

PREMIER OF FRANCE TO ASK VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Premier's Agreement Not to Resign at Once Due to His Loyalty to France; Germans Would Have New Hope If He Quit Post, Belief.

PARIS, May 25.—Premier Poincare has decided to demand that the senate and the house give him a vote of confidence on his policy toward communists, following refusal of the senate to give a high court trial of communists, in accordance with his request.

After one of the most exciting nights in French political history, Poincare summoned his cabinet to discuss the situation this morning. For several hours last evening France was virtually without a government. When the cabinet received his request that it try Deputy Marcel Cachin and other communists convicted of treason, Poincare and his ministers rendered their resignations to President Millerand. The president—until he sent the cabinet's resignations to the resignations were withdrawn.

Poincare consented to remain in office only because of Millerand's appeal to his patriotism and because he feels that his resignation would be regarded as a victory for Germany in its attitude in the Ruhr.

Poincare consented to remain in office only because of Millerand's appeal to his patriotism and because he feels that his resignation would be regarded as a victory for Germany in its attitude in the Ruhr.

After having received the cabinet, Poincare later cancelled the meeting, probably because President Millerand is leaving Paris to visit Alsace.

Later Poincare issued another call for a cabinet meeting setting the time at 7:30 p. m. At this session the course to be followed with regard to the communists will be decided upon.

The majority of the Paris press today condemned the cabinet's action and applauded Poincare. The communists have opened rejoicing. Cachin and the others are accused of conspiring against the government to hinder the French advance into the Ruhr. Cachin and the others were scheduled to seize it, and address communists.

Lines Easy and Simple in Dress or Wash Silk

By MARY DROCKS PICKEN

WHILE certain crops or novelty weaves give me as good a material for this charming frock. The lines of the dress are easy and stylish, fitting their beauty in their simplicity.

The lines to deep enough to be ornamented, and the top, in this case of red ribbon, gives opportunity for bringing the dress out and into harmony.

The dress slips over the head and is fastened by means of the ribbon at the center front. The back is cut plain to be in keeping with the front. This was done in the front gives opportunity for permitting and controlling a little fullness in the dress in a desirable form in a wash dress.

The extremely simple poke shape provides chic and originality by the simple trim of hand-made silk flowers and red crepe ribbon petals.

"Chesting" and "Aspuring"

There is a difference between "chesting" and "aspuring," a new term. The word "aspuring" means "to put off to another day," while "chesting" means "to put off." Therefore, if the business is undisturbed, or if the meeting is a regular weekly, fortnightly or monthly affair, it is as well to start a date. If, however, the meeting is an extraordinary one, called for a special purpose, as soon as that business is completed the meeting is the "chesting" or "aspuring" the chairman generally says: "We will now adjourn this meeting to the date of such a date," while in the future, the chairman says: "We will now chest this meeting," etc.

QUESTION AND ANSWER BOX

(Conducted by Auntie Sue.)

Q—Dear Auntie Sue: I have heard Mrs. Thomas is going to give a concert at the Laying Church. Is she a good singer and is she well trained in music?

A—I am glad some one has given me the opportunity to recommend this. Mrs. Thomas is very well trained and she is very highly recommended, and you, people, will be the loser if you miss this concert.

Mrs. Thomas, though several years a resident of Twin Falls, formerly lived in Idaho and at one time was given the title of the World Nightingale, which was bestowed upon her by King Alton, who was at that time Prince of Wales.

I can safely say, people, that this concert will be a success. This concert will be a success. This concert will be a success.

Behind the President's Smile

When President Harding posed for this picture recently at the White House lawn he warned his Secretary of the Treasury and officers of the Government Savings Organization, grouped about him that something he had to get in people's way. But the Savings Director for the Minneapolis District didn't heed the warning and got lost behind the President's six feet of height and broad smile. Secretary Mellon, hand in pocket and with mustache, appears on Harding's right, to the President's left is Lew Wallace, Jr., National Director of the Government Savings Organization. The third man from the right end is Theodore Harlow of San Francisco, Government Savings Director for the Northwest Federal Reserve District. These savings directors from the twelve Federal Reserve districts had just finished a conference in Washington where it was decided that government savings securities had come to stay in the form of $2, $100 and $1000 Treasury Savings Certificates issued directly by the Government to the individual investor at four per cent interest and backed by the entire credit of United States. Post Offices, Federal Reserve Banks and most other banks will continue to sell the certificates.

Many of the young men from Twin Falls have already scattered to various states and sections of the country to find work for the summer. In many ways this is a sad thing in the history of our commercialism.

When foreigners in this country indulge in even the slightest criticism of our tariff laws protest is prompt and vigorous, yet we read in the news from Prague that many American business men or their representatives have been visiting that capital in the hope of preventing tariff legislation, which they say would kill trade with America.

The interview with President Gray of the Union Pacific as published yesterday afternoon in the Twin Falls Times would indicate that actual construction on this proposed railroad to Nevada would begin at once. This is glad news to all in this section of Idaho and we will welcome the time when not only the surveying will be started but when the dirt begins to fly in the grading.

