AMERICAN IS ACCUSED OF THE MURDER

Sinn Feiner Who Killed Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson in London May Prove to Be Former American Citizen; Lloyd George and Many Other Prominent Englishmen Marked by Gang.

LONDON, June 23—Investigation to determine, if James O'Brien, one of the assassins of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, is an American citizen, was ordered today.

The police received information, unverified, that O'Brien is a United States citizen.

A great roundup of Sinn Fein suspects in London continued this evening. Seventeen captured last night who were to have been released, were held at the last minute and others are sought.

Lloyd George and Others Marked

Other prominent British officials, including Lloyd George, have been marked for assassination by an Irish rebel murder ring, the police believe today from disclosures following the murder of Sir Henry Wilson, Ulster defense chief.

The London police have captured sensational documents disclosing a conspiracy to kill several prominent personages, as well as plans for a campaign of outrages throughout England.

Inquest Comes Monday

The inquest into Sir Henry Wilson's murder will be held Monday.

Two more of the famed Red Hand are to be given a preliminary hearing in Westminster police court today and were remanded for a week.

Three factors led the police and military authorities to suspect that Wilson's death may have been only the first blow of a widespread murder plot against opponents of republican Ireland.

First, the Hamilton Fund.

Second, quantities of arms and munitions, including hand grenades and gelignite, within a house a stone's throw from where Sir Henry Wilson was shot down, was discovered.

Evidence of 10 men and a woman awaited for questioning last night.

Third, the "Red Hand" boasts of the shooting of Wilson who agree that apparent accomplices of the assassins were in the neighborhood and attempted to divert the chase following the murder.

It was authoritatively stated today that the assassins, James O'Brien and James O'Connelly, operated in conjunction with a large organization. Both were connected with the Irish republican Army in what capacity was not made clear.

O'Connelly had been employed as a night watchman at Richmond house terrace, the government buildings opposite the entrance to Downing street, on which Lloyd George's residence is located. Both murderers, it was revealed, had Croydon, near the aerodrome for some time.

Two Strikers Shot in Virginia When They Attack Sheriffs

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., June 23.—Two men identified as mine strikers, believed foreigners, were shot to death today in an attack on a traction line carrying deputy sheriffs, employes and officers of the Hudson Coal company.

The men were killed, when a mob of 150 strikers stormed the car, which was en route to the Lewis plant at Reynoldsville. The Lewis mine threatened as all open shop four days ago.

James M. Deem, a deputy sheriff, received a broken arm in the battle and a dozen others were hurt.

BODIES OF NEW BORN BABIES ARE BURNED NEAR SANITARIUM

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 23—Investigation is under way by police here today of charges that bodies of new born babies were burned in the yard of a local sanitarium.

The charges were made by Miss Margaret A. Weaver, 22, a student nurse employed at the sanitarium, who was supported in her statements by Miss Elizabeth Estelle Metcher, 19, another student nurse.

Mrs. Violetta A. Lott, 53, who runs the sanitarium, and her son, George Lott, were detained at police headquarters overnight and were still held today pending further investigation of the strange story told by the two girls.

No charge has been filed against them. Both deny the assertions of the student nurses, who admit they quarreled with Mrs. Lott before making the allegations.

JAPAN TRYING TO DODGE BAD TRADE CRISIS

Money Has Become Abnormally Tight in the Land of Nippon; After War Slump Has Just Struck Japan and Banks Are Refusing Loans and Labor Is Growing Discontented.

TOKYO, June 22.—The biggest brain trust in Japan is trying to work out means to avert the threatening wave of commercial and industrial depression.

Conferences and discussions were continuing and financial leaders were still hopeful of averting a Japanese business crisis. For weeks many have seen the handwriting on the wall in Japan as at home. Others while facing the fact of a present serious stagnancy and seemingly certain period of severe depression, believing that an actual crisis will be avoided.

Money has become abnormally tight. The Japanese currency has been stamped, some violently. Speculation and inflation, heritages of the war boom, are still unliquidated. If these boom manifestations are forced now many big concerns may close and many thousand of workmen be thrown out.

In a business and economic sense, Japan is realizing that the war is over. The slump that came in Europe over two years ago, and to the United States and most South American countries well over a year ago, is just beginning Japan in the spring of 1922. War prices and war profits are still being maintained here—artificially. But buying is getting slacker, new duty breeds are refusing to pay and most are unable to pay the exorbitant price. Japan is losing her foreign trade because her prices are in most cases higher than any other country.

