CHAMPION'S NERVES

Kilbane Says They May Slow Up Dempsey

By JOHNNY KILBANE
Featherweight Champion of the World

I HEREBY declare myself that I am not going to be worried under in his fight with Georges Carpentier on July 2 that a few folks will stop to consider that only two men are involved in the bout, bearing on Dempsey's fight, during my motion.

That is the fact that he is a champion.

From the moment I won a boxing title until I lost the same—the time comes when hands stretched on the mat and the belt passes—the champion is under a continual strain. Nine years of holding the feather title has put the gray into my hair, swiftly.

Fearsome Vision.

Always in the mind of a champion is a picture of an opponent, breathing for his jaw with the wallop that will push him off the peak of fame and drop him into the forgotten world of fistic discards.

He's in a continual state of nerves. In his worry, over getting into proper condition to meet a challenger he's likely to overtrain and be off-color for the fight.

I'm nervous from the time I sign articles to box. I like a little night worrying and planning. That knock-out bothers me while I'm in the dressing room and it follows me into the ring. The eagerness a champion receives deadens it for a moment when I slip between the ropes, but my back full blast, when I go out for final instructions.

When the bell rings.

Then comes the test. Fortunately for me, when I pop out of my corner I am relieved of the strain of the haunting doubts and can concentrate on the one job of the evening.

But all fighters are not alike in this respect. Many of the men who can't forget the two opponents he's met and the challenger, who is just as likely to rob him of his title as the other.

When Dempsey finished Willard in short order, Willard forgot his fear of Dempsey, the fighter, and nothing to lose. He was public with everything to lose and nothing to gain. His mind will be burdened with the fact that his title is in danger—and unless he can shake that fear—Brennan cheaply, and invited feeling off, it's going to hurt him.

A champion must guard against carelessness. Friendly enemies have spoiled many a champ. As he wasn't at all the same fierce boss as a man who, a little hundreds fighting, packing as on that day at Toledo when he won the title, and scaring his friendship. Unless he's, was only after 15 rounds of the keeps his head level and his feet on hardest kind of work that he was the ground, he is dined and wined able to put Brennan away.

title a toss up. I can see no ad- vantage for either man in both Dempsey and Carpentier are punchers. The Frenchman is faster and will swing more to the champion's advantage. Either man carries the power to stop the bout with a single blow. Carpentier has an excellent chance."

More coincidences today in major league standings. Both New York teams in second place, both Brooklyn teams in fourth place, both Cleveland teams in sixth and both Philadelphia teams in eighth. Chicago, the only other city boasting two clubs, has one in fourth place and the other in seventh.

Charrity's home run with two on helped Washington beat the Browns, 8 to 5.

Johnston's two base error, Sisler's sacrifice and Mann's sacrifice fly gave the Cardinals a 2 to 1 victory over the Phillies in the 11th inning.

The Yankees pounded three White Sox pitchers all over the yard and won, 11 to 4.

Babe Adams' arm was working in 1908 form and the Pirates beat the Robins, 7 to 5.

A Word To the Wise

"In March I was called to the bedside of my sister in Hewton, Alabama. She was given up to die and was almost dead. Called in a neighbor. Doctors said nothing but an operation would save her and she was too weak for that. Her color was yellow as a pumpkin and she was filled with gas. That day I heard of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and went and got a bottle for her. In three weeks she was able to be about and walked a mile to church. I am prejudiced in favor of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal deposit, allays fermentation and stops the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Invaluable preventative. Try it. Sold with guarantee or money refunded.—Adv.

Babe Adams, Hero of Naughty Nine, Still Big Winner

NEW YORK, May 20.—Babe Adams went out yesterday and won a ball game from Brooklyn.

Babe has been winning ball games for many, many years, and that's the story.

The veteran ace of the Pittsburgh hurling staff had just celebrated his 39th birthday when he was called on to work.

"The old arm is still good. He showed as much stuff as he ever had," George Gibson, his teammate of 1909 and now his manager, said today.

