WHAT'S THE USE OF TALKING RATE "COMPROMISE"

When the interstate commerce commission decided against the application of the transcontinental railroads for permission to make special rate reductions to the Pacific coast terminals...

The Spokesman-Review regrets that it was a vain hope, a delusive expectation. The transcontinental freight bureau, agency of all the transcontinental lines, has served written notice on the officers of the Intermediate Rate association...

This is a renewed effort at discrimination against the interior. The obvious purpose is to harass interior communities with a threat of renewed and prolonged litigation before the interstate commerce commission...

By "compromise" they would mean abandonment by the interior of its stand on the law and assent to some kind of modified discriminatory practice under which the interior would pay higher rates for the shorter haul than the coast terminals would be asked to pay for the longer haul.

As a matter of fact the transcontinental roads are negotiating right now for a conference with the Intermediate Rate association at Salt Lake City. Secretary James A. Ford of the Intermediate Rate association has just advised its members, under date of February 27, that "the transcontinental freight bureau is already serving notice that it is going to file a new application for fourth section relief."

The traffic bureau of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, ex-Secretary Ford points out in its bulletin, "has discussed this question at great length and is of the unanimous opinion that there is no time for the railroads to seek a conference."

It is a further fact that a well directed movement is now under way among the owners of the boat lines to advance water rate. After a conference with Chairman Lasker of the United States shipping board an agreement was reached to put each boat line, under a $25,000 bond to adhere to the increased conference rates.

The transcontinental lines would like to rush the interior into an ill-advised "compromise" to accept higher and discriminatory rate and then, when the boat lines had abated their present severe competition, hold the interior to the compromise and confine the discrimination along the old, unjust lines forbidden by law and disapproved by the interstate commerce commission.

The course of the interior is too plain to be mistaken. It should stand on the law and the decision of the commission, and should press with renewed vigor its demand upon congress for an absolute, unconditional long and short haul law.

"We believe that a rigid fourth section bill can be the only answer to the repeated and insistent demand that the interior should press your long-and-short-haul bill in the interests of this vast territory."

The interior should hold to its hard-won base; it should press with renewed vigor its demands for terminal rates or better-Spokesman Review.

Construction of the Idaho Central Tamen for Granted in Story

Detonator, An Oakland Magazine in Full Page Article Says Building Will Start in Spring and Probably in March; Praise Given to Twin Falls Country.

The February number of the Detonator, a monthly magazine published in Oakland, Cal., gives an interesting account of the railroad situation so far as it affects the situation between Rogerson and Wells. It assumes that the line will certainly be built, as its caption, "Building a Railroad to Open Up a Mining Country," indicates, and as the text of the article shows. The Twin Falls country is praised in the course of the story, which, in full, reads:

Up in the Nevada plateau at the northeastern portion of Elko County lies a mineralized zone covering about 800 square miles of territory, known to contain copper and silver in vast quantities, and needing only modern transportation facilities to open up what will without doubt ultimately prove to be one of the largest and most profitable fields in the West.

Twenty development prospects show meritorious claims with literally hundreds of others partly developed, which at least one of the best of the ship at the present time from five to twenty tons daily, while the better developed properties would show 25 to 100 tons daily.

In addition to the mining industry the plateau land is available for grazing for thousands of head of cattle and sheep, while in the Twin Falls and Falls county, Idaho, 285,000 acres of wonderfully productive country are under irrigation, with other lands planned by which 600,000 additional acres will be watered.

The nearest railroad points at present to this vast territory are Wells, Nevada, and Rogerson, Idaho, 50 miles apart, with no rail facilities for hundreds of miles to the west and about 175 miles to the east, leaving these great main lands, cattle lands, and irrigated farms practically isolated and without any accessible markets for their products. This handicap has been so severe that many farmers have been unable to keep going, while the cost of transportation to the nearest railroad point has been so great that mining operations have been retarded, and are not sufficiently profitable to attract the capital necessary to further development.

