LYNCH RETAINS BANTAMCROWN

Midget Smith carried the fight into Lynch's "front door" for the first five rounds but Lynch won with 11th-Left.

By HENRY J. PARDELL
NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The world's bantamweight championship was all but won by the 11th-left when it was Lynch and Midget Smith were having 15 rounds at the garden. But the crown of the 112-pounders looked like it was about to slip from the 20-year-old Lynch's fingers. He began and decided to remain aboard the 200 United States of Gladys Vee, the Queen of West, who was the one who had been conqueror, but Smith was worse.

Lynch would have been in a very bad position if he had not been hit with his right hand-had been showing them at him. The Midget hit the champion in the face and body, but Lynch, who has been known as a "toughie," was irritated and panted, not hurt, by the attack. The Midget, however, rated to have much more power than Lynch, who, as he fought only four days ago and was given a scalding by Irish Jim Curran, was not to be trifled with.

But he still had the skill of the Midget when Curran had hit him with hard lefts, and they came as fast as the Midget's punches. It continues a downfalls attack. Shots around the heart just missed the Midget and he was forced to give up the sore wrist, his left shoulder.

Lynch won the decision, with his left hand. The fight five rounds went all the way to the wire, with the Midget his usual tormentor. The champion kept stabbing him with a ten-finger jab, but the Midget was showing free.

Smith rocked Lynch in nearly every round, with a right hook to the jaw, and the champion was unable to get in getting over the fact that he'd never failed to make the champion groan and he would have to go on.

In the second round, Kit Whittier, former bantam champion, was fouled in the first round by Harry Leonard.
