONSIDER THIS ABOVE FACT very seriously, bearing in mind, when their crop is ready to harvest, to communicate with us, if they have not already done so. We will be operating extensively for three and four grades in the States of Utah, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and California.

COMMUNICATE WITH OUR NEAREST OFFICE, in any of the following localities:

JUSTICE AND THE POOR

This is the title of a series of articles by Reinald Heber Smith of the Boston bar, reprinted from a work of limited circulation published by the Civic Education Society for the Advancement of Learning. The second installment, "Dial of Justice—the Poor," is not inferior to the first. It is a plea for the poor to stand on an equally before the law, the traditional method of providing justice has operated to the disadvantage of the poor, and has caused a gross denial of justice in all parts of the country to millions of persons.

The effects of this denial of justice are far-reaching. Nothing teaches more in the human heart than the feeling of injustice. It produces a sense of helplessness, then bitterness. It is brooded over, it leads directly to contempt for law, obedience to the government, and plants the seeds of anarchy. The conviction grows that law is not justice, and challenges the belief that justice is best secured when...

Uncertainty Hides Red Sox Prospects

By JACK VELOCK.

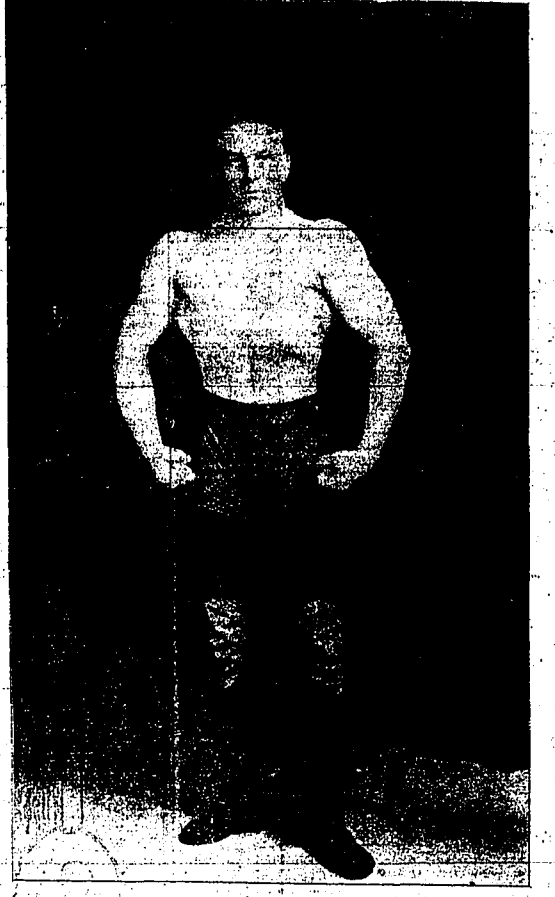

International News Sporting Editor. NEW YORK, March 15.—Red Barrow and his Red Sox are going to make a "Juth-less" attack when the curtain goes up on the American league pennant race in April...

As this article is being written the Bostonians—stripped of most of the great stars who made baseball history in the Hub during the palmy days of Red Sox championships—present a perfectly formed question-mark to the observer who attempts to peer into their chances.

The future of the barrowites is just as uncertain as the life of a bottle-leger these days. Even the Boston papers admit that it is impossible at the present time to say just how Barrow may line up his athletes for the opening game or what chances they may have of upholding Boston traditions.

Consensus of opinion among baseball experts as large as that Boston's prospects are dismal. What chance does such stars of other days as Ruth, Lewis, Thome, Leonard, Mayo, and Gardner, President Frantz has only a shadow of the once great Red Sox to put into the pennant race this spring.

The Boston infield will probably be made up with Stuffy Sulz at first base, Eddie Eyerer, the veteran Washington infielder, at second, Oscar Vitt, a good fielder but uncertain hitter, covering third and Everett Green, regular shortstop for several seasons, playing that position.

YANKEES TO BE IN RACE HUGGINS IS OPTIMISTIC

By JACK VELOCK.

(International News Sporting Editor) NEW YORK, March 15.—Muggins Miller Huggins and his hopeful New York Yankees are in the midst of spring training at Jacksonville, Fla., getting ready for what promises to be one of the brightest seasons in the history of the club.

The 1920 Yankees, Huggins believes, will have the necessary punch to put them into the pennant race from the start, and while Miller's refusal to make predictions he exhales optimism and wears a satisfied grin when ever talking of Yankee chances.