With the banks refusing loans, buying striking, labor clique factions and more discontented, the exchanges demoralized and all the business world fearful, Japan is also filled with exceeding uncertainty.

Depression and readjustment are inevitable, every authority agrees. The question is whether the financial storm will be sudden and calamitous, leaving business wreckage and bankruptcy in its wake, or whether the readjustment can be conducted slowly and without such disaster.

Japanese newspapers are filled with demands that the government do something. But there is not much the government can do.

UNITED MINE WORKERS ARE NOT TO BLAME FOR MURDER, SAYS LEWIS

CINCINNATI, O., June 23.—The United Mine Workers are not to any degree responsible for the unfortunate murder of Lieutenant Jones, John L. Lewis, president, of the United Mine Workers, declared today in a formal statement issued here.

"The organization has never encouraged and does not condone lawlessness of any character. The officials of the organization are shocked and greatly deplore this tragedy."

Lewis blamed "agents' provocateur" for the trouble.

"We are not unmindful of the fact," he said, "that sinister influences have for some time been at work among our membership to incite and inflame the spirit of violence. The ranks of the strikers are deeply disturbed by the inability to provide violence and disturb public tranquility. We have frequently called attention to this fact, before investigating committees of congress and have cited innumerable instances where outrages and murders have been committed by agents of the coal operators.

"It is not true, as alleged, that the murderers from me addressed to State Senator William J. Secord, had any reference or connection with the disturbance at Herrin. The reading of the telegram, which has already been promised, will conclusively show that the entire responsibility for the provocation rests with members of the steam shovel men's union who were working in the strip mines in Williamson county, Illinois.

"The activities of the members of the steam shovel men's union had caused them to be practically expelled from the organization and the leaders of the steam shovel men's union had issued a statement to the effect that they would not be responsible for any violence that might be committed by their members."

INVESTIGATION MAY LOWER MEAT PRICES

Department of Agriculture Will Enforce Law Regulating the Packers and Stockyards and Thus Bring Price of Wholesale Meat Back to Pre-war Basis Is Statement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—Lower meat prices may result from an investigation into alleged trade practices by the department of agriculture in its enforcement of the law regulating the packers and the stockyards.

Reports have been received that commission men in the packing houses and stockyard centers still are exacting war-time profits.

If this is found to be true, these men probably will be called upon to answer profiteering charges.

Already the government has been quietly investigating practices in some of the stockyard centers, including Chicago, Omaha, Houston, St. Paul and Portland, Ore. Federal agents have learned enough to convince them that malpractices are prevalent in many stock exchange centers.

These overcharges by commission merchants work both ways, according to federal agents. They depress the farmers of adequate profits in encourage stock raising. Second they boost the price of meats, all along the line of distribution to the consumer.

I. W. W. TRIALS ARE NEARING CLOSE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 22.—Arguments in the trial of Tom J. Whitmore's men were completed at a night session of court last night. Judge James H. Wilson charged the jury this morning and the case will probably be submitted to the jury by noon.

E. S. Heith, attorney for the defense, declared in his arguments that no act of sabotage had been proven against the I. W. W. in the enactment of the criminal syndicalism act in 1919.

He made a bitter attack on Elbert Conty, George Hinderson and John Diamond, all witnesses for the prosecution, classing them as professional witnesses. He classed Conty as an escaped convict and Diamond a pervert.

Rioters May Not Be Punished Is Opinion

Southern Illinois Coal Fields Are Quiet and Investigation of Killing of Between Twenty-five and Forty Strike-breakers by Mob Has Started; Strike Sympathizers Assert That Guilty Strikers Will Not Be Punished and When Asked About the Riot, Reply "They Committed Suicide."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 23.—Williamson county will be bankrupt for fifty years as a result of rioting near Herrin, legal authorities here believed today.

The county is liable for damages and must pay not to exceed $5,000 for each death.

The total liability of the county will be approximately $500,000, officials believed.

MARION, Ill., June 3—Streets of southern Illinois mining towns were quiet today. The massacre of at least twenty-one strikebreaking miners was a closed subject.

A few small groups which formed on the streets of Marion, Herrin and other mining communities from which the mob of 2,000 was recruited, talked in hushed tones and usually in foreign tongues.

