STATE GAME WARDEN WINS IDAHO SUIT

Leroy C. Jones, Former State Game Warden, Who Was Sued by State of Idaho for $37,- 920.79 Game Licenses Unaccounted for during Term in Office Must Pay $1,120.50.

BOISE, June 17.—Leroy C. Jones, former state game warden, sued by the state for a total of $37,920.79 fees collected and unaccounted for during his three and one-half years in office, together with 10 per cent penalty of 25 per cent and interest at 10 percent, must pay to the state $1,120.50. The amount was found to be due by the jury in its verdict returned Friday night at 9:30 o'clock after deliberating five hours.

Bitter Political Contest.

Unless Jones should appeal from the action, it marks the conclusion of one of the most bitter contests ever waged in the courts of Idaho. Jones was appointed game warden under Governor Moses Alexander and held office until appointed United States marshal by President Wilson. At the time he left the office of game warden there were licenses in the total amount above either unaccounted for, outlined or in the hands of deputies throughout the state. Jones was charged with the missing amount and his enemies talked of attempting criminal prosecution, while friends contended that the whole case was worked up for political effect. Jones admitted that many of the licenses in his absence might have given out a few licenses without his knowledge and "shifted" taking proper receipt; but he insisted that the amount claimed by the state was outrageous. The state later cut the amount claimed to a little more than $37,000, which is the amount the court Judge Haddock said was at least $14,000 of this was clearly invalid and ordered it struck out, and which the jury in its verdict reduced the total to about $1,000, which was signally far account of what his friends said, might be charged to the carelessness of clerks during his term of office, under close construction of the state. Judge James R. Bothwell of this city and ex-Senator from Senator R. L. Perky were attorneys for Jones.

BAPTISTS ADOPT NEW TESTAMENT AS CREED HARD SHELLS LOSE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 17.—The straight and narrow path of right-ousness was wider today. Modern conditions made it necessary, declared religious leaders in session here.

The ban on progressive education and the Bible in the northern Baptist convention here yesterday. Baptist, to him his creed.

"The only requirement is that he accept the teachings of the new testament," said Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery of Rochester, N. Y., president of the convention.

Ultra-conservatives lost their fight to force through a resolution declaring: "You should, as well closer all your Sunday schools, you might as well stop all your preachers, you might as well close your prayer meetings, you might as well close your missionary societies, you might as well stop the programs of the missionaries and devote all your promotion money to printing only Methodism, the new testament," said Dr. J. C. Massee, the leader of the "hard shells," when the liberals won.

MEXICAN BANDIT AND EIGHT OF HIS ARMY SLAIN IN ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

MADMAN SHOT IN WYOMING

OSAIA, Neb., June 17.—Nebraska's greatest manhunt was in an end at Medicine Bow, Wyo., this morning, when Fred Brown, alias Gus Grimes, Omaha "maanacle maniac," was shot by Sheriff Saunders of Medicine Bow and captured.

Brown was shot through the body just above the heart, and is in a serious condition. He was taken to a Hawlins, Wyo., hospital.

Brown on May 29 chained two women, Miss Katherine McMahan, 16, and Mrs. Clara Peterson, 30, to his wheels on the outskirts of Benson and held them prisoners for 36 hours. He also chained W. E. Boyd, who tried to rescue the women. He drove away in Boyd's automobile after digging a grave and telling Boyd he would return, kill Boyd and bury him in the grave. Boyd succeeded in freeing himself, and notifying police.

Then the great manhunt started.

Brown in making his way to Wyoming is thought to have used at least eight automobiles, disarmed five officers who tried to arrest him, and shot their way to freedom on three other occasions.

Sheriff Saunders was at the head of a posse, which had been tracking Brown for several days. State Sheriff Gus Hyers of Nebraska who telephoned the information of Brown's capture to Omaha, police was in the posse. Deputy Sheriff Fleming rode with the posse when Brown was captured, it is understood.

Brown was shot after a desperate fight. Saunders headed Brown into three Winchester rifles and two revolvers, attachments weapons were found in the bandit's car. While Saunders was disarming Brown, the fugitive threw up his hands in token of surrender.