Babe is an example for those who aspire to be fit at forty. He came up to the big time in 1906 and became a hero de luxe in the 1909 world's series. He kept going until 1917, when he was voted "shrimp" after eight full years of pitching, and was sent to the minors.

Two years small time were enough for the babe and he came back to the Pirates in 1919. He is still there and he hasn't thought of quitting. He is the only active player left of the old 1909 champions.

"Next just as good as he ever did," Babe said here today, and he looks as if he may. —(Copyright, 1921, N. E. A.)

ALL THE TRAFFIC CAN BEAR

The cry against the transportation act of 1920, declared by the Idaho farm bureau to be responsible for the exorbitant freight rates that are sucking the lifeblood out of Idaho industries and agriculture, is reflected in greater and less degree by every other section of the country and in all branches of industry.

Freight charges entering into the production cost of pig iron made in the Pittsburg district total $10.18 a tone, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Ten years ago the selling price of pig iron f. o. b. Pittsburg was $12.30 a ton.

The comparison needs no comment.

You find the same thing in other industries—the story of the enormous part played by freight rates in the consumer's cost of living.

Silently, inexorably, high freight rates are changing the whole system of manufacturing and distribution of necessities and compelling curtailment of the use of commodities.

One-of-the-most-striking changes, says the department of Agriculture, is being brought about in farming.

Increased transportation costs are compelling farmers to stop specializing on any certain crop and to "grow more of their own food.

"The grain farmer in many instances buys even his potatoes and green vegetables. The fruit farmer buys his dairy products. And even the man who raises milk for creamery, condensory or cheese factory is likely to send his cream or milk away, feed the skim milk or whey to the calves and not make his own butter."

Such are conditions created by specialized farming, but—

"The American farmer is not going to be able this year to pay freight on water. Water makes up a large part of fresh fruits and vegetables. The answer is, that he must grow his own table food."

That solves the question for the farmer. But how about the rest of us who, lacking time or land to grow our own food, are unable to dodge high freight charges in food as well as other living costs?

The Woman He Married

By Jane Phelps

MAN IS A BUSINESS WOMAN.—Chapter 29.

Dick had rented a small house, not very modern, but the best we could find at the rent we could pay. The yard, however, made up for all the house lacked, and the vegetable garden. Mother gave up several pieces of furniture she had stored in the attic as well as some she had in use. We bought only the simplest things yet the house looked very cosy and comfortable. "I believe you could take a dry goods box and make it look homey" Dick said when we moved in.

"I'll is on account of my knack with a needle Dick" I returned. Mosiln curtains and other inexpensive draperies it made right light wonderfull to give a place that homey look you talk about."

"Well a fellow would be hard to please that couldn't be contented here" he said so heartily that I gave him a buz and kiss. I had been afraid he would be lonely since the excitement of his work in New York but when I spoke of it he assured me he was happier than in a long time.

"Happier than I deserve to be" he had added.

Even now he would not listen when I blamed myself for all that had happened but insisted he was equally at fault.

Every week we put aside a little—necessarily it was only a little as his salary was small—toward the payment of, what we owed.

The day we clean up all those debts will be the happiest day of my life" he said when we talked of how much we could save by being very economical.

Just as soon as we were really settled in our new home I told Dick of my plan to help him pay off the terrible debts for which I was responsible. I knew that what we owed Mr. Burns worried Dick more than any others although I never mentioned the matter before he had offered to lend Dick money.

But I had not forgotten and if I had accepted other incentive than my love for Dick my desire to prove I cared only for his happiness it would have been in that moment. I, too, longed to pay all we owed, but I think my anxiety was because I saw that Dick never would be quite happy until we were, as he called it, "free."

"You say I am clever in fixing up a home, Dick. Well, I have decided to fix up other people's homes for a certain sum, Mother and I have had it out with some people in Holden, and with what I may be able to get to do here, I am sure I shall have quite a paying business."

"What do you mean, Jane? A paying business?"

"Just as I have explained—I am ready equipped to make draperies, cushions, et cetera, I can get very good prices, and by buying the goods by the piece I can secure it at a profit to let the furnish the materials as well as do the work."

