POULTRY

RUNTY HENS NOT DESIRABLE

Investigation Shows at Least One Fourth of Fifteen is Underfed and Hence Unprofitable.

Reported by the United States Department of Agriculture, it is not uncommon in the poultry flock in the United States.

in fact, it is a favorite pastime of many to raise runty hens.

Curiously it is that undulated flocks are not desirable and it has been the experience of most breeders that if runty hens can be raised,

if not entirely eliminated, this is the conclusion that may be arrived at after a

a study of the figures and comments

submitted by a preliminary investigation.

Runtness is not uncommon in the poultry flock as it is among other farming animals, yet it is a favorite pastime of many to raise runty hens.

After the hens received their usual reward and the gifts were regaled the men and women enjoyed the music of the girls.

Twin Falls —

In a one-sided game on Lincoln field yesterday the Twin Falls high school baseball team took the game of 10 to 2. The score indicates better than any other words can describe how close the contest was. Pocatello had the ball in their hands most of the time, but the strong arm and when the blue and white came to bat the game looked like a whitewash to the spectators.

For the first four games and half his opponents to 7 hits. Putter behind the plate played the part of a second-line player. He showed the ball well and the batsmen were unable to get it past him. Jackson, in the first bag and the local outfit played a tight game, jammed at first sack to the hilt. The high school second-players some high class ball and covered a lot of territory. Cruz, a new recruit, played a good game and made looks like a real hit. The team, at short, is showing up strong. Thomas, left field, J. Jarman in right and Ross and Jackson, make a combination which is hard to beat.

During the latter part of the game Coach Evans used a great many substitutions. The team, however, did not let up and kept the regular starting men working to hold their places.

Pocatello Has Some Players

But the team did not gather together for a few minutes before coming here for the two games, yet some of their more allowed rest class. The game was over and he had no support, yet struck out 6 of the Twin Falls heavy-hitters. Jackson at first, Cruz, second, and the local outfit second-players, who recently won the southern California amateur championship, would, in the estimation of many Pa-

The allies who insist on the soviet recognizing Russia's war debts should consider their banks about discontinuing Russian promissory notes.

While the Soviet government demands 50,000,000 gold rubles from the allies, it may be merely a bluff to keep from paying its debts.

Chancellor Wirth is reported to be disappointed and gloomy over the Geneva conference, probably because reparations are still demanded.

Farmers are said to fear the proposed tariff will not boost prices of farm products without raising the cost of what farmers buy. That is too much to expect even of a tariff.

"Strong in Carnegie Hall, Shouts or Repel of Dry Law," says a New York paper. When you get down to the facts, most of this appeal for the repeal of the dry law is "holler." In addition to that, it is hollow.

The president of the Southern Idaho Livestock association predicts better times for this part of the West and we hope he is correct. There seems to be a blue wave sweeping over this section right now and we hope something comes along soon to clear the sky a bit.

It is fitting at the time that the potato shortage is shown to have largely passed on the Twin Falls front, that an association should be formed here to put special identification brands on the tubers shipped to the eastern markets. High grading has helped mark the stem crop; but it has not been fully realized by buyers in the East that the potato which gave so much satisfaction was "made in Idaho." Idaho has no fear of "truth in the fabric" branding for its agricultural products.

The great winning-principle of Marshal Foch is, "You cannot lose until you have quit fighting." You may lose trenches or cities or divisions, but you have not lost the battle till you have lost heart and stopped. That army will win which is fighting fifteen seconds after its opponents have stopped." If the "we" should do the impossible and succeed in the temporary subjugation of the United States Constitution, as they think it would make one bit of difference in the fighting patriotism of the majority of the American people!—We would simply go right-after them again as we did in the first place.

The question of whether a dentist or dentists have the right to advertise their business is being thrashed out in a suit before the supreme court. Complainant Judge claimed that the dentist was unethical because they advertised. We do not know this complainant but we do feel that he must be some sort of "Quiney." This ethical dope! About the biggest piece of tomfoolery we have heard one individual pull concerning an ordinary means of making a living. The man who happens to be a dentist or a physician is little better than the fellow who lives beside him, but yet his neighbor can advertise his business, but doctor must not. This is an old doctrine taught his business, but doctor must not. For more than a hundred years. Because a man has chosen to follow the medical or dentists' profession is no reason that he is better than the average clay. Is this the meaning that this fellow Jones is trying to promulgate?

SICKNESS AMONG OFFICE WORKERS

How many days per year are annually lost by each person engaged in gainful occupation in the United States has long been a question. In a recent report the United States public health service throws some light on the subject, and also on the relation that the health of office workers bears to that of all workers.