The strike sympathizers believe the guilty will not be punished.

"They committed suicide; "They attempted to escape and were shot, were the two explanations of the killing most frequently given anyone who was found that would talk.

The total number of bodies recovered was brought up to 25 today.

Seventeen were in the morgue at Herrin while the others were taken to their homes.

Death List May Reach 40

Although some reports reaching Colonel Samuel Hunter, representing the national guard here, placed the total death list at high as 40, the military officials believed all bodies had been recovered.

"One or two more bodies may be found in the woods but I believe most of those reported missing have escaped," Hunter said.

Bodies in the morgue were terribly mutilated. Arms or legs were missing and skulls were battered. Most of the dead still unclaimed were from Chicago. They were sent here by a labor agency, and no step had been made to return them today.

The inquest was postponed until next week.

John Doty, prosecuting attorney, stated he was quietly conducting an investigation and that he expected to have results within a few days.

Members of the mob of attackers were gathered from all the little mining communities in the southern section of the state, and Doty believed it would be practically an impossibility to bring them all into court.

Sheriff Thaxton and other county officials believed that the trouble was over; that there would be no need for troops.

"As long as they do not operate the mines, the men will remain peaceable," Thaxton said.

All Mines Closed

All mines were closed down tight today. About five had been operating in this district. Even the inclinable strip mines, which are allowed to operate under the union regulations, were closed.

The wounded were being cared for in the little hospital at Herrin.

Sixteen were suffering from gunshot wounds and bullet wound injuries. They also had been buried with clubs and revolvers. Deaths of several were momentarily expected.

Fifty-one Surrendered

With twenty-five known dead and sixteen injured and two known uninjured survivors, all, but eight of those who surrendered are accounted for.

Authorities believed they escaped, as thorough search of the district surrounding the mine failed to reveal any additional bodies.

Reports that several had been drowned were proven untrue when a small lake was dragged without result.

COLORADO BOY KILLED

LAMAR, Colo., June 23—Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McDowell of Lamar today were en route to Illinois to get the body of their son, J. H. McDowell, mine superintendent who was killed in the riots near Herrin Ill, yesterday. McDowell was well known here.

WILHELM AS A PLOTTER

(By CARL D. GROAT.)

DOORN, Holland.—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is devoting himself to plotting—and planting.

At least, so runs the story among well-informed inhabitants of this peaceful Dutch village, who must depend for their information upon the meager tidbits of gossip and news that penetrate to the outer world through the high barbed wire fences that surround Haus Doorn.

The natives say that the former German ruler's guest list proves conclusively that his time is spent largely in figuring out how a monarchy, perhaps not his own, but that of one of his kinsmen, can be restored in the "Vaterland."

The folk who visit him are those known as "Kaiser treu;" that is, true to the old regime. They are the Pan-German militaristic group, the old professors, who still preach kaiserism and panger-manism to their classes, and men of the cloth, who are first and last adherents of the kaiser regime.

With them, the old kaiser is very busy.

His other avocation is planting.

In fact, he has turned gentleman farmer in the last few months.

His former pastime of sawing wood is still maintained, but he is showing recently a keener interest in horticulture. He has had built back of the Haus Doorn a special building where he experiments in raising flowers and plants. And, the story runs that he is quite adept with his farming and that he has developed one or two new variations in the flower world.

The kaiser's day is divided thus, as a rule—

9 a. m.—Saws wood and spades his garden patch.

Lunch.

Then plants flowers and plants.

3 to 7 p. m.—Devotes himself to writing.

His is a comparatively lonesome life. But he is virtually never alone, for his German guests—the old military men, the professors and the preachers—are always coming to pay their respects and to talk over what can be done to bring back the "good old days," as they term the monarchistic time.

The Doornites do not believe that the kaiser's plotting is going to bear fruit at once. They do not believe that, vain as he may be, he would attempt now to return to Germany, where he is not beloved. But they do see in the stream of generals, admirals and so on, the laying of a plot, the purpose of which is to one day restore Hohenzollernism to the Fatherland. On the day before my visit here, Admiral Trotha and a half dozen clergymen had been the kaiser's guests.

TARIFF BILL WILL RUIN U.S. SAYS SENATOR

McCumber Tariff Bill Is Declaration of Commercial War on Germany and Will Prove Disastrous to the United States Says Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Who Is a Prominent Democrat.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—The McCumber tariff is a declaration of redmercial war against Germany—a war that will prove disastrous to the United States, Senator Hitchcock, democrat, Nebraska, declared in the senate today.

