

"FUNNY WHAT A DIFFERENCE A FEW YEARS MAKE"—IN EASTER BONNETS

MISS 1862

Trained up in the style of the Civil War girl. She wore an Easter bonnet, pink with white lace in patterns, with a large plume and a small feather on a brim of black silk, just wide enough to cast a shade above her white silk.

MISS 1872

Sandy, to say the least, was the biggest bonnet worn by fair Easter bonnet-wielders in 1872. It was a tall, round, full affair, with a few flowers on the crown. It was covered over with fine plumes cascaded down over a brim just wide enough to cast a shadow over the brow.

MISS 1882

She would come down to her Quaker maid, her bonnet would be the same size as the one worn by Miss 1872, but it would be a much smaller size. It was made of grey silk and trimmed with tiny pink roses. This gave a youthful look and appeal to the youth of that day.

MISS 1892

Introduction first last year in Chicago, and the idea has spread. Just 20 years ago on Easter morn, "Twas a sailor's bonnet with pearl crown and roses. Oatich feathers drooped fat down over the side."

MISS 1902

Little but headdresses of proud names. Here was the hat which a middle century girl wore on Easter morn. There was a wide brim of white silk. The brim was extremely flat and was adorned with a sprig of flower comb, and a drop of flowers, with scattered dots of bows of woven silk and a dash of ribbon.

MISS 1912

Only ten years ago, Miss 1912, here we are, up to date! Oatich feathers, after a run of 50 years, have sprung up from a knot that would appear very queer on this day. Truly a picture hat. It is extremely flat and wide, with a broad belt of woven silk of wavy straw with clusters of ruffly silk and a dash of ribbon.

TELLS STORY OF SLAUGHTER OF AMERICANS

General Graves Records Report of "Slaughter of Americana" by General William Bonhoff in Telluride Before Senate Committee at Washington.

Washington, April 18.—General Graves, record keeper, was called before the Senate Committee on Small Business to give his version of the "slaughter of Americans" during the last session.

He said that he presented in New York where he had been seized by his forces of goods owned by an American citizen in Siberia.

General Graves said he had been along the track side and buried soldiers ruthlessly murdered; and in a statement he made before a House committee held before noon today, he said he had killed three thousand men.

General Graves' story of the massacre in Telluride, he said, was true.

General Graves, who was born in Scotland, got out of the country, called Graves, commandant of the American Siberian expedition that made a killing of thousands.

General Graves' New York attorney, who is investigating the "slaughter," said to-day:
