White, awaiting official confirmation, officials of this government had agreed to seek an immediate release of the bandits.

Crowe, in insisting there is "no power on earth strong enough to stop this investigation," also announced he is trying to get the Chinese to release the bandits' terms and that the bandits had promised to release half of their prisoners now if the red men would do the same.

It is hoped that all the remaining American prisoners will be among the first to be liberated.

Four Fall to Death in Mississippi's Heartless Tentacles at Davenport

He's in Field Now

Youngsters Take Fatal Step to Avoid Being Hit by Trolley Car on Narrow Bridge.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, May 14.—Three girls and at least one boy met death last night by leaping from a street car bridge into the river below, in order to avoid an oncoming trolley car, William Keiper, policeman, reported to authorities today. One body, that of a girl, has been recovered, but not identified.

Keiper said that while he only saw four jump, he believed there were two more in the party who may have lost their lives.

Keiper said his car was almost half way across the bridge between the low shore and Campion's Island, a narrow strip of land, situated in the middle of the river, when he saw the party leap into it.

At that point the water is only five feet deep, but the current is very swift. No expert swimmers can stand up in it.

Four youths kept their hands on the trolley, the tragedy would have been averted, if Keiper brought the car to a stop before he reached the spot where they had been sitting.

It was misty and almost hysterical.

There are no footbridges on the bridge, which is about 600 feet long, but, outside of a boat, it is the only way across the river. It is very hundred feet, however, from the bridge to small piers or platforms under the bridge.

They saw the car coming, the trolley, he said, was moving.