This bill was framed on the false supposition that Germany can or will compete with American industries," Hitchcock said.

"We sell her four times as much as we did before the war. The German government, after straining every nerve last year to get enough to raise her exports to one-third of what they were before the war."

Hitchcock attacked what he called "this gigantic bugaboo" of the republicans to "allding" the tariff by saying it was necessary to protect American industries against cheap German-made goods.

"German wages have increased enormously since the war and are continuing to increase," he added.

"Wages there have been multiplied 28 times since May, 1914."

CHICAGO, June 22.—Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, noted gland doctor, today stated that he "used no part of another man's body" in a recent operation on Harold F. McCormick.

DENVER, Colo., June 23.—Despite the 10 per cent freight rate reduction, authorized by the interstate commerce commission last month on intermediate business, officials of the Denver and Salt Lake railroad declared today that the road probably will refuse to put the reductions into effect.

R. W. Hallowell, vice president of the road, declared that the company probably will refuse to put the reductions into effect on the ground that the commission has no power to order the reductions.

"The commission has the power to suggest reductions, but not to order them," Hallowell declared today. "The commission has no power to order reductions in rates on intermediate business, and we probably will refuse to put the reductions into effect."

S. S. S. Fills Out Hollow Cheeks, Thin Limbs!

Men and women—whether you will ever build yourself up to your normal, patriotic weight depends on the number of blood-cells in your blood. That's all there is to it. It is a scientific fact. If your blood-cells are lower than they ought to be you will be run-down, thin, your chest will be ill, disorder, and perhaps your face will be known out with dark circles, blackheads and eruptions. S. S. S. keeps your blood-cell factory working full time, it helps build new blood-cells. That's why S. S. S. builds up thin, run-down people, it puts fine flesh on your bones, it rounds out your limbs, it gives you new fitness, the whole body. It puts the "pink" in your cheeks, and it puts the lustre in the eyes, and it took Father Time by smoothing out wrinkles in his face and even by "plumping" them out. S. S. S. is a remarkable blood-builder. While you are getting plump, your skin eruptions, pimples, blackheads, acne, discoloration, rash, better, blotches are being removed. Its medicinal ingredients of S. S. S. are guaranteed purely vegetable. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

Look for "realism" in life, not in books nor upon the stage.

The Edmonton, Canada, penitentiary has been closed for three years under prohibition.

Opposition to prohibition in its present character is essentially rebellious and no self-respecting citizen can afford to identify himself with it.

Many a grouchy old fellow who has lived in southern Idaho for years believes that the history of the world would have been changed had he married a different woman.

Twin Falls people are sewing more and more as the days go by the importance of having The Times in their home. Our subscription lists have been growing rapidly of late and the public enjoys reading an up-to-date, progressive, evening paper with all of that day's news in it.

A parade was planned recently in Buhl of all the men who didn't use profanity, but it was called off because one of the men was sick and the other didn't want to march. How large a parade would we have on such terms in Twin Falls. We doubt whether the faithful two could be found here.

Now here come two state legislatures and threaten to take all the joy out of life by prohibiting these glands from being transplanted from youth to old age. California and Illinois threaten to stop this traffic by legislation. It seems to us that such an arrangement is a good deal for the physicians if the old fellows wish to spend their money this way not let them go.

RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION

No right-thinking American is prejudiced against an immigrant because he is an immigrant. He is entitled to think that the original settlers of the country bequeathed to it such moral and political standards and methods as to constitute a world asset. He is also entitled to believe that the dilution of these original race qualities by unlimited immigration of every kind is to their detriment character, is unwise.

The complaint against present-day immigration, however, is that it is gravely affecting the mental and moral equipment of that average American who may be thought of as a composite of all the virtues and shortcomings of all Americans.

This does not apply, of course, to all immigrants. We have had thousands of them and are getting thousands of them who are of admirable character, but the majority of them are so inferior as to threaten the future of the country.

The North American Review for May has an Article by Dr. Arthur Sweeny reporting further the results of the mental tests in the army during the war. In our army 350,000 men of foreign birth were put through the test, with the startling result that 45 per cent were found to be below 11 years of mental age.