LUCKY AMERICAN FALLS

Think a moment about American Falls, Idaho, a city which has had obstacles to overcome. Grown up haphazardly, American Falls has two business districts and straggling, unattractive residence sections. For twelve years or more the possibility of the big dam has choked back her growth.

And now that the big dam is coming, American Falls is lucky again because she finds it possible to be a city again. From a straggling, divided town she is to become the model city of the irrigated areas. To her is given the opportunity to apply city planning perfectly.

What Omaha Kingsway thought impossible is being possible by American Falls and by the government which has bought the new townsite and aided her in laying out a city beautiful with wide streets, parks, restricted areas and the like. Kingsway, you know, wrote a verse something like this:

Calvin Gray occupies the most excellent office in the great building... He is the president of the largest bank in the city.

They argued that a region so near a large city must of necessity contain gas, and even the wealth of the surface land as for other natural resources, they accounted the belief.

The town became a mobilization point, a vast concentration camp for building and the houses around it. There was no rest, no Sundays or holidays.

From the first Malloy had admitted him to be entertaining and entertaining him to be entertaining and entertaining him to be entertaining.

Who answered Gray's knock at the front door, as he hurried around the house. Over the garden fence, crown thick with ivy, he saw the two faded sunbonnets tooting two belts of shoulders, and as he drew nearer he saw that one woman was bent and slow moving, while the other, whose sunbonnet was a shade of blue and red, whose hair was burnt to a rich golden brown.

"We've never seen an old man like that here anywhere," she said. "We've never seen one like that here anywhere."

"The women regarded each other curiously, their eyes turned to the mother's face, then to the mother's hand, then to the mother's hand, then to the mother's hand."

"There were three rooms to the house, modestly furnished, with a white-washed kitchen at the rear and a screened door to the outside.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 25.—With a few hours preceding the time set for his execution before a firing squad, George Gardner, was given a stay of sentence as a result of an investigation made as to his sanity. Gardner was to be executed at 10 o'clock today for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Gordon Stuart and Joseph W. Irvine on April 16, 1932.

The sanity commission reported to Governor Charles Mabey there was sufficient information at hand to justify the conclusion that there is doubt as to the sanity of the prisoner. The new facts obtained will be presented to the state board of pardons on June 16.

Yesterday when Martin Garrison, who had lived with him as his wife, went to see him in the death cell, Gardner said that he had no enemies. The woman reproached him for this and told him he should be caring them. The state board of pardons implored the governor to grant a stay of execution until a sanity board could examine the man. If the board does not change its opinion following the report of the sanity commission, Gardner will be re-sentenced.

MANUFACTURES NOW FORM OVER ONE-HALF OF OUR TOTAL EXPORTS

Exports of manufactures for 1923 will exceed those of the year preceding the War.

The continued success of the American manufacturer in the face of foreign markets is illustrated by the latest figures of our export trade. An analysis of the March exports, as presented by the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, shows that manufactures actually formed 54% of the domestic exports of the country in that month, as against 48% in the same month of last year. In fact, the March exports of manufactures were at a rate of over $2,000,000,000 a year or practically double the annual average of the year immediately preceding the war. Manufactures formed 54% of the exports in March, 1923, against 46% in the year preceding the war, 36% in 1922, 21% in 1921 and 19% in 1920. Exports of manufactures in 1923 were nearly as high as in 1919, and are likely to total and perhaps exceed $2,000,000,000 against $1,000,000,000 in the year immediately preceding the war, less than a half-billion dollars in 1921 and less than a quarter of a billion dollars in 1920. Exports of manufactures in 1923 will be double those of the year preceding the war, four times that of 1920 and ten times as much in value as in 1890.

What parts of the world by this enormous flood of manufactures, now pouring out of the United States? Every section and every country. This is evidenced not only by the fact that all the important countries of the world are participating in the demand evidenced by the high percentage which manufactures are now forming of our exports, but when we study the details we find that all sorts of manufactures go to practically every country and colony on the face of the globe. Ploughs and cultivators, for example, went in 1923 to 92 countries and colonies, passenger automobiles to over 100 countries and colonies. Even in the smaller requirements of daily life the field covered is extremely large. In taking powder, for example, our exports extended in 1923 to 75 countries, and in 1922 to 75 countries, while the number of countries to which our cotton cloth went was over 100.

It is of course in movements to the non-manufacturing sections of the world that manufactures form the highest percentage of our exports. The share in Latin America manufactures form over 87% of the total, to Asia about 75%, to Africa 66% and to Europe approximately 33%. While we should scarcely expect to find manufactures forming so high a percentage of the exports to manufacturing Europe, the fact that the most have our products in various forms and copper and lumber and leather brings the percentage which material wholly or partly manufactured forms of the movement to that continent lighter than would seem probable when we think of food and raw cotton as its chief demand upon us.