"But, Nan! you can't do this and attend to the house too! It will be too much for you."

"No, Dick!" Please don't object. If I find it do hard, I will give it up. I expect I shall have to hire a girl or two after a while. But at first I shall get along alone. I have plenty of time, and this little house will not worry me, the work I mean. And Dick, look here!"

"There!" he whistled, "You're some little business girl. Nan, I had shown him an estimate for dotted muslin—curtains with overdrapes of figured chintz for a neighbor of mine's. I had also figured my profit.

"Nan Williams, interior decorator, going to hang up a sign, dear!"

"No, not at first. I thought that after a while if I am as successful as I feel sure I shall be, I might take a small shop and call it "The Drapery Shop" or something like that. You see Holden and Lansing are so close together I really have two places to get trade from instead of one. And I have two more houses over in Holden to do as soon as this is finished. Mother helped me get them. But after I do one I imagine my work will be all the advertisement I shall need. Also Dick, don't you see how quickly we shall be out of debt? You aren't ashamed to have me do it, are you?"

I was thinking of his wealthy, fashionable sister.

"No, I have lost all that sort of false pride, Nan. But don't take too much work and get sick."

"I promise not to. And, Dick, I love this kind of work. I shall really enjoy it, and as we making money to help you, but probably every penny goes for those debts until they are paid."

"What a relief it will be when that day arrives!"

The wish that followed showed how the thought of what he owed weighed upon Dick; and made me the more enthusiastic over helping him.

Tomorrow—Nan Makes Good.

MRS. NANCY WESTCOTT, of Syracuse, N. Y., who declares Tanlac is the greatest medicine on earth. Says it built her up so where she is just brimful of new life and energy.

"I think Tanlac is the greatest medicine on earth and I can never praise it enough for what it's done for me.

"For two years I was in a badly run down condition. I had no appetite, and after every meal I would be in awful distress from indigestion and bloating. My nerves were on edge, and I could never get a good night's sleep. I felt tired and worn out all the time, was losing weight, and many times it was so weak I couldn't look after my housework. I just felt miserable.

"Tanlac helped one of my friends so much that I began taking it and it has certainly built me up into splendid health. My appetite is wonderful, my nerves are as steady as clockwork, and I sleep like a child at night. I have recovered my strength and am just brimful of new life and energy. In fact I feel better than I have in years. My gratitude towards Tanlac is unbounded."

MARKET REPORT

GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 20—Wheat continued its upward spurt on the Chicago board of trade today, while climactic conditions were irregular. Corn dropped while oats advanced. Buying of wheat for export demand, and disturbing reports of crop conditions caused the sudden rise in wheat prices. Provisions were irregular.

May wheat opened up ¼c at $1.52¾ and closed up 5c, July opened up ¼c at $1.29½ and closed up 2c.

May corn opened unchanged at 75c and dropped ¼c at the start, then opened unchanged at 75c and closed off ¼c. September corn opened at 65¾c, up ¼c, and closed off ¼c.

May oats opened unchanged at 36½c and closed up ¼c. July oats opened unchanged at 33½c and closed up ¼c. September oats opened up ¼c at 29¾c, and closed up ¼c.

BANK BANDITS UPSET IN CAR AFTER ROBBERY

Capture of Three Results, One Escaped, Following Raid on Chicago Bank.

CHICAGO—Three bank robbers fleeing after looting up the Division State bank here, were captured today when their auto turned over. One bandit was wounded by police fire. A fourth robber escaped.

The four men entered the bank shortly after it opened today and drove the officials into a rear room. After scooping up all the money in sight—about $10,000—they fled.

As the automobile was speeding down the street, Detective Sergeant William Russell, who knew nothing of the robbery, called for the auto to halt. The robbers did not stop. Russell commandeered a passing automobile and gave chase, emptying his revolver at the bandits.

The robbers' machine turned over as it rounded a corner. The four ran, one started to run. Innocent bystanders William Donegan and captured two others.

The fourth man held up another automobile and made his escape in it. The tool was found in the overturned machine.