Those examined for the army were grouped according to their mental age as follows:

D— Very inferior, 7 to 9 years.
D Inferior, 9 to 11 years.
C—Low average, 11 to 13 years.
C Average, 13 to 14.5 years.
C+ High average, 14.5 to 16 years.
B Superior, 16 to 18 years.
A Very superior, 18+ years.

MENNONITES HAVE STRANGE EXPERIENCE

The Mennonites are the followers of Menno Simon, a contemporary of Martin Luther. He advocated some very sound doctrine for his day; perhaps he had a further insight into true evangelical truth than any of the reformers of his times. But there was one peculiarity of his which has characterized his followers to this day; they object to oaths and all force. The saying of Christ to "resist not evil" they take in the most liberal sense and they will not bear arms nor arrest any one, but submit to whatever happens with the best grace they can.

A strange experience has lately befallen these people—an experience that should teach them a few truths about law and force.

Not long ago a colony of Mennonites left Canada to settle in Mexico. An initial colony of 1500 moved first and 15,000 were contemplating going later. The Mennonites had had collisions with certain parts of the civil laws of Canada and their desire to be independent is said to be one of the prime reasons for their emigration to Mexico.

They bought land in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, and moved in. They held to the non-resistent views—and with what results! They found the district of Chihuahua full of wild outlaws, robbers, and bandits, who stripped them of nearly everything movable and about all they have left is the naked land, which they cannot do anything with, because the Mexican government cannot protect themselves. So the 1500 are about to return, the report says, to Canada. It seems they had rather suffer some inconveniences under Canadian rule and be safe and hold peaceful possession of their property than to live their peculiar kind of life where bandits are their chief neighbors. Even if they will not protect themselves, they like to live under a government that can and will protect them.—The Trumpet.

It was not three minutes later when Dick received another shock. Mrs. Walden had hastened to pour out the news of the Hitmarch scandal, as far as she knew it, to Garrick.

"You don't. It won't do a bit of good. You'll do harm, in your present mood. Don't be so worried over Ruth, Dick. Take it from me. She'll come out all right. I think that little girl knows very well what she is doing."

"That devil, Jack Curtis" crowed out Dick. "They're two of a kind. I'll bet if we could raid his room at the hotel, we'd get something—maybe a picture of Ilse—with the hat. I think that was his camera after all that you pinched."

At the hotel they learned that Curtis had cleaned out everything that forenoon, had checked out, and had disappeared.

Over the telephone Garrick called the Pure place. Beth was not at home but her mother, with considerable relief, replied: "Miss Lapsat Miss Larue left rather hurriedly for the city this afternoon. I believe she expects her mother from the coast."

"Mrs. Walden said that Curtis had started down the Seattle Shore road when Vario left. Ruth looked back and saw him."

Garrick and Dick were whizzing down the turnpike, Dick with his eyes glued to the road back of them for motorcycle cops.

Locks were no impediment to Garrick. He had taken a course with his friend Houdini. While he couldn't get out of everything, he could get into nearly anything.

Glenn's garage was easy. As they closed the door, they looked about in amazement. It was indeed an "unbonded" warehouse. There were cases enough to have meant a tidy little fortune. In one corner where they had been hastily dumped lay the product of the looting of the Parr cellar.

"Undisturbed. Too bulky," muttered Garrick. That ammonia has been here."

He jumped down in the pit. A moment later he boisted himself up. Without a word he handed Dick a little jewel case. Engraved on it were the words, "Antoinette Parr." It was empty.

"Everything's gone—all the small portable property."

"And what do we do? Hand it over to the police?"

"No, no. I must get Glenn and the others some sort of immunity for what they didn't do. They don't deserve to—they're just wise young fools." Garrick thought a moment. "You see, the net result of some of our new commandments seems to be to make various grades of lawbreaking fashionable, smart. Only this is a bit extreme."

He rowed over to the telephone. It was working and he called the Astra Agency of private detectives to furnish a guard until the ringleader was caught and he was ready to make final disposition of the case.

Dick's alert eyes, as they were waiting, discovered a wireless set on a worktable in the rear. Out of the back window he could see the antenna from the garage to the house. Mechanically he started tuning up. The agency men were a long time in coming.

"Holy Judas priest!" Dick was so startled he was speechless. "Someone's broadcasting what they call news. It . . . it can't be. It must be some crazy amateur. Ruth Walden, the heiress! has eloped with Jack Curtis!"

