The demonstrators also demanded the dismissal of Premier Zahle, Minister of the town council leader in the demonstration, earlier in the day they had memorialized the king urging formation of a cabinet satisfactory to the mob.

RENTS

Real estate values and rentals rose more slowly than other values, but recently they have been making up for lost time. This is particularly true of rentals. In many places they are being pushed up to such an exorbitant figure that there is a widespread protest and a growing demand for curbing legislation.

It is recognized by fair-minded people that when the price of commodities in general doubles, real estate will be expected to follow suit. If, therefore, other prices are going to stick at their present level, there can be no legitimate objection to their being brought into harmony with them.

The best criterion of rent, however, is the market value of the property. When value, if not improperly interfered with by speculators, follows a natural course which follows sudden and accidental shifts in the value of more than things, like food and clothing. It is represented by a fairly smooth curve instead of a sharp, broken one. Land and houses are less resalable than personal property, less sensitive to sudden changes.

When other goods have risen 100 per cent it does not follow necessarily that rents should do so, because the other goods may soar full price. Really, moving more conservatively, makes the other price levels only in the long run. This, rising only 75 or 80 per cent over its ante-bellum level, it may equal the average rise of other necessities of life over the whole reconstruction period, until values in general become pretty well settled again.

Rents of course should fluctuate not rapidly, along with land and clothing, but slowly, along with realty values. It is the defiance of this principle on the part of many landlords that has aroused public indignation.

It is agreed by fair-minded business men that while property values change, the percentage of return, as based on valuation, should be stable. If a $10,000 property used to rent for $1000 a year, and if that property is now valued at $15,000, the rent should not be more than $1500 a year.

This 10 per cent rate is the rate formerly figured on, in most communities, for gross incomes from real estate. There is no evident reason why it should be changed now. Legislation is being advocated in some states to establish it as a maximum for dwellings. Such legislation may be necessary, if landlords insist on profiteering.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE SCHOOLS

A Buffalo judge recently refused naturalization papers to an applicant because the man, though seeking citizenship, was sending his children to schools in which the Polish language is the medium of instruction. The judge declared that the children of persons seeking naturalization must be receiving knowledge of American institutions, and that they should be taught in the English language.

Most Americans will agree wholeheartedly with the judge. Certainly any foreigner who sincerely desires to become an American citizen should be eager to raise his children the best possible opportunity to enjoy their liberty of citizenship by being properly brought up.

It is now their duty that the father in this instance was not in error. In his own country, where citizenship is never granted far from his intention to have his children grow up as Americans. He simply had not seen the situation clearly, had not thought about the matter at all. The Polish school was perhaps close at hand. If he were gathered teachers and pupils who had come, like himself, from the Old Country, or whose parents had done so. The school spoke a familiar tongue, and he sent his children to it naturally enough. Yet the school was wrong, and he was wrong.

The incident reopens the question discussed passionately during the war. Why should there be any foreign language schools in this country? Where were the authorities who had failed to supply a good American school in that district, or who had failed to interest the foreign residents of the district in that school if it existed? Real Americanization begins with the children of our foreign population, but if we ourselves do not see to it that they get into our schools, how can we expect their foreign-born parents to do so?

THE IDEAL PRESIDENT

The next president should be a business man, a good executive, have complete understanding of foreign relations, a firm grasp of home conditions, be absolutely loyal to the welfare of his party and at the same time hold the good of the country above party interests.
 He should have a definite scheme for reconstruction, be able to adjust the differences between labor and capital, know how to reduce the cost of living and just how to put the treaty across with and without reservations.
 But then, as the employment bureau told the inquiring housewife,
 "there ain't any cherulims nor seraphim on our lists today."

With the Exchanges

"Why not elect lawyers and save the expense of hiring legal talent?" queries one of our city contemporaries.
 Our legal friends are not to suggest stand as members of that fraternity might be expected to be.
 The government is under the necessity of consulting experts in road building, construction work, forestry, colonization and kindred professions. It has never been suggested that we fill the office with engineers in order to get expert advice on those problems requiring it. And if the government is to suggest stand as members of that profession, why not from the legal profession as well?

The Ontario government is following the logical course, but lawyers would probably prefer to make the laws as well as interpret them. Farmers will continue to believe that rural communities are best represented by working farmers and will be quite content to let the government hire its legal advice even as they themselves have to do. Farm and Dairy Con-

As player values go these days it is conservative to figure that the warty hogs will have to shoulder a load contented athletes report and wait interests.

OVER THE ROCKIES COMES THE MESSAGE. Go to church Easter Sunday.

The Elf Man (who was very wise), in a strange, sweet voice "what we call death is really birth into another life; the clover comes up in another form of plant life. It has given its strength to form food for you to eat."

"The clover helps keep the earth moist and open during the winter and spring months," explained Big-Boy, and then when it is turned into a little bunny to the ground to get the vegetables he sowed and tend for our use, I studied all about it in the Garden Manual."

"Hum-um-um-um," sang the Bumble Bee, "it's my turn next. Let me help you. There wouldn't be any clover left if I didn't see the need. At least, I help get-ri-nate it. Hum-um-um, hum-um-um."

"Do not let her tell her story or we shall never be at peace," the Elf Man whispered to Big-Boy when Little-Girl went looking "she is a lady bee, you know, and very persistent."

"Who will roam the fields with me? Lead me to secret of the clover— Who would be a nature lover?" "We will, we will," cried the three little people, Little-Girl, Big-Boy, and the Bumble Bee.

The Elf Man, who knew all garden secrets, broke into a song. "The bumble bee is dressed in yellow. He never velvet trimmed in black. I think he is a handsome fellow. And what he knows he pays back."
