European Situation Is Before U. S. Officials

(Copyright 1922 United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.—The serious European situation is now squarely before the United States government.

It has been placed there within the last 24 hours by diplomatic representatives of the allies and Germany, who by informing this government as to the latest European development, are urging the United States to make any move that it deems wise.

George Clemenceau, who came here to bring America back to Europe, safe for France today, with the knowledge that the American government is studying the question as to what it can do to save or relieve the plight of Europe.

These are the facts that make up the present significant situation:

1. Immediately upon the downfall of the London conference, Great Britain thought that Georges Clemenceau, who was action on the side of France in London, had the whole question in the hands of the American government.

2. Following the conference between Goblet and Secretary of State Hughes, the United Press learned that Hughes has also just been informed by the German government of its latest reparations proposals to Prendergast Lewis of Great Britain, which the allies virtually rejected. In view of the collapse of the British alliance, the threatened re-opening of the Rhine by France, a formal appeal to the United States soon came from Germany.

3. The White House has let it be known that the American government is active in trying to bring about an adjustment of the European problem although the administration spokesman declares that it is impossible at present to reveal the exact details of what is being done.

Secretary of State Hughes, it is known, is to be following the whole situation most closely and is to be prepared to act if the circumstances warrant.

The discussions and deliberations of the United States government on the European questions are not the direct result of the campaign in America by Clemenceau, and these conversations really started before Clemenceau came to this country. The American government has been advancing, supporting the policy of Clemenceau, but it is largely responsible for the present plight of Europe, but this government is trying to find a way to help Europe and in that respect the Tiger can go back to his "little cottage by the sea" a happy man.

Stories Circulated Throughout Paris Today to the Effect That America Was Contemplating Intervening in the European Situation Since Allied Conference Failed.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Washington diplomatic cables, last night, had discussed the European situation in connection with a rally held in connection with an American intervention in "the dope ring" in New York yesterday, authorities said today.

Secretary of State Hughes, in answer to the charge that he would not be neutral in the matter, said:

MAY USE RIBBONS

Silky Strands Aid When Accessories Are Needed.

Bits of Beautiful Woven Color Offer Inspiration to Designers of Millady's Outfit.

With all the plain stocks worn now, it is opportunity to make them more attractive here and there according to one's own taste. And it is in this way, states a fashion writer in the New York Times, that costume growth is to be had. The dress designer's ways contain no element that makes it individually becoming, but it can be a background.

There is one big danger about applying too much color to plain stocks. That is, they can be so easily overdone. If they are used at all, there is the responsibility to do the dress well, plus one step into the class of gingerbread advertising.

Ribbons are enjoying the favor and attention of women who have not looked for their way for many a long year, possibly because they all thought it was not worth looking. They seem to have been designed with more care and attention to the purposes, for which they may possibly be intended, than any other material. They fit right in the dress of women, but it did seem for a time as though there was practically nothing new under the sun in the way of ribbons. Now, however, there seems something different to be done with them. Just now the eyes of sly designers, active or in embryo, fall to a piece of the ribbon, and from it they see new and interesting fashions can be created with a bit of beautifully woven color for an inspiration.

The dress-in the illustration is of a neutral gray crepe lined in a sheer material with a metal crepe ribbon. This is a sort of ribbon which has a metal thread running one way of the weave and a brilliant red or rose taking the opposite direction. Across the girdle in the skirt the ribbon runs in evenly arranged points. It is strong enough to take the strain of being tied in a knot, and when it is woven into the belt arrangement, where a strand of the gray crepe and a strand of the ribbon are twisted together to make one of those smart little rolls which accommodate waistlines.

CRYSTAL AND JET FAVORITES

Parle Proclaims Black and White the Favored Jewelry Combination for Fall Wear.

Black and white is to be the jewelry combination, according to advice from Parle, and manufacturers and buyers, themselves and jet and pearl, crystal and jet are to be the leading combinations.

