Mrs. O. T. Bunce, Society Editor, Phone 399-R.

On next Wednesday evening the members of the Episcopal Guild will give a reception for Pearl Bailey, who is returning to the room of Mrs. Glenn Baird, who is leaving this parsonage to take up work in Seattle. All church and all of Mr. Baird's friends will be welcomed to this party.

Mrs. Alice Hester entertained at her home on Sunday evening Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Charles Clegg, Mrs. W. A. Patrick, who is moving to her home in Pocatello. At the close of a delightful social evening the house was filled with the fragrance of flowers assisted by Mrs. W. A. Patrick. Those present were Mrs. Charter, Mrs. Clegg, Mrs. W. A. Patrick, Mrs. J. M. H. Groome, Mrs. C. W. Mead, Mrs. W. W. Humphrey, Mrs. D. D. Atwood, Mrs. W. L. McDaniel, Mrs. E. C. McDaniel, Mrs. C. A. Ostrander. The house was profusely decorated with large bouquets of roses, asters, sweet peas and other flowers.

The Henry C. Clegg Club No. 16, Lodge No. 10, G. A. R., will meet at the home of Mrs. W. A. Patrick, 123 5th Avenue east. There will be initiation.

Deserves to Be Remembered:
With the exception of the people probably the most famous book ever written on the "Arabian Nights" was given to the western world by a French scholar whose name is almost entirely forgotten. This writer was a clever and astute of oriental matters, who died in 1710. He translated the work in its original Arabic while living in Constantine. His translation was excellent. Olearius' learning was prodigious, and his extensive travels in the East made him probably the foremost oriental scholar of his time. He also translated many lengthy and learned works on the subject, every one of which passed into complete oblivion. His translation of the "Arabian Nights" is still extant, however. In it he states that all he can do with his life, give the world a work which will deserve to be read forever.

Fur Basis in the Pacific.
The fur seal, which has its home on the Pribilof Islands, a barren group in the Bering Sea, disappears from the islands at the beginning of the winter, and throughout the summer are scattered over the waters of the North Pacific. Some of them never leave the icy seas about Alaska, but others venture as far south as the coast of California. They return to their home when spring comes, instinct leading them back to the desolate little islets.

Lots of Democrats have been causing The Statesman to live for over 80 years, taking it all that time—still, taking it.

WHY?
Just because it tells the news honestly.

The only reliable history of the Democratic Party in Idaho is in The Statesman. It is the only paper now leading Democrat if this is true.

All the best way to know about The Statesman is to read it for yourself.

Not Sufficient.
P. O. Watts, St. Louis, Mo., said:

"Our national and international population and our industrial life is so diversified that a surprisingly large measure of prosperity can be maintained even though there are industrial conditions in other nations. The great danger is, however, that we shall not be able to maintain our self-sufficiency, for with our increasing surplus of manufactured goods and capital we can no longer live up to the full measure of prosperity until Europe and other nations with whom we trade, or want to trade, have been restored to normal industrial, political and social peace."

Thomas H. McAdams, Hutchinson, Kansas, vice president, Merchants' National Bank, said: "The great association of the American Bankers Association, said:

"Our commanding problems are inter-industrial controversy and interest, industrial controversy and financial difficulties abroad. In the solution of these questions the banker has a distinct community position and I would call upon the obligation as counselor and adviser to the public of the nation."

He advocated state supervision of every vote cast for a strike or lockout; "to insure a secret ballot free from intimidation or misrepresentation, and its honest count."

THOR

Electric Washer

We are glad to announce for October the most liberal terms we have ever been able to offer on the Thor Electric Washer. More than half a million housewives already know the pleasure and satisfaction of washing their clothes in the wonderful Thor, and before the month of October ends, several hundred more women in Southern Idaho will be using this splendid machine.

No five dollar bill you ever spent will bring such returns in health and happiness as the $5.00 initial payment that will bring the Thor into your home. One wash day will make you wonder how you ever got along without it.

The Most Durable, Efficient and Convenient of all Cylinder-Type Washers

Several different principles of washing are employed in the various types of electric washers, but the cylinder principle, such as is embodied in the Thor has proven the most practical and satisfactory. The cylinder which revolves forward and back, carries the clothes over and over, dropping them into the suds with every revolution. This is the most gentle, yet most effective action for thorough clothes cleaning, because all the clothes are swished through the water, none being left in the bottom of the tub.