The posse overtook the bandit at 4 o'clock this morning. Brown's car, a Nash super-six, which he had stolen from a garage at Cheyenne with Saunders' men in an irrigation ditch.

The madman fought bravely, emptying his entire arsenals but failed to bring any of the posse.

Brown was positively identified by State Sheriff Hyers and Warden Preston of Nebraska penitentiary.

RAILROAD MEN MAY JOIN COAL MINERS IN JOINT FIGHT

CINCINNATI, O., June 17.—Rail union executives and United Mines officials will meet in joint conference here Tuesday, it was announced. It was decided today, in a brief preliminary conference attended by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and Hy. T. Jewell, representing the rail workers. The conference will discuss joint strike action between the two organizations.

In the meantime, Lewis will confer with miners' officials and Jewell will confer with railroad executives on special questions to be brought before the conference. One discussion made today was that the railroads would assist the striking coal miners by refusing to handle coal mined by non-union men.

Both chiefs agreed on would commit joint action and full work ers to idle, if strike still had not been settled.

The move for joint action of the two great labor organizations has been in the air since it was announced that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor would meet here next week. Labor chiefs have been arriving and reaching the federation headquarters today. Federation officials will closely follow the conference.

The possibility that the mine workers and rail unions would join hands, it was said today, is the greatest menace to the railroads since the railway labor board.

MARS NEARS EARTH BUT NO SOUND HEARD

Planets Are Nearer Each Other Than They Have Been for Nine Years; Marconi's Instrument Fails to Bring Any Message from Mars to Earth, but Sounds Heard.

(Copyright, 1922, United Press.)

ABOARD MARCONI'S PRIVATE YACHT ELETTRA, MEDITERRANEAN, June 17.—Mysterious sounds came out the ether to the powerful but delicately tuned receiving sets in Senor Marconi's private wireless cabin during his first night's visit on the Atlantic awaiting messages from Mars.

But the visiting planet, closer now than for nine years, failed to communicate definitely with the earth, the inventor said upon arrival off New York today.

"I listened scientifically all the time and night for two weeks, Marconi said in an exclusive interview with the United Press. "I had my own instruments ready so they would receive from anybody, no matter where, who might send.

"Several times I heard mysterious sounds I could not understand or explain. I do not think they were from Mars. In fact, I am not certain if Martians are trying to communicate. But I was there to do everything possible to record messages if any were sent.

"I shall continue to try to receive communications from Mars, however, night the chances of success.

"Perhaps, when the planet comes closest to us, I shall be on the job in your say, all day, and shall pay every attention to pick up possible messages from the Martians."

Senor Marconi was accompanied on his voyage, which had its inception in Canada, by Professor Pession, radio engineer from Mars, by Eric Payne and T. A. Mathieu, the latter a scientific engineer.

Marconi told of how the perfector of his wireless telegraph was constantly in his little cabin, which is the most elaborately equipped receiving room in the world—half convinced that messages from Mars might be forthcoming. Commodore Lauro was in charge of the yacht.

Marconi, standing by the wheel of the yacht as it swung on the harbor of Genoa, explained his invention, recently perfected, which enables him to send wireless waves in any given direction, instead of broadcasting. He declared he will be able to send 100 miles straight ahead to a receiver and be uninterrupted.

MEXICO WILL PAY OLD DEBT BUT U.S. MAY NOT RECOGNIZE

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The decision by the Mexican government to resume payments on its external debts will have no effect on this government's attitude toward recognition of Mexico, it was stated by a high administration official.

Recognition will be withheld until Mexico provides adequate protection for American property and rights within its borders, it was made plain.

This official pointed out that the agreement on meeting the external debts is purely a matter with private bankers and does not involve this government in any way.

Railroad Engineers Buy Own Mine To Revolutionize Coal Industry

Two of the homes erected for miners by the Coal River Collieries and Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who is the chairman of the collieries board of directors.