Garrick seized the phones. "Amateur—perhaps; crazy, no!" Garrick listened and continued. "Did you ever stop to consider the radio as a means for slander? Talk about your poison pen writers! Science has put into the hands of blackmailers the most dangerous of weapons. Your story is spread to a million fans. And there's not a chance of tracing it to any individual."

"There isn't? The devil there isn't, I can. I will!" exclaimed Dick. "If I keep it up."

Everything he needed seemed there on the workbench. It was comparatively simple, a "loop" as it is known, copper wire wound eight times around a frame four feet square. He hung it from the ceiling. He could turn it in any direction. He connected up the receiving set. Then he began turning the loop slowly.

"A directional receiver," explained Dick. "It must be orientated toward the broadcaster. Really it's a radio compass."

By the time the Astra men arrived reception had ceased. Every few minutes a new message came. They left the men in charge and climbed in the car. The direction had been cast by a little south.

"Looks as if it might be down Duck Harbor way!" exclaimed Dick finally, aghast.

At Duck Harbor, abeamp, the direction of the strange message changed to the northeast sharply.

"I believe you traced out the

sender," said Garrick, as they looked out over the empty harbor. "But we're too late. The 'Sea Vamp' has gone! The birds are flown!"

"Where is Vario?" he asked quickly.

"She went out with Glenn and Vira, Jack and Ruth, early this morning," answered her maid. "Oh, I've marked 'Mr. Garrick. Personal,' didn't I? Well, I'll open it then. There was told me you'd do anything again without letting you know. I've gone to the 'Sea Vamp' to destroy the engine so they can't move it away until tomorrow. Ruth."

"But the 'Sea Vamp' has gone!" Nita Walden screamed her incredulous.

"Ruth has been carried off on the 'Sea Vamp'!"

CHAPTER X

BROADCASTING

Nita Walden was overwhelmed by her daughter's peril. Ruth's other companions were nothing compared to this. Up and down the room she paced, choking back her sobs wailing for Garrick's aid. Some sentiments she would stand before Ruth's picture wondering what was happening to her. Then, remembering, she would try to calm herself and relax in an easy chair in a vain effort to concentrate on Ruth as of that might bring her back.

She was frantic when Garrick arrived.

"If it's a ransom they want . . . I'll pay a million!"

"Pay a million! Pay nothing, yes . . . a million. Don't send them, they save her . . . put on a cent of it so!"

The room telephone rang. Dick answered it.

It's Glenn downstairs, with Dr. Darling of Stony Brook." Dick said no more but Garrick understood and excused himself.

In the rapid fire of questions it appeared that Ruth had been getting more and more anxious to do something. Vira had confessed to her that she had seen Garrick and when Glenn arrived he told of his meeting on Main Street and Garrick's message.

They had agreed that the first thing to be done was to fix it so that the "Sea Vamp" could not be moved away and Ruth had insisted that she be driven over there that evening so she could disable the engine and make it impossible. They had agreed.

"But why?" asked Dick.

"Why? Don't you get it? The 'Sea Vamp' was really the footing for Garrick's plan. Ruth thought that Dick and everybody were away and it was a good time to do what she wanted. We got a canoe and paddled out. There wasn't a sound. We climbed aboard and went down to the little engine room. It was beastly dark. I, Lay Tumbling, asked for the switch—the next thing I knew I heard a scream from Vira—then a pounding—something—and I found myself in the water. Ruth had put me and Vira down into the engine room and locked the hatch. Must have been some cold and overboard, for managed to get to the other shore and some people in a bungalow got me to bed."

"Who was it?" asked Dick. "More than one?"

"I don't know—but I think so. I had a vague feeling there were a couple at least back of me."

There were no formalities necessary at the Radio Central for a connection like Garrick and Dick, who were a constant frequenter of the place.

"Is it about the right height? You prefer to stand? All right. How's that? Now, don't forget—talk directly into the mouthpiece—don't shout." Keep up your voice. About three inches away from the transmitter. There. Now, wait until I tell you."

The minutes seemed eternity to Nita. Would it never be possible for Garrick to get over on wireless to the owner of Ruth and Vira? "All set?" the attendant called. "Let's go."

"Ruth Walden and Vira Gerard of Nonquantue, Long Island, were abducted in a power boat from the 'Sea Vamp,' from Duck Harbor, Long Island, tonight, about nine o'clock."