Do you want to be protected against a coal famine next winter?

Be a customer of the Shankel Coal Co. now and you have the protection of a dealer who in the past has been able to protect customers better than any other.

In 1919 during the coal strike not one of our customers suffered for lack of fuel. Again the coal strike is on, the embargo struck we kept our customers supplied.

Last season we stored nearly a 500,000 stock—all winter we had plenty to supply our trade. This next winter will bring forth no one can foretell, but it appears to us that these who trade here now will have every reason to be happy.

We cannot take care of other dealers' customers during a shortage. Those who trade with us steady, especially in the summer, must have first consideration.

Here on Suit—John Wolfe, formerly of Twin Twin Falls, now of Nampa, was here today in a suit against H. B. Wallace. He secured judgment. Asher B. Wilson represented him.

Two Foreclosure Suits—Friedl Maxwell and husband filed a suit against Oscar Baker et al. in foreclosure today. Mrs. Addie Walker brought similar action against R. Goldbery et al.

Sustains Broken Leg—Thelma Carter, aged about seven years, sustained a broken leg just evening, while playing near her home and is in a local hospital for treatment.

Getting Along Well—William Denton, the senior, who was somewhat hurt at the log rush yesterday, is reported better today and unless something should happen nothing serious is anticipated. His brother, Ed Denton, was slightly injured, but is all right.

Traffic Case This P. M.—A traffic jack is having a hearing on the charge of embezzlement from the Bank of Hansen before Probate Judge C. O. Duvall, who returned this afternoon from Albion, Albion, where he went with a couple of boys yesterday.

Rock Crusher to Quit—Unless something should be doing changes in the program, work on the rock crusher will cease Saturday, according to the present intention of the highway board, in receipt of a report by Engineer W. L. Johnson that practically enough rock has been crushed to carry out the summer program.

Jury Out Until Monday—The jury in the case of E. C. Sparks against Mrs. Sarah Hollingsworth and wife, brought in a verdict for $172 with interest and costs this afternoon, Judge W. A. Babcock then dismissed the jury until Monday. He also dismissed for want of prosecution this afternoon the cause of the C. W. E. M. Co. versus W. Cleveland; A. E. Shelton versus W. J. Sheldon; Alamo Produce Co. versus James McGillvrey. J. D. Smith versus Lester McKean was dismissed on motion of plaintiff.

Accepts Inspectorship—Word was received this morning by City Clerk Paul R. Taber, that W. L. Beard, of Oklahoma City, had accepted the office of meat and milk inspector and would arrive here June 6. Beard was connected with the U. S. Bureau of animal industry while war broke out. He served two years in the veterinary department, one being overseas. He graduated from the division of veterinary medicine of the Kansas Agricultural college in January, 1921. While there he took the regular course in meat and dairy inspection. He also took special courses in these under Lieutenants Brown of the reserve officers' training camp.

QUARANTINE ELLIS ISLAND

NEW YORK, May 20.—Ellis Island was put under quarantine today, following the death last night of an immigrant of typhus.

More than 1700 immigrants who might have come in contact with the disease were isolated in Hoffman Island, where they will be confined under observation for 21 days.

TAFT OR HUGHES FOR BENCH

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Talk of a successor to Chief Justice White of the supreme court has centered on William Howard Taft former president.

Selection of Secretary of State Hughes also is being discussed.

GIRLS! - LEMON JUICE - BLEACHES FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you'll have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion and complexion whitener.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy white the skin becomes.—Adv.

It Has Been Rumored

that I am not a graduate, licensed Optometrist.

I wish to take this means of informing the public that I have a graduate of the best English and American Optical Schools, that in addition I have served an apprenticeship in England under one of the pupils of Lionel Lawrence, London, England, that I have had 14 years optical experience and that I have specialized in optical work exclusively for the past five years.

I am a licensed optometrist in the State of Utah and the State of Idaho, by examination. Anything offer to the contrary is circulated with the intention of deceiving the public.

YOUR EYES ARE SAFE IN MY HANDS

I use no drugs or drops, only the newest up-to-date methods.