CLEVELAND, O., June 17.—Revolutionizing the coal mining industry through the establishment of a coal company with a soul.

This is the aim of leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which has just entered the coal mining business by a $2,000,000 investment in West Virginia and Kentucky coal mines.

And they make this venture, without fear of financial loss at a time when the coal mines of the country were tied up by a nation-wide strike! They feel that they have solved the problem of labor disputes and will have no trouble at their mines now or in the future.

Three main points in the brotherhood's program are:

Elimination of "watered" stock, promiotors' fees and preferred stock in the formation of the company.

Real living and working conditions for the miners and consequent removal of strike danger and endless discontent.

Elimination of middlemen's profits in distribution. The latter to be done by enabling consumers to organize their own co-operative local yards and to sell at wholesale to coal.

Thousands Own Stock.

The Coal River Collieries, as the new company is called, is owned by several thousand locomotive engineers throughout the country, who subscribed in small amounts for the $2,000,000 stock.

"The main problem in coal mining is men. Coal mining is dirty, hard and dangerous work. We can't hire men for centuries have been among the poorest paid of manual laborers. In addition to inadequate wages they also suffer from irregular employment. These are the main reasons why miners strike and why the industries of the nation periodically face a fuel famine."

This statement by Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the brotherhood and chairman of the collieries board of directors, is a basis for changes made in the system of running Coal River Collieries. Right at the outset before the company is even paying dividends, miners there are receiving a dollar a day more than the highest wage ever asked by the union in neighboring mines.

Modernize Mine.

Labor has been lightened by the installation of modern mining machinery, wherever possible.

The brotherhood has substituted for the lumber shanties and drab mining town, model villages with handsome little homes, schools, churches, stores, amusement buildings, thorough sanitation and all the facilities of a small city. No cattle are allowed to roam the streets, garbage is regularly collected without charge. Even the porches have been screened at company expense.

Why It Was Done.

This, say the engineers, is good business as well as good policy. Model living conditions, ample wages and machinery to lighten the labor will attract the highest type of miners, who in turn will produce more coal than would men who are sullen and undernourished.

The brotherhood has shown a good record as a business organization in entering upon the term. They erected and made a paying proposition of a skyscraper in Cleveland, they established the first co-operative national bank in America, and a short time ago announced the organization of a million dollar investment company as an auxiliary to the bank. This, too, is now a success.

Clerks in Treasury Department Will Not Be Removed for G.O.P.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—Republican officials will not accede to the petition, of more than 100 republican members of congress that about 125 alleged democrats in the treasury department be removed and republicans appointed to fill their places, it was authoritatively learned today.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and most of the treasury employes are said to be republicans, according to the information obtained today.

The republicans contend that the present administration is using democrats in important work by administering the civil service laws in such a way as to keep democrats in office.

If The United States Intervenes In Cuba

WASHINGTON, June 17.—United States intervention in Cuba again looms as a probability, according to political observers here.

Nothing else can save her—from the standpoint of financial chaos, which she is engulfed, it is believed.

Conditions reached a climax with the recent resignation of Secretary Gelabert, secretary of the treasury, with the declaration that Cuba cannot avoid bankruptcy.

General Enoch H. Crowder, special commissioner to the island republic from this country, has long been working on the problem of Cuban finances and has been unable to save the country has been blocked by a dilatory and self-seeking Cubat congress.

SECOND BIBLE EPISODE EXACTLY AS IN SCRIPTURES

Production of Cain and Abel Film Is Shown as in King James Version of Holy Scriptures, Says Director.

This story of Cain and Abel, which constitutes the plot for the second narrative in the Sacred Films, Inc., series, is reproduced exactly as it is told in the King James version of the Holy Scriptures; nothing has been added to it which is in any way the product of imagination on the part of man's brain, stated Raymond Wells, director of Sacred Films.

"We dedicate these stories to the world in the hope that they will properly inspire the beautiful things contained in the most wonderful of all the literatures," said Mr. Wells.

M'Manus Real Key To Brown's Climb

Youngster A Big Morgd Asset, Leads 2nd Stand Starts Seven-run Spurt.