Gives Wolfe Credit
In July, 1921, the Interstate Commerce Commission granted a certificate to Arthur Dinn and George L. Davis, San Francisco, men, authorizing the construction of the Idaho Central Railroad to run between Rogerson, Idaho, and Wells, Nevada, but they were unable to finance the same, and the matter was at a standstill until a few months ago when through the efforts of Con-

GOOD-BYE

(Closing, with the privilege of renewing at any time, a series of meditations upon The Gold Dust Twins.)

I have come to the close of my day,
The thing I have striven to do,
I am now at the end of my story
And I am saying good-bye to you.

Doubtless my rhymes seemed cutting of times,
You have given me ideas and faith,
The Gold Dust Twins have left the field—
Perhaps we should call it square.

The game has been more than lively,
I have played you an open hand,
I have told the truth as I saw it
And the most of you understand.

...shipped out of this mine and the former returns have been copper, 25 per cent, silver 8 ounces, and gold 10 per ton. There are millions of tons in this camp and many more miles in the famous Contact lode, the Buzza lode, located at the head of the gulch, was struck some years ago and shipped a great deal of ore of high grade to the Salt Lake smelter. Among the other properties one of the largest is the Javan mine, which is developed to a depth of 200 feet, and is showing a width of 40 feet; ore of commercial grade. This company is now planning to erect a tonnage reduction plant, which when completed will supply a tonnage of 100 tons monthly.

Frankie Tooms, the northern terminus of the new railroad, is the southern terminus of a branch of the Oregon Shortline, which runs through Minidoka, Idaho, where it connects with a chain of cities, among which are Twin Falls, Boise, and several others of considerable size and importance. Wells, the southern terminus, is a point in Nevada, at which the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific are received. The commission states that the finds of the commission show that the new line will shorten by 211 miles the distance from Twin Falls to Reno, and by 100 miles by the second route, the inference drawn is that products now being shipped east will be directed to the California markets.

Conrad Wolfe, the president of the new railroad, is also president of the Laramie mine, and the proprietor and manager of the first town of the Nevada. He was formerly a mining engineer of Spokane, Washington, and has been a member of the Mining Congress and American Institute of Mining Engineers.

KING CORN IS EXTENDING HIS SWAY IN IDAHO

Twin Falls Farmer Tells of Phourous Yields That Make Iowa and Kansas Look Like Poor Pickers; Cool Night Fallacy Shown to Be Without Foundation.

That "King Corn" who reigns supreme over the vast domains of Iowa and Kansas, has extended his sway into Idaho and will soon be the principal monarch of this state, as was shown by August Kolb who has a mile and a half from this city, and has raised all the way from 110 to 115 bushels of the famous Yellow Dent variety on a single acre. He brought in seven bushels sold them to The Times office yesterday to show what he has been getting annually in his fields. They are in the office to look at yet.

Had Pat Here.
"Back in Iowa," said Mr. Kolb, "I was a member of a corn growers' association. One year we had a treat here, and they were told that if it like a woman would a baby, I cultivated it, and it was planted in place and left no stones returned to get the biggest yield. There were people there offered a manure spreader, a wagon, hayrack and a corn sheller. I got the wagon. I raised 115 bushels and 31 pounds on that acre, while another fellow beat me just nine pounds and not the prettier."

"This corn which you see here yielded 110 bushels on an acre yielded a little over 115 bushels. I have had his crop for four consecutive years, even two years ago when we had an early fall and September frost the corn was fully matured."

There is a wholly false idea about here and that is that cool nights in this country will prevent the corn from maturing. What corn yields is sunshine. We have 20 percent more sunshine in southern Idaho than in the corn belt of the east. When there is a cloudy day the corn stands still. When the days are warm and sunny the corn grows. The long warm days beat the ground and it does not cool off much, or a cool night the morning and then before it gets very cold the sun is out again. Corn matures a week and a half earlier here than in central Iowa. Of course, if we had 29 inches of rain during the country during the corn season that we do, we have, of course, it would be different.