Fully finished manufactures are forming a steadily increasing part of the great group "manufactures" exported. The total value of the finished manufactures exported in 1923 was more than double that of 1921, while the 1923 value of the group "manufactures" for further use in manufacturing was no greater than that of 1913. Partly manufactured material formed 34% of the great group "manufactures" exported in 1923 and only 19% in 1921.

DRIVES BALL OVER TRAIN

Miss Glenn Collett, the national women's golf champion, played a unique shot at Delmar Heights, when she drove over a moving railroad train, which afforded her a new kind of a handicap. Miss Collett was at the tee just as the train came along. One of the players on the team, Puzosone asked her if she minded the train across her path. She replied almost instantly by hitting her tee shot straight over the down the railway, clearing the train by a wide margin.

Is Baseball Clown

"The funny man of baseball" is the universal term applied to Nick Atrock, a very valuable asset to the Washington "Clubs." Nick, with the flow of ready wit, has "rattled" many a good lineal player in contest with the Griffiths.

Has $100,000 Worth of Baseball in Him

Willie Kamm, the Pacific coast third baseman, has got what it takes to make a $100,000 bet.

This was the judgment of the White Sox camp followers at Seattle, after watching Kamm work out around third base.

Even Kid Gleason was optimistic.

"It's the best infielder that ever broke in with this ball club," Kamm is being swung sort of a cheap, but carries nothing against to make him well proportioned for an infielder.

The whole Sox camp is talking about the stuff that Kamm has shown. He is, now, gone after the ball with one and three from his position. He is almost unerring in his play and will make many friends.

How Firpo Compares

With Jeffries in Size

Measurements of Firpo and Jeffries show that the "Titan of the ring" is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 175 lbs. "Big Jeff" was at thirty-five years, when he fought Jack Johnson, but the latter's age and size were larger than Firpo's. In other respects they measure nearly the same.

Oldtime Jonathan

Oldtime Jonathan is a pen name under which the well-known American author, Washington Irving, contributed to the New York Herald at that time a popular newspaper published in New York city. Washington Irving lived from 1783, and his works are among the best that have been produced in this continent. He wrote a humorous history of New York, written in 1809, and another in England, a life of Columbus, and other works. His home here the Hudson river, near the city of New York, was called Soney Side.

Ireland's Gold Mines

In Wicklow, Ireland, are gold mines which once produced a good fortune. They were seized by the Government in 1725, but ceased to be profitable. The gold was of extraordinary purity and was found in pieces of all sizes.

In the middle ages, no treatment was the hordes on the highways, that the law required 200 feet of other side of the road should be cleared of bushes which might shelter robbers.

Famous Bugle Call Used To Intersect Spirit of the Day

New York City—Psychologists who predict human behavior by their observation of humans at play, say that America is due for a long era of peace. They do so after the conclusion of a party given in study of the songs and games which engross the energetic younger generation just now.

The new peace conference game with its pawns all moving for harmony, which children have substituted for checkers, is an interesting example. So in "Good Night," a waltz built on the bugle theme of "Taps." This song sounds the peaceful end of the dance on most ball room floors.

Borax Once Scarce and Expensive

One of the first chemicals that entered into commerce was borax, one of three or four "industrial chemicals" of ancient times. Central Asia has it in great quantities. It is used in making glass, soap, and other things. It is a very important material in the manufacture of many of the most common necessities of everyday life.

KANSAS CITY OPENS DOORS TO CANINES

KANSAS CITY, May 25.—The proprietor of local dog factories celebrated their emancipation today.

Hundreds of cross-bred canines had their day, when led by youthful masters, they paraded proudly in martial lines through downtown streets and to a savoyard arena where they will be judged for "check of beauty and breeding."

Thanking justly for recognition, and winking misanthropically and rambunctiously with abnormal glint, the common cur for once high-browed their pedigreed superiors. Every fashionable dog in town was tite from envy as the lovely mutts, with their proud masters strutted their stuff into the savoyard flim.

No numerous were the entries. Staff of venerable judges will take notes all afternoon before computing the winner. The jolliest big home from the local stock yards and a silver-plated collar in no prize to be barbed at and what dog would not sit his best to win $25 for his young master.

POST-ARRANTED FATHER IS IN CUSTODY

DENVER, Colo., May 25.—J. G. Docketry, railroad laborer, holds the local record, police say, for encountering with the law.

He faces sentence of from one to ten years in prison/after being found guilty of taking "indecent liberties" with his daughter.

Docketry faces trial on a similar charge brought by another daughter. His wife, Mary Docketry, is suing him for divorce and has had him arrested on misdemeanor charges seven times during the past six months, officials say.

Charges of violating the Prohibition law are pending against Docketry in federal court.

BAR GUM EPON PRINCESS' ARRIVAL

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Society boys are preparing a welcome here today for Princess Santa Luiza Borguesa of Rome, carefully hid their chewing gum, if they had any.

When in Santa Barbara enroute here, the princess, who has come to this country to study social conditions, told an interviewer, that in the course of her observations she has "seen really refined young American women chewing gum in public."