By BILLY EVANS.

True to the predictions of the baseball experts, the St. Louis Browns are leading at the pace in the American league.

There are a number of reasons why the St. Louis Browns continue to make their blessing for the seven other clubs.

That is always essential, but a quick check-up on pitching.

It has a number of stars who work for the interest of the team. They add color and strength to the club.

At first there is the incomparable Sisler, back on the job, the high class consistent catching of Severeid and leading the pitchers in the brilliant Shocker. At short the sensational Gerber.

The outfield would be hard to improve upon. Tobin, Jacobson and Williams make a great trio.

Williams Adds Color.

Kenneth Williams, too, in the absence of Ruth, has stolen the thunder of the home-run kids, has added the proper touch of color to the team.

The substitutes and recruits have each played their part in rounding out the team to its present form. Yet, it seems the work of the first eight have taken the strength which has carried the Browns from a strong club into a dangerous pennant contender.

I have reference to Frank Ellerbe and Marty McManus with particular emphasis on young McManus.

McManus Real Star.

Ellerbe has plugged up the hole at third base which has existed ever since Fisher Time made the going rough for Jimmy Austin.

However, the work of Marty McManus at second base has been the sparkplug of the combination. The team, for fifteen games, the Browns in the inner defense of the Browns. McManus has finally filled it.

After being tried out at various positions with only ordinary success, Manager Pohl shifted McManus to second. That shift made the Browns, ended many of Pohl's worries, and gave McManus a chance to prove his worth.

Rides Through Rickets.

McManus, to use the slang of the ball field, is the "nuts." An injured arm greatly affected his work last spring and made him a target for the fans. He rode through it.

McManus can field and he can think. He is fast on a double play, and with the brilliant Gerber working alongside of him, makes a great combination around the keystone sack.

Better Type McManus is aggressive in a proper manner, is always trying to learn, and is constantly improving. He is destined to become a much better ball player than he is today, and he's a corker right now.

MORVICH HAS WON 12 RACES AND $169,000

NEW YORK, June 17.—Usly little Morvich, product of the Spreckels stable in California, sniffed at the aristocrats in a pleblan, has gone through twelve races without being defeated in a little over one year has won $169,200 for the man who picked him out of the gutter.

Today at Aqueduct, in the Carlton Stakes, Black Jiffo, 4-year old faces the great Snob II from the aristocracy of Kentucky and Next Saturday he faces all the best horses of the turf in the $50,000 Kentucky special at Latonia.

Should Morvich win both races his chances for the finest to go through an undefeated season and better the record of Man o'War as the greatest money winner on the American turf.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, June 17.—Morvich the sensational 3-year-old bay colt, defeated for the first time in the Carlton Stakes here today. Wakeaway won. Morvich was second; Snob II third. Time for the distance, one mile, was 1:38 2-5.

JACK DEMPSEY AND KEARNS HAVE QUIT IS LATEST REPORT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 17.—Unexpected announcement by Jack Dempsey of the dismissal of his trainer, Teddy Hayes, today, created a sensation in the champion's camp. The announcement, following the departure of Hayes for the east with Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, gave rise to further rumors of a split between Dempsey and Kearns which has long been smouldering under apparent good feeling, according to many observers.

Dempsey was terse in his comment.

"Hayes is working for Kearns" he said. "In the future I'll select my own handlers."

The current gossip today was that Dempsey was disgusted with several brawls about the training quarters one of which recently resulted in a damage suit by a caterer who claimed to have been beaten up by Hayes and some others.

Dempsey Is Ready to Meet Willard or Any Other Big Fighters

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Jack Dempsey, personally, is ready to defend his title any time against any fighter who thinks he has a look-in. This is his answer to charges by Jess Willard, former champion, whom he knocked out with a sensational beating at Toledo, that he is side-stepping Jess as a contender.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, however, is more conservative and says that Dempsey will fight anyone whom the public will accept as a logical competitor. Kearns has his eye on Tex Richard and the gate receipts.