"I think the White Sox will have a little on their hands to retain their laurels this year," said Huggins recently. "Cleveland needs only a little better pitching to make it one of the best teams of the age, and Detroit seems to lack pitching only, while the St. Louis Browns promise to be an every-day buy. I hope to improve the position of the Yankees this year. We finished third last season, and with a little more speed and a stronger outfield I have hopes. The addition of Babe Ruth to our lineup has greatly strengthened the team, and though Frank Baker is apparently through for all time, I guess we will manage to round out the infield, although we shall sign him."

Baker's retirement added to Huggins' burden this spring. It left the field open and Baker's absence was hard to fill. But Huggins will break through Fawcett in April, and if the younger makes good, as Huggins believes he will, the Yankee outfield will not be weak by any means.

Harold Hood and Trunk Hannah will do the bulk of the catching for the Yankees again this year. Hugg has two young catchers at Jacksonville and will probably keep one of them. They are Fred Hoffmann, from St. Louis, and Dick J. Murphy, from the Boston club. Hoffmann is a semi-pro product. Murphy comes to the Yankees with a pretty good fielding record, but is not much of a hitter.

With Carl May to count on from the start of the season Huggins can count on getting the best pitching staff in the American League. Mordike, Quinn, Spawker, Thornburn, Smallwood, Sherr, D'Olivi, Piercey, McGraw, Murphy, Hamann, Collins, De Vita and Miller make up the staff. Half of these pitchers are youngsters, and some of them are good prospects. But without the aid of Dick Egan Huggins has a great staff for May, Mordike, Quinn, Spawker, McGraw, Sherr, Hamann, Collins, De Vita and Miller, if he is needed, constitute a pitching staff that any manager could covet.

When he came to the Yankee from Jersey City by purchase, Collins was purchased from Dallas. De Vita and Miller came from Jersey City. Murphy from Danvers. McGraw secured from Boston via the waiver route. Piercey purchased from Sacramento. Smallwood, a hardwood left in reserve from 1919.

Huggins has been told by various scouts and players who have seen him in action on Sam Rice's farm, the greatest young player ever developed in the west, and he comes to the Yankees highly touted as a sure enough find. He hammered the batting line a .237 (no in the Central League last season and fielded .914 in addition to being a top-notch base runner, a catcher, a big fellow, but is said to be fast for all that. He can also play third base and might be used there.

GOVERNOR APPROVES ARMY LIFE AS OPPORTUNITY TO GET VOCATIONAL TRAINING

(Statement of Governor D. W. Davis, March 15.) When I think of the difference of opportunity offered to the youth of today with a decade or two ago, it is not in the least surprising that in order to gain an education the young man had to be prepared in most families and boys often were not afforded an opportunity to receive an education except by working many hours at outside things and then burning the midnight oil. Now Congress has wisely appropriated funds for vocational training of the youth of the state. Parolees and by enlisting the young man can attend school and training without opportunity to receive an education except by working many hours at outside things and then burning the midnight oil. Service THERE is undoubtedly no public service that touches directly so many individuals and enters so completely into the social and commercial life of the people as does telephone service. More business is transacted over the telephone than there is through face to face conversations. More social activities are planned, more invitations sent, more engagements made or cancelled by telephone than by any other means. This places a tremendous responsibility upon those charged with the duty of rendering telephone service. Any failure of the service would have a disastrous effect upon both the business and social relations of a community. A general cessation of the service would cause nationwide confusion. Telephone employees realize their responsibility and recognize their obligation. It is this loyalty to duty that makes it possible for the Telephone Company to render service even under the most difficult conditions. Quite generally there are at this time inadequate facilities causing congestion and confusion, a condition from which there can be no immediate relief. Sometimes the elements rage in a mad fury, but men and women brave the storms that the public may be served. Occasionally a scourge of sickness depletes the ranks, adding to the burden of those who escape, but who perform their more difficult tasks with smiling determination to continue the service. With such a spirit in the telephone organization, the service will at all times be the best that human effort can produce, in the face of whatever adverse circumstances may prevail. The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company

LONDON, March 17.—Kitchener's half dozen of Gulliford, thought only of the day of martial terror, he was named martially. Now—already—his very name is the source of trouble. He cannot keep a secret. The other small boys of Gulliford know. "They call after him in the street, they call him a coward," they say. One day he went for the first time to school. He gave teacher his name—letters that he usually. Then in the playground it was: "Can you fight, Kitchener?" "Where's your medal, then?" "Ain't you bought your gun, General?" One inventive lad had made up a new game. Kitchener Halp was to be the brave general attacked by Germany. He was to vanquish the enemy, with the V. C. When the enemy advanced poor Kitchener Halp discovered under the folds of his boisterous juvenile humanity. Worse, it had come to this; that