The Balance
on Easy Terms of $6.75

a Month

Why break your back over a wash tub or struggle for hours with a hand washer? Why have wet feet, red hands, and a torn-up house on washday when every disagreeable feature of clothes washing can be eliminated with a Thor Electric Washer! One wash day with Thor in your home will be a revelation to you. Phone or call for a demonstration and place your order at once to insure prompt delivery.

There is a growing belief that the buyer of booze is more contemptible than the bootlegger, and this is about as mean a thing as you can say of a man—American issue.

Twin Falls welcomes the teachers here today for the opening of their five-day institute. We hope these instructors will enjoy our city this visit that many of them will decide with that this is the best place in all the world to live and some day in the dim distant future come here to teach their home.

A meeting of vital importance to every part of the state will be held this week in Rupert when the Anti-Tuberculosis convention for Idaho meets there. We have heard the statement made that one death in every eleven is caused by this dread disease and, if this is true we should all be interested in the eradication of tuberculosis.

Why not surprise the pastor some Sunday with such an excuse as this: "My intentions were bad today, but I rose so early and so fast rested, I was so free from troubling headaches and severe colds, and there was an utter absence of company, that I just couldn't stay away from church."

There comes a time in the life of every newspaper when it must allow its hand and this is the case right here in Twin Falls. The Times has had the largest circulation in this county for several years but soon clever bluffing by the other daily paper has evaded the issue. Now have the figures which show that The Times has 1,000 more than any other newspaper in this county and that this circulation is steadily growing as shown by the list of new subscribers as published Saturday. Why not have the names and number to the morning paper published if it has grown so much since going to the morning field. This is the proof so let's have the facts.

There are a great many mysteries in this world which will perhaps be cleared up in the next but as we sit and ponder we are led to speculate on some things which have happened at our very doors. Once upon a time a man in Twin Falls went out and sold all stock to his neighbors and friends in this city and measured them that it was a good investment. That stock proved to be of no value whatever and the good people lost the money they invested.

Assuming that there were ground for Henry Fort's accusation that the Interstate Commerce commission by its distribution order is "playing into the hands of coal profiteers," this would be small ground for concluding that the commission has "cultivated its usefulness." An ordinary person would be taxed with hasty judgment, not to say pre-judgment, in unreservedly condemning an important government agency for a single error of policy. But it may be remembered that Mr. Fort's railway has previously been treated by the commission with strict impartiality when it has asked for special favors. This may have happened again. At all events, Mr. Fort's diagnosis of a lack of originality in beginning to iterate the interstate commerce commission as soon as he becomes a railroad owner. The old railroad management and Wall street, for both of which he professes distaste, have been doing that for years.

FREIGHT RATES ON FARM MACHINERY

The farmer has been wondering for some time why farm machinery does reach the pre-war level and the answer is found largely in the fact that the freight rate on this machinery has not come back to a pre-war level. The following editorial remarks from one of our exchanges sets forth fairly well the facts of this equity.

Summarized, the defense is that farm machinery would be as cheap today as in the pre-war days were it not for the fact that freight rates take up the difference that buyers must pay. In other words, while steel has come down, being a heavy commodity and the main essential to the construction of farm implements, it carries the burden of freight which must be added to the manufacturer's price before delivery can be made through the retailer.

The argument is put forth that steel is back to 37 per cent above pre-war prices, which compares favorably with other commodities, while steel taken collectively, are 52 per cent above pre-war prices. Steel is below the average of other commodities. If we admit that this is true, and government statistics bear out the contention, we still find that steel is under a handicap because it is a heavy commodity that is caught in the vice of high freight rates.

We neither seek to condemn nor to defend the prevailing prices on these various commodities. What we wish to show is that in pre-war days coming down, taken on the whole, freight rates are scaling up, and Idaho is caught on both sides. It is true that in many instances freight rates have been reduced, but the reduction is not sufficient to equalize the spread between the cost of the manufactured goods and the cost of the same goods when they reach the consumer. This spread must be equalized if the consumer can expect to ever get back to pre-war prices.

The differential is too great to bring about real normalcy. And that normalcy must be reached, even if to reach it the car owners must resort to drastic action to reduce operating expenses. This is coming. The sooner it comes, the better off the community will be, the manufacturers, the retailers and the people will be.

The Author's Stories Have

DUCHEMIN took back with him to Nant, that night, food in plenty for thought, together with a number of other things which he could not afford to stop on indefinitely at the Grand Hotel as Plasterers and, see what he should see.

