ENGLAND WILL PAY DEBT IN FULL TO U.S.

MCKENNA SAYS BOND WILL BE HONOURED—but Other Nations Cannot Clear Up All Obligations; Germany Will Be Unable to Comply with Treaty.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Great Britain is determined to pay in full its debt due to the United States, £1,000,000,000, to the United States, Reginald McKenna, former British chancellor of the exchequer, told a meeting of the international finance, declared in a speech here today in the convocation of the American bankers association.

He said: "I am prepared to guarantee to pay only a small portion of their debts, which with the obligations now held appear amount to $1,000,000,000. At least, I am certain that Great Britain will be unable to meet all of them."

Germany, he predicted, never will be able to pay the huge reparations assessments of $20,000,000,000. At least, I am certain that Great Britain will be unable to meet all of them."

McKenney's statements, although he said he was speaking personally, are regarded as significant in view of the recent statement by the British ambassador to the United States, who has agreed to submit to Parliament a bill to abrogate the American debt.

The inevitable conclusion, he asserted, "is that these international debts are far too great for the countries concerned to bear, except England. She alone in her accumulated foreign investments has the power to bear the burden."

The charge applies to the United States. Of the others, France has the greatest resources, but they are, he believes, too limited to meet her obligations."

No Necks Considered.

The whole subject requires a rational consideration of the rights of those who must bear the brunt of the immediate effect of the payment of these debts on the general trade of the world," he said.

McKenney's statement in this regard was in general accord with that of American bankers before the convention.

The convention may give an approval to a movement which has been started by some time since looking toward reconstruction of Europe's financial system, and the financial policy of the Harding administration.

Views of some of the representatives.

G. E. Steiger, Lincoln, Nebraska: "I do not believe it will be paid off if the war can be paid off, although it is certainly the desire of the United States that it be paid off over the European nations so that reconstruction can be effected in a manner most acceptable to America and to the rest of the world."

Justice McRae: "The debt must be paid off if we can. If it is not paid off, it will affect the United States."

Justice Harlan F. Stone: "We must have an end for our surplus if prosperity is to come." "Purer money is better than gold." "The world would seriously affect the United States." "America must sit at a conference table."

Justice Brandeis: "The world must be paid off."

Justice Holmes: "The world must be paid off."

Justice Tamm: "The world must be paid off."

Justice Holmes: "The world must be paid off."</

In proposing to lend $5,000,000 to Russia without interest the Argentine government sets a novel precedent in international finance. But there are many international debts the interest on which will never be paid.

There is some plausibility in the argument of Thomas W. Lamont before the Association of Bankers yesterday to the effect that since the United States loaned $5,000,000,000 to the allies between the time that this country entered the war and the time that it placed soldiers in the trenches, this amount should be considered the appropriation of our share until our boys got home. The chances are that if we should show our confidence in ourselves by entering the League of Nations and taking our part in the affairs of the world, the result would be stabilization without the financial sacrifice of any of the debts now owed to us. Should we do this may step toward forgiving any of the debt, it would be well for us to think, in the establishment of a world-wide monetary system that would avert recurrence of undue expansion followed by undue contraction.

THE GERMAN MYTH EXPLODES

The same condition which frequently accompanies the issue of unlimited, irredeemable paper currency is now manifested in Germany as shown by the United Press dispatch of yesterday relating to the increased cost of living and the comparatively slight increase in the wages of labor. Men and women cannot live on a small amount of food because they buy it with paper marks or paper dollars that they can't buy it in gold—mixing sand with flour, grit and sugar increases the volume but not the digestibility or the food value. Taking out part of the flour or the sugar and putting in sawdust and sand deceives the eye but not the stomach.

When the German currency began to depreciate, many people in all parts of the world became frightened. They said that the German workers, while getting a higher nominal wage, would get a lower actual wage, and in consequence would soon underlive the world, to the extent that folks would become degenerate through lack of physical activity. But H. C. L. did not encourage German workers to unequal exertions any more than it would American workers and there is a big row on.

AUTO INDUSTRY IS GREATEST IN THE WORLD AT PRESENT

The auto industry has become the greatest manufacturing institution in the world; it affects many of the basic industries of the country. In regard to its dimensions the statistics show that with various subsidiary lines, the automobile business influences the industrial labor market a more pronounced extent than does any other great industry.