The figures on which the report was based were very carefully compiled by a large western corporation during the year ending Jan. 31, 1921, during which it employed an average of 12,292 of its employees. An exact record was kept of the hours of work lost by each person from sickness or injuries—the sickness being diagnosed by the medical department or by the family physician. The result showed an annual loss of 8.15 days per person.

This compares with the estimate made by the committee on industrial waste of the Federal American Engineering Service, which reported that the 42,000,000 men and women gainfully employed in the United States probably lose on an average more than eight days each annually from illness disabilities."

The fact that the majority of the 12,222 office employees were women whose sickness-rate is usually higher than that of men, and that a loss of about two days per person was caused by influenza during the epidemic of February, 1920, are two factors which tend to make the sickness rate in question higher than the average rate for all workers in a normal year. On the other hand, the fact that the average age of the office employee was only 27 years, that clerical and executive work is relatively free from health hazards, and that the health of the group was carefully guarded logically would tend to make the rate in question lower than the average rate for the gainfully employed. Allowing for these factors, the author of the report concludes that the eight-day estimate of the committee of the engineering service for all workers probably is not too high.

LIVE-STOCK FACTS

KEEPING OUT ALL DISEASES

Quarantine Institution Against Importation of Live Stock From Disease-Free Countries.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture)

The prevalence of foot-and-mouth disease has been common in certain sections of Asia and Africa, as well as in South America, has caused the United States Department of Agriculture to institute special quarantine measures against the importation of cattle from these places. This extensive survey of foreign sources of live stock and protection against the introduction of foot-and-mouth disease is annually worth millions of dollars to the stock breeders of the United States.

Any one who wishes to import cattle, sheep, goats, swine or other animals from any country, except Canada or Mexico, must first obtain from the Secretary of Agriculture a permit to be presented to the American consul at the port of entry where the animals will be shipped. These permits are issued for shipment from countries where foot-and-mouth disease, swine foot-and-mouth disease, or hog cholera prevail.

Foot-and-mouth disease prevalent in serious extent in England during the past two years, but recently has been abated to the extent that horses from both England and Scotland are accepted for importation into the United States; certain restrictions regarding feeding and care are observed. These regulations provide that the animals shall be fed only on grain, hay, and straw, and after arrival in this country, and that the voyage come from this country. These precautions are taken that the disease may not spread to those who do not appreciate the critical character of the disease under discussion, are effective in preventing the importation of foot-and-mouth disease into the United States.

BEEF CATTLE, BENEFIT FARM

Make-Paul's Greater Use of Roughage More Efficient Than Any Other Animal.

The use of beef cattle in connection with general farming throughout the corn belt and the United States has increased. At present, after the following advantages:

It is possible to make greater use of dry roughage produced by the farm as beef cattle consume larger quantities of roughage than any other species of stock.

Beef cattle can be used probably on rough land unsuitable for crop production, also on low, wet land unsuitable for growing crops or for other classes of stock.

Beef cattle use the total production of grain and roughages of the average farm, without the purchase of other feedstuffs more efficiently than any other species of stock.

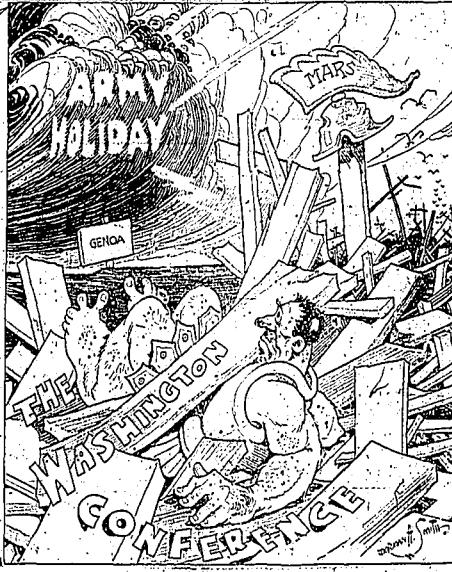

Beef cattle favor a well-balanced dieting of labor throughout the year. They require very little attention during the summer months, and during winter and early spring, when there is little field work to be done, farmers can utilize their beef cattle to help care for the buildings, heating, whitening the stockyards and feeders, and fanning some areas.

Cleaning Paper.

Grease or paper marks on books or papers may be removed by the following process: Place a piece of fine sandpaper, magnesium carbide with a sufficient amount of benz in a cup or metal, and apply a small quantity of this mixture to the mark. Rub the surface in lightly with the tip of the finger. The benz will evaporate in a few moments, when the paper should be brushed with a clean, soft cloth. If the stain remains, repeat the process until it disappears.
