

FARM BLOC ASK PROBE OF WALL STREET

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The farm bloc will try to force through the coming congress a resolution for the most searching congressional investigation of "Wall Street" farm manipulation.

"Wall Street" is the bloc's name for New York's huge financial machinery including the stock exchange, brokerage houses and big financial institutions.

Recent sensational failures of New York brokerage concerns and the government's investigation against the New York sugar exchange in an effort to stop speculative trading, which was held out as a precedent for the sugar price increases, have reassured farm bloc members toward "Wall Street" which many of its members blame for the farmers' troubles.

Water and southern farm bloc members have been corresponding with a view to organizing the bloc to get through in the early part of the coming season a sweeping investigation resolution. At a general conference of farm bloc specialists, the water house members to be held in Washington later this summer, a detailed program for the inquiry about the inquiry is to be directed to these generalities.

What relation do speculative activities in New York bear to the country's money supplies, the bloc speculation is up before Congress to be available for creditors for farmers and business men?

Can congress pass laws that will start a check on speculation to limit speculation, both to commodities like sugar, wheat and similar articles, and to stocks?

What percentage of Wall Street's income is legitimate and necessary, how much of it is merely speculative?

What are the relations and efforts of Wall Street financial agents and methods used in the affairs of the U. S. government?

These main questions will open a vast field of inquiry to be explored if the inquiry is authorized, the bloc wants it, the financial structure of this country in its entirety should be thrown open to searching investigation.

Quick Quaker Oats Cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes. Now Quaker Oats offer two great advantages over any other oats you can buy. First, a quick-cooking style, perfect by our experts. It cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. It is the quickest-cooking oats in the world. Made of the same quick grain, but the oats are cut before baking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And the small thin flakes cook quickly. Your grocer has both styles. If you want Quick Quaker look for "Quick" on the label. You will get the quickest-cooking oats in the world.

NEWS OF THE SPORT WORLD

TWIN FALLS TAKES CLOSE TILT FROM KIMBERLY; RAIN HALTS THINGS END OF 8TH

See-saw Affair Featured by Pitching of Linville and Lemp Major Part of Game; Hitting of Riley, Lemp, Don Linville, Hulihan and Watson Spectacular; Storm Interferes.

ALTHOUGH out hit 9-0 Twin Falls came from behind yesterday and defeated Kimberly on their home lot, 4-4. Both Don Linville of Twin Falls and Nick Lemp of Kimberly pitched in and seven innings when they were replaced by Wolf Jarman and Wheeler respectively. Oddly enough both of these pitchers were relieved because of their inability to find the plate. Linville permitted a double and two successive walks and Lemp giving four men free.

With a free crowd present the game got under way smoothly enough. The first two frames were devoid of runs, which went to deep centerfield, toward the way for the first score. An error and a single put the wily big across, well-watched.

The home club made it two to nothing by putting over another in the fourth. Riley tripled to left and scored on Hankins sacrifice fly to deep center.

Twin Falls made one in the fifth, error and coming home on his brother's single to center.

"Hoola" Linville getting a life on an error and coming home on his brother's single to center.

The score was tied, however, only until Kimberly came to bat. After nine on first, Jarman single and Kim in second, Jimmie single and Kim at home on Lemp's second hit of the day, a sharp single to left field.

Twin Falls not busy in the lucky seventh, scoring a quartet of runs. Lemp's arm suddenly refused to do his bidding, and he walked through a row. Another walk, a hit and a wild throw did the damage and sent Nick Paton, c. to left field, Wheeler to the mound and Emerson to the left.

Emerson sprang his hand and found it difficult to field the ball. Kimberly made a determined stand in the eighth and fast inning, tallying with his second error. He came through game, a scorching two bases hit. Don Linville, who had pitched in great erratic streak, passing two men. Lemp and no more runs came in.

The eighth inning was marred by an argument over Empire Wheeler's decision in calling Jarman's foul. Jarman out at first, Kimberly contending that he was safe and that that's all the base when he caught the ball. It was a critical decision for, if he lost the run would have scored and chances good, indeed. If he were out, well-as was out, and there you have divided in their slow-motion reading, regardless of which side was right.

After a long argumentative period, the Kimberly players took the field, but after Jarman and Watson had been thrown out at first the rain and mud hastened upon the spectators. The game went on record as one of eight innings.

FARM JOURNAL ON FARM NEEDS.

"The world has become too small for European wars to go on without us," predicts Frederick J. Libby, in the June issue of The Farm Journal. He says: "If France, Poland and the Balkans are going to fight Germany, Russia and perhaps England—not to mention but in ten or twenty years—your children are vitally interested in the prospect. "So let us look into this economic conference idea which the agricultural conference in Washington indulged more than a year ago," pleads Mr. Libby in his Farm Journal story.