Kearns today said that he had several offers talked with Willard relative to a fight during the next year, but said the Kansas City promoter admitted that he was not in condition to go into the ring immediately.

"Willard says he would be ready to fight in October," said Kearns. "In that event there would be plenty of time for Jack to go back to Michigan City and fight Bill Brennan and trim up Harry Wills at Jersey City before Jess would be in shape to box. A fight with Willard could easily be arranged in October at Boyle's Thirty Acres. If Jess can show he is in shape for it," Kearns asserted that the Bill Brennan fight looked good to him and that there was a good chance of this match being definitely arranged.

About the Wills-Hinds-Kearns affair, nothing, however, and there are well defined reports around Dempsey's training camp that Kearns is leaving for New York possibly today. Kearns has not announced this, though and would not confirm it.

ROADS YOU'D LIKE

If you drive a car, you'll be interested in this: When the government finishes up the roads it is helping build, the country will have a network of 180,000 miles of surfaced main highways, connecting Atlantic and Pacific coasts and our northern and southern borders.

To travel over that much road, you'd have to drive your car 30 miles an hour, 24 hours a day, for 250 days.

Road projects under way in 1921 amounted to nearly 65,000 miles—about 11 times across the continent and back. During the year Uncle Sam and the states built 11,980 miles of federal-aid highways.

Only a few countries developing a great civilization here in America, for road building is in all centuries the measure of progress.

The speed with which, compared with former civilizations, we have flung a network of good roads through our wilderness and mountains and across our plains, is little short of amazing.

The first state road-building program was started only 101 years ago in Kentucky, when Abraham Lincoln was a boy of 12.

Traffic on wheels originated in China and Egypt, where carts were first invented.

Those first carts moved on wheels and axles carved out of one solid piece of stone. It took centuries for man to conceive of the axle idea separate from the wheels.

The old Romans, master road builders, had 29 paved highways out of Rome. Over pavements of bricks and mineral cement they drove their lumbering chariots with iron-rimmed wheels.

Bicycle riders of those days indulged in reed-work baskets mounted on solid wheels about a foot thick.

Think of that when riding in a flivver seems bumpy.

What's battle for good roads has been going on for thousands of years, ever since prehistoric man cleared a path through the jungles.

It may be that the roads of the future will be in the air, with flying machines carrying passengers and freight.

That, however, is bound to be a long way off. It is good to dream about. But, meantime, let's keep our feet on the ground and get behind the good roads movement stronger than ever. Presently and, recreation come slowly over bad roads.

"Nita Walden? Here! Tell her there's a little reception room down there. We'll be with her right away."

Nita Walden was distractedly winking quick and smiling at the handkerchief in her hand as she stood out of the window at her car in Manhattan. Taylor was there with fulldoz grip at his pipe as if contemplating something distasteful.

Garrick closed the door as she rushed excitedly to him and seized his hand with fingers that clinched unconsciously.

"Guy, I am desperate. It's little Sarah—my little girl. You must find her for me. I can't take anyone into my confidence except you—and you, Taylor—and I don't know which way to turn. She didn't come home last night. I have walked and walked the floor waiting for her. I haven't even had a telephone call from her or anyone else. What shall I do? She never, never did this before. My little—my little girl. Oh, Guy, I could go mad in the anxiety and uncertainty of it. Help me, please!"

Garrick took Nita's arms and led her quietly back to a big seat in one end of the room. Gently he disengaged her hands and dried her eyes by concentrating on her answers.

There was a knock at the door. Garrick opened it and Jack McKay.

"Please, sir, I was just talking to a friend of mine, a chauffeur, who drives for one of the boys in the south shore, who lives up the street. Miss Ruth's car was wrecked out on the Island—run into a fence or something on an approach to one of the bridges on the Motor Parkway—over the embankment—or something."

"Was she hurt? Where is she?" Mrs. Walden's acute ears had caught even the modulated words, "Ruth."

"No one knows, ma'am. There was not a trace of anyone around the car—just the machine, left there."

"Oh, Guy, this is terrible, terrible. What shall I do? I'll go wild with fear if I don't hear something soon. Ordinarily Garrick had done the same.