There are 127,000 wage earners in production, sales and service work, whose income is derived directly from the industry.

In addition to these are 95,000 other wage earners, who derive their income indirectly from the automobile business. These are drivers and chauffeurs and workers in industries supplying raw materials to manufacturers of automotive products.

Figures for workers in these industries were obtained by multiplying total workers in each of three industries by the percentage of the total output needed for automotive products.

Directly and indirectly the automobile industry influences the employment of 1,062,000 wage earners.

There are approximately 12,500 wage earners supported from manufacturing industries engaged in transportation. Of these, 18 per cent are dependent upon the automobile business.

The automobile is today, the leading passenger transportation agency in the United States.

There are today 25,200 railroad passenger coaches in use, having a seating capacity of 2,470,000 passengers. The seating capacity of 2,500,000 automobiles now in use is 47,000,000.

Based on records for the past five years, there should be 47,000,000 passenger miles to the credit of rail facilities in 1922. The average number of passengers per automobile is two, and the average annual mileage is 6000. Never the automobile must be credited with 114,000,000 passenger miles this year.

The automobile business is the most stable of the great industrial enterprises, because it has been the first to return to normal. The number of automobiles and trucks that will be manufactured this year will be slightly in excess of 2,000,000.

ORPHANS OF THE FIRE

They faced their heading all right—but not their parents. These two little refugees who were found wandering about the ruins of Smyrna were taken on board the hospital ship Staline, which carried them to the British colony at Malta.

Bible Thought for Today

THE ONLY HELPER.—For I the Lord thy God will hold thy people, and will help thee, and fear not; I will help thee.—Isaiah 41:13.

Apple Cleanse.
A new electrical contrivance for cleaning apples before they are packed for shipment is said to clean them better and faster than any other method.

New Idea in This.
The Greek word for private, peculiar to myself, means "my特有物," similar to our "private" in the sense that it is my own. It is my own, my特有物, my own idea.

Deserves to Be Remembered.
With the exception of the Bible, probably the most popular book in the English-speaking world was probably "Arabian Nights." It was given to the western world by a French scholar whose name is almost entirely forgotten. He was Adelme Ogle, a native of Paris, France. He produced a translation of "Arabian Nights" which certain critics declared to be the best ever made. The work is a original Arabic with living, Constantinopolitan as an article of speech embellished with puns and wit, and his extensive travels in the East made him probably the foremost oriental scholar of Europe. In 1813, he died. His production of "Arabian Nights" is still the best, and it is the most popular book in the world.

With a football game the chief diversion of the evening, the educational session of the teachers' institute was concluding today with unabated interest and vigor. Tonight, the program will be a social affair, and dancing will be the leading attraction, arrangements having been completed for the entertainment to be given at the auditorium. A general welcome at the Latering pavilion.

Mrs. Smith Speaks.

This morning Dr. Payne Smith, Massachusetts commissioner of education, who has been invited to speak at the institute spoke extensively and beneficially on his subject.

"The Element of the Individual in Education," he said, "has emphasized primarily the growth and development of the individual child as the greatest factor in education."

He also spoke on many important facts in this connection, all of which were very interesting to the throng of educators gathered in the Main school auditorium.

The other address of the morning was by Dr. Frank P. Prentiss, of Holton, dean of the school of education of the University of Washington, who said in his talk on "The Teacher's Role in the High School Curriculum": "We must train our pupils to be good—not merely scholars, but good citizens." He had prepared the curriculum of former years with those of the present time, noting the great improvements with each passing year.

Mrs. Hallie Hayes.

Prior to the lectures Dr. Martin held a series of several splendid piano solos which were enthusiastically received.

At 8 o'clock, W. Evans, of the Twin Falls high school had charge of the games and plays in the gymnasium, and a number of departmental activities took place.

This afternoon's program included a talk by Dr. Payne Smith on "Home Tests of the Teacher"; President C. E. Bock of the Albion Normal School, on "Teaching in the Primary Grades"; and Dr. Nelson, on "The Art of Memory."

After dinner, "Sports Shopper Night" was fittingly observed and the streets were jammed with interests from all over the country. The merchants strived to present something worth looking at and yet different from the ordinary run-of-the-mill goods.

This afternoon's program concluded with a band concert.
