Buhl will probably hold another school bond election and we hope they will find at least 15 more voters for it than they had the last time.

The anti-legislative bill is deadlocked in the state legislature and turned out daily enough "home-brew" to drown the debate in the lower house of representatives.

Twin Falls county is getting a lot of publicity out of the controversy from New York to the west end of this county. They are making the trip by caravan and are being lavishly entertained along the way.

We wish to warn the residents of this city that there is a likelihood of a coal famine in this district during the coming winter. Cities and towns will branch lines are least favored when it comes to shipments of coal during a stringency. The freight rates is the present cause of the high prices and yet there is very little likelihood of this being lowered within the next few weeks to any great extent.

We are going to venture the prediction that there will be something new on the railroad to Nevelas in the very near future. It is felt we think that the readers of The Times have gleamed something from the front page this evening which has started much speculation. This paper believes in giving the latest news on these local affairs first and The Times has given its undivided support to the promotion of this new road.

The United States is short, more than a million houses. This shortage is causing high rents, forcing families into two narrow quarters, delaying marriage, reducing the birth rate, leading to all sorts of social as well as economic troubles, says the Chicago Journal. Yet, according to the department of labor, has been built in many men are working in the building trades now as were working a year ago. Even a year ago the nation's construction force was far too small. Now 52 per cent of the force is idle. The housing business and organizing ability of America helpless in the presence of an emergency like this!

It is no longer quite correct for a truly proper and unselfish woman not to have something to do apart from her husband and her house, says Arnold Bennett in "Our Women." Women whose days are interestingly and usefully full will have no time to be morbid. Their minds will be nourished. They will think more of their own minds and of men's minds and less of their own bodies and men's bodies. And men will assuredly hear, thereby led to do the same. The phenomenon will shed its superfluous grossness. Affection may be strengthened, but crude passion will diminish. And inclination and habits will be modified accordingly.

PIGEON-HOLED!

The Sheppard-Towner maternity bill is pigeon-holed. Hearing on it were concluded by the house interstate committee one month ago.

No report on it has been presented to congress and none drafted. The secretary of the committee says he has no idea when it will be.

Meanwhile, congress shoves its affairs for a recess. When it gets back, there will be a scramble to get action on tariff and taxation. And the maternity bill will remain gathering dust and cobwebs in the files of the committee where it is buried.

Each month, according to 200,000 mothers, the needlessly in-childbirth birth.

Each month hundreds of infant lives flicker out when help, such as it is proposed to extend through this bill, would save them.

Infant hygiene and prenatal guidance for mothers are not unexplored fields. Their success in cities, where they have been tried out by medical authorities, proves that they save lives—lives by the hundred.

New York, through visiting nurses and infant clinics, has reduced its deathrate due to childbirth and infancy, to the point where the mother and infant in that crowded city, even in its tenements, have a better chance for life than the mother and baby in the average country town.

Pieces, not theories, are presented as a basis for congressional action.

President Harding, in addressing the opening session of the new congress, declared:

"I assume the maternity bill already strongly approved, will be enacted promptly."

But it appears President Harding assumed too much. The bill not only was not enacted promptly—it was promptly buried.

True, the senate passed it.

"A sort of sentinel," its opponents explain.

The house pigeon-holed it.

These are the members of the committee who have buried the Sheppard-Towner bill:

J. Samuel Winslow, Massachusetts, chairman; James Parker, New York; Burton Sweet, Iowa; W. R. Shouse, Claude Bland, Connecticut; E. E. Benson, Illinois; Everett Singletary, Indiana; Schuyler Meritt, Connecticut; J. S. Webster, Washington, D. C.; Jones, Pennsylvania; C. E. Mapes, Michigan; W. A. Graham, Illinois; S. E. Burroughs, New Hampshire; Walter H. Newton, Minnesota; Homer Hook, Kansas; A. W. Barkley, Kentucky; Sam Haynes, Texas; George Hudlin, Alabama; C. E. Lee, California; Paul Johnson, Mississippi; and Harry H. Hawes, Missouri.

Men and women, write them! Tell them what you think!

As chairman, Winslow can draft the report and get action whenever he desires.