"This is Glenn Buckley's brother," he presently heard her say. "What do you know where I can call him? You think he's at the Cecil. Thank you."

Garrick turned, without betraying where it was he had called. "They're some friends of Nita's. I thought perhaps Glenn might give us some information. Suppose, Nita, you have Taylor drive over to the Cecil—174 on Park Avenue."

They were rounding the Grand Central Terminal in traffic when Garrick suddenly beckoned over a newsboy and bought a couple of evening papers.

"Another robbery on Long Island," he commented, as he glanced down from the big headline, "The Parr estate in Roslyn—"

"The Parrs!" commented Mrs. Walden. "Why, they're friends of mine. They have a beautiful place, very wealthy people.

"Strange circumstance," went on reading Garrick. "A gang of two men." Then he checked himself.

"Why that's like the affair over at Gerardt the other night," supplied Mrs. Walden.

They found Glenn at the Cecil, looking a bit ruffled.

"Ruth, why, she's all right, Mrs. Walden," he hastened. "Yes, I heard something of the accident. Just the steering gear went wrong. But she was quick enough to get from under and she took the car safely instead of up the bridge and off—at least that's what I heard."

Then Garrick found Jack Buckley with questions, but he was guarded. He protested that he knew nothing more, winding up again with the response, "Ruth's all right, though."

"But how do you know she's all right?" insisted Garrick.

"Because I was talking to Vira over the wire when I made the application for the Cecil. Vira is in the rooms of the Champs Elysees at three and she said she was. That's all I know."

It seemed as though having delivered his assurance that Ruth was safe, Glenn was doing some rapid thinking on his own account. How had they located him here at the Cecil? It was true that the family lived here in the winter, but the more he revolved it in his mind, the more suspicious of Garrick he became and he began to shut up for fear of dropping another inadvertent remark like that about the Champs Elysees.

Glenn had not been such a bad guesser. It was nearly three when Garrick and Taylor sauntered into the lobby of the Champs Elysees, looked about cautiously, and proceeded to get under cover.

Before the tea room on the mezzanine floor hung a sign: "Radio Concerts Daily." Taylor noted it, and that the coast was clear, and selected a table in an angular corner, with a mirror so placed that it was a veritable periscope.

FIRST SELECTED A TABLE IN AN ANGULAR CORNER.

A broadcasting set, selection as they sat down at the table and ordered tea and crumpets.

It was not long after that several seconds after three that they saw Glenn come in, looking pale and tired, select a table at the other end of the room and drop into a chair facing the entrance.

Ten minutes later Vira hustled in, excited, and, seeing Glenn, paused—and worried. Glenn rose and greeted her, all animation, now that a girl was in question.

Garrick watched quietly, watching and wondering what to do, had fallen into a discussion of Ruth and Vira and Garrick was taking a great delight in sounding Dick.

"Do you know, I've been worrying a good deal about Ruth and leaving on that auto with him," Garrick changed the subject as he brought out duplex pencils that he made.

"Whose is it? Do you happen to have any note or letter from Ruth?"

Dick could not avoid the point-blank inquiry. He pulled a little note from his pocket. Inside the envelope Ruth had written and which Garrick looked up with a questioning smile. Dick flushed. "A note Ruth sent me before she went up." Then he stopped. He did not need to explain the dainty little bit of lace.

Garrick took the note and laid it down on the table beside the print. Then with his pencil he began noting the formation of letters, the capitals, a score of little characteristics.

"The writing is Ruth's, all right," he remarked, passing both over to Dick and at arm's length in silence pointing from one to the other with the pencil.

"I think I'm getting—like—Ruth," he said in a tone to reassure Dick. "She's a game kid—but she flies funny."

There was a pause. The concert number was now a solo, "Love's Old Sweet Song."

They sat for a moment as the words, clear, tender, distinct, transferred Grecian waves into waves of emotion.

Suddenly ah-h-h Bzzz-z-z-z-z Buzz-z-z-z.