Should Plant Early.
"I find that we have more success here by planting corn from May to May 10, so that the corn is well along before real hot weather. Corn does not need hot weather. Hot weather when it strikes the young corn makes it lose its vigor. If you can grow it, repeat what it needs is warm sunlight and we have here and sunny weather. This is the best corn country in the United States. Oregon can only grow a little extra early corn. The California fog and interior soil prevent successful corn raising in that state."

Why Grow Corn.
"Corn raising will be the salvation of this country. It will permit the farmers to diversify industry. They can raise hogs and cattle and establish the dairy industry. It will bring untold wealth to Idaho. There is a growing interest in corn culture, show county ground and folks ask who grew it. Some are surprised when I say that I did it. They often will say that they know we could grow it here. I saved about 50 bushels out of the field. I have sold 32 bushels which have been delivered and about nine bushels not yet delivered. This corn has a few bushels left which shows that people are taking more interest in the subject."

METROPHIL FAWCETT

NEW AUDIT OF BOOKS FOR PAST YEAR PROPOSED

John Wolfenden Will Bring Books To Be Audited For 1922-23

The city legislative machine stepped with a sudden thud last night when it came to the new obstacle in the way raised by John Wolfenden, when in an eloquent speech he pointed out the necessity for another audit before setting up the new books for the city, which he agreed to do for half price, namely $225. After giving the matter the silent treatment for awhile, Commissioner Roberts turned to the matter over until next meeting.

"Things will be in an awful mess if you do not have it done," Wolfenden said, "because the five year audit brings you up until the first of May only and you want to begin May 1 this year. You want the audit up to date when you set up the books. It is worth $200. We will make nothing out of our offer, since it will take me three weeks to bring the books up. If we do so, we will make out two balance sheets, one under the old system and one under the new, showing just where the city stands, and where the budget has too high or too low. It will show what you have done and will show you up all right. Mr. Mayor, this last observation was made in a laughing way and the mayor blushed like a school girl."

Would He Work Cheaply
Mr. Wolfenden went on to say that he could make the last year's audit more cheaply than any other auditor could, since any other auditor would have to follow his system. "He could not do any other," he would not let him," he declared. He had agreed to set up the books and the system would have to be the same until they were set up. "I would not be getting as much wages as your clerk here for this work of making the last year's audit," he asserted.

The Terms of the Contract
The contract does not provide for the audit for the year ending May 1, 1923. It does state that Wolfenden will install a set of modern double commercial accounting as set forth in Exhibit B, Exhibit C and Exhibit D of Mr. Wolfenden, wherein he estimates that the cost of the audit will be $3,000, but the city administration failed to provide in the contract that this estimate should include a guarantee and that the Wolfenden bill is already about $3,450 greater than the estimate. The city has $2,500 greater than the bill of the Van Deusen company, which was a post-

WINDOW SHOPPING NIGHT HAS MANY FEATURE STUNTS

Community Sing is One of the Big Attractions. Live Merchant Has a Surprise for You.

That the window shopping night, inaugurated by the Community Sing, which starts at 7:30 Thursday evening will be an affair such as has never yet been completely staged in Twin Falls, is the opinion of all of those who touch with the movement. It is a matter of every eye here among the people and the assurance is given that they will not be disappointed. The show will be held at the intersection of Shoshone street and Main avenue.

But this is not all the pleasure-giving program. Merchants are preparing to give away many prizes, and are entering into the thing with a spirit that will get results in the way of entertainment. There is plenty of good natured rivalry and an inclination to adopt the motto, "Each for all and all for each," in the best construction of that term.

The Idaho Methodist church will serve a delicious chicken dinner at Wright's old store on Saturday, from 5 to 7:30. Men, women, boys, girls.

NOTICE TO POTATO GROWERS

In view of the fact that the potato growers of this state are organizing themselves into one state-wide organization and this organization will hold a meeting in Twin Falls sometime next week for the purpose of including the Twin Falls District in its jurisdiction, we wish to advise the potato growers not to sign up with any private companies until they are and hear what we have to offer.