Bar pins are expected to regain their popularity, and fall, the style of 1918. Buttons, bracelets and dresses creating a demand for ornamental fastenings. A charming example of a bar pin pendant consists of a diamond-shaped frame, set with colored diamonds, and a central colored pendant in a chintz-like frame.

The combination of crystal, jet and pearls makes an interesting and attractive necklace. The crystal, the latter of the former and the crystal makes the jet seem even blander. Pendants suspended from a cord like a picture, the dress, the bracelet and the bar pin frame with diamonds, are new and unusual. A pearl tassel with a cap of emry color, with side half-blings, and half diamonds make a glowing ribbon necklace.—Imperial Eagle.

Clothes Foulards.
Foulards are getting thicker and thicker, and are being made in simple shapes such as round, black and blue-and-white. At a smart gathering a foulard with a damasked ground was noticeable. It had an intricate pattern of small squares, and a rust-colored border seen as a fashion-able restaurant dustered a splashy black design. Its wearer had a hat of dark crystal, and a lummox prof prof decorated with a ribbon which almost the size of a tulip head, in tones of rust and orange.

The four of lightning is almost universal, but the five of lightning is almost unique. It is small. Double sets of blades are even rarer than those in the country, since statistics show that on the average four-fifths of the fans from lightning occur in foreign locations. The lightning electric wire, the many grounded water pipes and the metal roofs of cities are undoubtedly the chief causes of their safety in life respect.

Pipe's 300 Years.
W. J. Humphries, an antiquary of London, has a pipe in his possession that has retained its tobacco odor for more than 300 years. The pipe is a smooth, straight, hollow tube and is believed to have been the property of a soldier who fought in the civil wars, many of the battles having been fought around Hereford.

It's a Contagious Disease

(Dear reader: This is not a patent medicine advertisement.)

ONE of our contemporaries, for some time past, has been periodically afflicted with that dread disease known as Price-Cottle, and we notice with surprise, that an esteemed competitor, having withheld the contagious condition as long as possible, has finally contracted the malady in a more violent form.

It would appear that the public is once more going to be given the advantage of a diseased condition of the cleaning industry in Twin Falls.

A BUSINESS man in the cleaning industry is acquainted with his operating costs, and knows that high-class service cannot be rendered the public with suits cleaned and pressed for $1.00. For a dollar that some public receives either inferior work, or is overcharged with concealed "extras," or for any repair work done on the suit, both of which factors have been based on these price-cutting "sprees."

IMPERIAL Service has always meant high-class service in every particular, and we have always endeavored to keep our reputation from reaching to the level of those in the cleaning industry to whom the business end of cities is an unprofitable book, neither read nor understood.

We also believe our patrons are entitled to PROTECTION from this contagious disease, and therefore offer the following protective prescription:

Later it was recognized that all troubles had been adjusted and the inspection report was excluded from the beginning, over the protest of Commissioner S. S. All, who demanded that the inspection be adjourned until it was settled, saying he would take it in next day proceedings.

He said it seems to have been lack of communication between the day and night officers.

Membership numbers and routing business took up a good deal of the time at the meeting of the directors of the Farmers Mutual Automobile Club last night, at which plans were made for appointing farmers on various committees and the names of those which it was decided to help the club get the right Insurance Association to try on.

Entitled to Know: The organization is asked to advise them among farmers what would amount to honorary mem- bership in the club.

While the books are chiefly concerned with agriculture, during the formative period of our country, his previous life experience, the author of the book, Mr. L. S. Marquart, has been under consideration of his present office.

In addition to the application for membership, the club will be enti- tled to know the name of the chair- man of the committee for the sec- tions/benefits of farmers above, and suggestions and cooperations will be welcome.

Fight Measuring: A fight against discrimination, instigated by Leonard Way as representative of the Southern Idaho Farmers Mutual Automobile Club, was contended that there is discrimination on the main line of the S.