Garrick paused distinctly after each word to give a brief description of the house boat and followed with a description of Ruth and Vira, and his own suspicion that the 'Sea Vamp' was now somewhere in the South Atlantic, probably on its way south.

"Always the radio is a temperamental thing, that is, if you can say that inanimate things are temperamental; there's a natural depravity about it, but I think conditions are fine, just now."

Garrick turned. It was Professor Vario who had just heard he was gone and had hurried into the building at the sound of his name. At least when nobody was around to appreciate it and do so good when it's all parked. The radiophone was his delicate tubes and controls sometimes ties down on the job at the wrong moments. But we don't have much of that trouble here."

Many inquiries and a promise to put the whole of the Rock Lake equipment at their disposal followed.

"Now, Dick," exclaimed Garrick irreverently, outside, "I've got that first call off. Now you can have your way. To the city!"

AT THE THEATRES

MONKEY IN ACTOR OF NO MEAN ABILITY AT ORPHEUM

A monkey used in Larry Semon's comedy, "A Pair of Kings," which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre today, shows almost human intelligence. He steals a passport from Larry, escapes over to the railing of the boat, apparently reads the document, decides it is no good, tears it up and throws it away.

The act is similar to others done by apes but when a moment later the monkey discovers Larry in peril high up on the derrick of the boat, the monkey grabs a knife, climbs the boom, cuts the rope and sends Larry head first into the ocean.

It is a thrilling scene with a comedy twist.

In "The Single Track" which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre today, Corinne Griffith forsakes for the nonce the life of luxury and ease of a Celibate or young society matron and plunges into the life of a Western settlement with all its attendant frontier customs and excitement.

The word "alkaline" owes its origin to honey. The ancient Romans used honey in great quantities, and as much of it was adulterated with wax, he was prosecuted as honey mar who sold his honey pure. In this way the word "alkaline" passed into our language, for it signified "one even."

The Charter oak of Hartford, Conn., in the hole of which the colony's charter was hidden by Captain Wadsworth, survived until 1856, when a storm destroyed it. Under this tree patriots of the colony met and made their pronouncements for freedom.

Historical Essay Prize of Oregon Is Gained by Girl Who Comes to T.F.

Miss Dorothy Clapp of Grant's Pass, Ore., who is here visiting her mother, Mrs. F. J. Dell at 813 Shoshone street and who expects to remain and finish her high school education in this city, has just been awarded two prizes for the best historical essay of the year written by anyone under 18 years of age by the Oregon Historical society.

Miss Clapp, who was a junior in the Grant's Pass high school, wrote the essay on the subject, "The Discovery of the Columbia River." This won a $5 prize in the local school and also won the $10 prize and the grand medal from the state society.

Leo F. Bracken Is in Exciting Raid in His Work for Prohibition

Federal Prohibition Officer Leo F. Bracken, who left here some time ago to take charge of the work in the northwest division of states, had a lively time at McCleary, Washington, when he raided a pool hall there, judging from accounts published in Aberdeen papers.

When the federal agents made the raid a number of men grabbed guns thinking that it might be a repetition of a holdup that took place there some months ago. The officers convinced them that they represented the government, so they subsided. Later friends of the pool hall man got together and assumed a threatening attitude but did nothing worse than to shoot off some big firecrackers under the noses of the officers. These did no harm. The mob at one time cut the electric wires lighting the pool hall. The proprietors were released on $5,000 bail.

SUIT OVER MATRICES DECIDED BY PROBATE JUDGE DUVALL TODAY

Paper Bought to Set Aside Contracts Between Man Where Low Big and Bakers Claimed $300—Get Judgment for $100.

The Bonnet-Brown Sales service, a corporation that sells matrices to newspapers, got judgment for $100 and costs before Probate Judge O. P. Duvall this morning, against the Buhl Republican. The company made a contract to furnish the paper with matrices for a year for $300. When they arrived it was discovered that they did not fit the forms of the paper. None of them were used and the paper refused to accept the contract. The company claimed that the goods were as agreed on and demanded the carrying out of the contract. After hearing the case Judge Duvall held that the company was entitled to the loss it would suffer by reason of cancellation, which he held to be $100.

193,000 Fords Are Ordered During Month Says Representative

Demand Exceeds Supply with Mill Running at Full Capacity; Meeting of Dealers Will Convene at 4 p. m. Today.