"Paging Miss Ruth Walden from the Sea Queen. Meet me in the Pink Room tonight. Jack."

The dots and dashes ceased. Bzzzz Buzz-z-z. Then the solo started again.

Garrick looked into the mirror which gave him a reflection of Glenn and Vira. They had got all that. The dots and dashes had meant only information to meet in the room. To two people they were a message; to two others they were a mystery.

A few moments later, Glenn, paid the check and the two rose to go. Garrick hastily did the same.

"They will tell Ruth," he nodded to Dick as they went out, "she'll be there."

In the press in the lobby they managed to get just back of the new eavesdropping couple.

"Well, if Jack's here I—then Ruth is, too."

Glenn looked more troubled.

Garrick drew Dick over toward the news stand just in time to prevent the following seen following.

"No—Jack Curtis has come in again," ground out Dick.

"Curtis! Why, I thought you told me that was all in that Pink Room tonight," considered Garrick, with a glance at Dick as much as to ask, "Are you sure?"

Dick's face lighted up as if a sunray had been switched on.

"My wireless dictograph!" he exclaimed.

CHAPTER VI

THE WIRELESS DICTAGRAPH

"YOUR wireless dictagraph? Dully!" exclaimed Garrick. "We could use that little mechanical eavesdropper. Where is it?"

"In my laboratory."

Garrick's face fell. He glanced at his watch and then at the sun. "Yes sir, I think we can make it . . . we must."

Two hours later found them in Dick's own wireless workshop. It was the penthouse on his estate where he had done some remarkable things with wireless. It was true that Dick had had some wonderful equipment but all the equipment in the world would not have availed, for Dick had had the knack of inventive genius inherited from his famous father.

As he packed the parts Dick hastily enumerated them, his sending set, batteries, coils of wire, small portable transmitter and the receiver.

Garrick had been thinking out a plan for the installing of the dictagraph. On the street from the Inner Circle were two houses turned into studio apartments. He found the arrangement a fine one, the conversation was lucrative to both.

Dick selected and carried up to the roof what appeared to be very neat assembly as possible across the intervening roofs until they came to the roof of the Inner Circle.

It was a curious roof. In the center had been built a great concrete box as big as a room. There was no time to investigate that, however.

Garrick fished with a line down the chimney, by sounding, until he located the one in the Pink Room. Then, laughing down, he lowered the dictagraph transmitter until it must have hung a foot from the floor of the hearth back of the iron grill work under the mantel below in the Pink Room.

Meantime, on the roof, Dick had been busy placing his sending set and Garrick helped him complete the set-up.

As they had been at work on the roof, they had determined on planning the receiving end, up at Garrick's apartment which was only several blocks uptown.

At the Harlow Hall Dick worked rapidly, for it was now getting dark in spite of the length of the days. He unpacked the receiving end of his wireless dictagraph in the room, then went up on the roof and erected the portable aerial.

Carefully and deftly he began to tune up, now that this second installation was completed.

The Rattlesnake.

One of Roosevelt's young cowboy friends was coming home about twelve o'clock the other night on the south road, and as just as he got even with the graveyard the engine went dead. Pitcairn Island.

Pitcairn Island has an area of about two miles square. The population now is said to be about 200. The natural resources of the island, besides fruits, fishes and wild birds, probably would support a population of five hundred. The island has no intercourse with the outside world, with the exception of an occasional visit from a passing ship.

FAMOUS IDAHO PIONEER AND SOLDIER CALLED BY DEATH AT THE CAPITAL

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Taylor are in Boise today where they will attend the funeral of General George H. Roberts, who was Mrs. Taylor's father. Vincent of the Episcopal church and the military services by the C. A. I. and K infantry squad of infantry.

General Roberts was well known in Twin Falls. Besides Mrs. Taylor, his children were Miss Margaret Roberts, of Boise, Mrs. J. Milton Colton, of Philadelphia and Miss C. Roberts of Spokane. General Roberts came to Idaho territory in 1881 as attorney for the Union Pacific. For a time he was a law partner of former Governor James H. Hawley.