"That fatality which he had so bitterly reflected, had him now firmly by the heels. Impossible—and the author's mind was not slow to credit to mere coincidence the incident, uttered at the chateau by Mr. Stark and his party.

Nor had he been misled in that, Duchemin was satisfied. If not some darker purpose which perplexed the author, without intentions is unthinkable. But Duchemin searched his memory in vain for anything he could have said or done to make anyone desire to discredit him in the sight of the members of the Chateau de Montebello. He had, however, to do what had been unthinkably bad. The Wolf had been lured into the conversation literally by his biography.

Barely, one would think, last month, he had been a simpleton. But he had been born to be a leader; and the most brilliant group ever to meet had been his. And the author's poor remuneration and the desire of others to denounce him to his master, to demonstrate that he was indeed a scoundrel, had him to do what he had been unthinkably bad.

"Had he, though, some enemy of old? Had he, been born to be a scoundrel?

An excellent visual memory recorded successfully the physical characteristics of "Alistair" Black, Plaster and Lorraine, and their chateau, and the author's chateau, which Duchemin could have sworn that he had never before known any of.

And Madeline, Comtesse? In respect of that one memory again drew the author's thoughts to the past.

When one thought of her remote, fair, chap of reminiscences he could not help but feel that she had been unthinkably bad.

Accordingly, he crossed the floor of the room, and, with a smile, said:

"I am a simpleton, and, 'Mademoiselle, quickly'."

And, as a result, he was a simpleton again.

Twin Falls—October 3rd

$100 FORFEIT IS DUE

With no intention of discrediting the circulation of any newspaper in Twin Falls County the Times wishes to establish once and for all the fact that this paper has the largest circulation in the county. To do this we must quote from disinterested parties. This is partly due to the adoption of the Chromicle circulation.

A Chicago auditing bureau which audits the records of both Twin Falls Daily newspapers give the following figures:

The Evening paper (Times)..... 3544
The Morning paper..... 2545

Difference..... 999

In order to give a second proof that we have the largest circulation we will cite the sworn statements of the two newspapers as submitted to the postoffice department and as published under the signature and oath of a representative of each paper:

The Evening paper (Times)..... 2707
The other newspaper (News)..... 2621

Difference..... 1066

The above figures do not show the news additional taken for The Times in July and August of 1922. If you add these you would have a much larger circulation. In The News has the largest circulation why not have the figures to show this fact.

In order to settle this we will suggest that the President of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and the Mayor appoint an auditing committee to make an audit of the books of both newspapers and determine who has the largest circulation.

The above figures are proof that the forfeit offered by The News is due and should be paid if the offer is justified. The above figures may not be satisfactory then let's have the audit.

SEEK WHEREABOUTS OF MISSING OWNER

Lions Scarf Folks in Ohio Country

(NENYTON, Ohio, Oct. 2)—The same

handling parlor, armed with army style rifles, was held up in the district for two large sums of money and the authorities of Twin Falls and Jerome

for something have been taken to find the man who was responsible for the holdup.

Taking the lead in the hunt is Sheriff E. H. Sherman, who says now that the missing

man is still at large.

J. H. Thomas, the Four engine

fire chief, who is a member of the train which passed the scene of the holdup, says he has been driving two hours from his

now several days ago.

Thomas arrived today compa-

nied by a representative of the Ohio State Fair.

W. H. Riley, who accompanied other officers in the search, said he had difficulty in identifying the state's exhibit, which consists of two men who were seen in the holdup.

If you want to help or because your friends from the

out-of-state, call the Sherriff, who will be glad to help you.

Way and King Address Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Brown W. King addressed the Kiwanis Club luncheon today and greatly pleased the beauties of the Twin Falls region and stated that he was ever to be back again because he had so many friends here. He talked on neighborhood and home.

Leonard Way took the lead of the traffic association and what it has accomplished for south Idaho. He stated, among other things, that the traffic in Twin Falls has increased 40 per cent higher than they were in 1918. He also stated that it costs $100,000 to maintain roads here in Mountain Home than it does the same width from Pocatello to the same point. The cost of maintaining roads is the same point. He stated also that there was great danger of heavy snows and that the roads were not cleared.

John W. Graham presided and introduced Mr. Way that he was a good speaker and a good leader in the traffic association. He urged the people of this section to support the Kiwanis Club in their efforts in connection that Bell City was spending $100,000 on traffic control.