That the people of this country are not all "going broke" is indicated by the sales of the Ford Auto company, is the opinion of M. S. Gilley, the traveling salesman for the Ford Auto company, who is here today attending the meeting of the Ford dealers, which will convene at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the district semi-annual gathering. The Western Auto company handles the business here.

"We are turning out 150,000 cars a month," said Mr. Riley, "and the demand is greater than the supply. Last month we had demand for 193,000 or 43,000 more than we could supply. Never has the company had so good a business as at present."

There will be 18 representatives here from Rupert, Burley, Buhl, Filer, Oakley, Jerome, Gooding, Wendell, Jailey and Fairfield.

Hale H. Young, manager of the Ford Motor company's place of business at Salt Lake City, and V. H. Eckman of the Lincoln company here, arrived here last evening, traveling in a Lincoln car. There will be a banquet this evening.

Peoples Players Stage Splendid Home Talent Production Last Night

The People's Players presented a very fine home talent play last evening at the Orpheum theatre. They staged "Keeping an Eye on Hubby," in a remarkable fashion for a home talent troup. Only a fair sized audience greeted the players but those who attended were more than pleased with the show. It was a laugh from start to finish and the many peculiar situations were well presented by the various persons taking these parts.

It is never fair to the other members of a cast to give one particular individual more credit than the others but the work of G. F. Neill was so excellent that it is worthy of special mention. He took the part of the "henpecked" husband, or Theodore Bender in such an unusual fashion that every one who witnessed the play was more than pleased with his work. Mrs. D. F. Biggs, who coached the play and took the part of Josephine Bender, his wife, was very much of a dictator among her sex and wielded her umbrella in splendid fashion. Mrs. "Dixie Hollie" StepKen as the attractive daughter of the Benders, took a difficult part in an unusual manner. T. C. Macauley as Alfred Hastings, was greatly worried throughout the evening by his arduous tasks of making love to several young ladies at the same time and also looking after his uncle's magician. He took a leading part and handled it well. Mrs. G. F. Neill as "Fifi Orantanski," the opera star, did her part in splendid style. Carl Edwards is always good on the stage and lived up to his usual reputation for high class comedy last evening. Lester Ashton as "Egbert Pettibone" was very much at home on the stage and did a difficult role in superb manner.

Miss Blanche Adams as Miss Helen Wolfe, Rex Beach, C. N. Leavitt and Donald Crow took part in a fashion which would do credit to past masters of the stage.

ADDITIONAL

Miss Marie Leece at her home on Elizabeth boulevard Thursday evening entertained seven girl friends at dinner. The centerpiece, a large bowl of pink roses, pink rose place cards and candles added much to the attractiveness of the table. The favors were pink satin bags which, when opened, let the cat out, announcing the coming marriage of Miss Leece and Dr. Orrin A. Fuller of Jerome, on June 29.

The evening was spent with games and music. The guests were the Misses Bessie Carlson, Ruth Harvey, Avis Rudolph, Dorothy Fuller and Berwice Leney and Lillian Hardman of Hollister.

HUNDRED KIDDIES IN PARK ENJOY HOUR OF STORY EVERY FRIDAY

Annual Affair Staged by the Twin Falls Public Library Is Largely Attended and Greatly Enjoyed—Two Classes are Formed.

About 100 children spent two hours in the park this morning at the weekly story hour, conducted under the auspices of the Twin Falls public library. The hour was devoted during every minute and still the children were anxious for more. The exercises are conducted under the cool shade and made interesting every minute.

The children are divided into two classes, both for play and story telling. The play comes first and lasts an hour. Then comes the story hour, strictly so-called, which also lasts an hour. The exercises start at 9 and end at 11 o'clock.

The teachers are Miss Edith Dysart, Miss Grace Tolrill and Miss Ruth Beauchamp, assisted by Miss Beulah Duke and Harriet O'Neal of the girls reserve.

Scouts Have Great Time at Their Cabin

That boys of Troop 6 of the Boy Scouts will return tomorrow afternoon from the cabin, it was stated by A. Dorman Johnson, who has charge of the troop early this week and who left Lynn Stewart in charge when he returned. The boys had a splendid time and indulged in all sorts of games, sports, track meet stunts and feasting bouts.

Troop 7, under the command of W. E. Nixon, will go tomorrow and the same truck will bring the boys back now out at the camp.