Seven things would have to be accomplished if that economic conference is to succeed. It must be practically all seven or nothing. "First comes German reparations," declares The Farm Journal article, which proceeds to say: "Germany must pay for the restoration of the devastated area in France. In addition, she must pay whatever is just, up to her capacity. "Second comes the floating of a loan to Germany for as much of the debt as possible, chiefly so that France can get some cash on account. She needs immediate relief. "Third comes the matter of the inter-allied debts. Business men should determine how much France and Poland and Belgium and Italy and our other debtors can pay.

"Fourth comes the big question whether this reduction of debts will only lead to Europe's having more money for more armaments. If so, we are against it—flat! Unconsciously, the reduction of armaments in Europe is a vital element of the problem to be solved, and while more can disarm alone, all can reduce their armaments drastically by common agreement, and with great advantage to the treasury of all. "But if armies are cut, security must be assured in some other way. This, then, the necessary fifth point. The plan worked out by Lord Robert Cecil for 'regional guarantees' whereby the European nations would agree to help each other in case of aggression one of their number that had reduced its armaments, combined perhaps with demilitarization of the Rhine, may prove feasible. "Now if armies and navies are cut, it will become possible to balance national budgets (and more, and stop the march toward bankruptcy. So this is the sixth point. "One thing more would be necessary to complete the restoration of universal credit, however, and that is, the abandonment of the reliance on paper and the stabilization of the currencies on some common basis such as gold. This is point seven. "These, then," concludes Mr. Libby, in The Farm Journal article, "are the tasks for the Economic conference for which the world waits."

WIFE WANTED

Women who advertise in the papers published by matrimonial for wives, 68. That's how the ads run in a recent issue of the largest matrimonial paper publisher who the women outnumber the men three and a half to one. Women are handicapped by convention. They are the stick-back-and-visitors. Men, unrestrained, are the go-getters. (Theoretically, at any rate.) A man who would take unto himself a wife can look them over and arrange an introduction—if one is necessary. But a woman can't walk up to a man, object matrimony.

Women who advertise in the papers published by matrimonial bureaus naturally "talk up" their charms as selling points—facial beauty, form, disposition, popularity, sympathetic instinct. The men, in their ads, do their heavy talking about the money they have and their prospects. In short, their ability to be a "good provider."

It's the old cave-man system: "Come with me, fair dame, I have a rainproof cave, a nice warm fire, and I can fetch in plenty of meat and lick all comers."

Here's a typical ad by a man seeking a mate, the advertiser's address somewhere in New Jersey: Girls: I'm looking for a nice, clean, thrifty little wife. Am an American, ex-soldier, age 32, height 6 feet, weight 160, dark hair and eyes, pleasing appearance, good character, healthy, never married. Have money and city property to the value of $20,000. Prefer maidens, age 18 to 32, no widows or big blonds. Another advertiser 40s applicants to midsize church or bank references. As a special inducement, to ensure his having a wide selection, he promises $250 gold slug for best letters, $20 for the next and $10 for third. "This businesslike gent hails from Nevada. Few of the male advertisers seem to think they are exceptionally handsome. Or, if they do, they play safe by reserving that talking point for the clinching argument later. Only one in 20 publishes his picture. Curiously enough, most of these handsome males announce that they are broad-minded, generous disposition, or "deep thinkers"—whatever that means. In all this typical of the average man seeking a mate? Does it reveal the masculine qualities or traits that men think are most enticing to the fair sex?

Wolfe Asks $174,265 of Stewart; Attaches $25,000 in Bank Here

Plaintiff Says That Defendant When He Failed to Comply with Terms of Agreement, Caused Loss of Surveying Costs, Money in Escrow in Nevada Bank and Money Available for Construction; Suit Will Not Delay Road.

Declaring that, on account of alleged failure of Joseph L. Stewart of San Francisco, to live up to the terms of a contract entered into August 22, 1922, damage in the amount of $174,265 has been inflicted upon him, Charles Wolfe today brought suit by his attorney, Thorer K. Heckman, for that amount against Stewart and attached the $25,000 now in escrow in the Twin Falls National bank in this city. Mr. Heckman stated that the action would in no way interfere with the proceedings of the new board of directors of the Idaho Central in choosing the business of that company, and would in no way retard the construction of the line from Rogerson to Wells by the Oregon Short Line railroad.

Wolfe claims that by reason of failure of Stewart to comply with certain conditions of their agreement, a copy of which is made part of the complaint, he is held for $242,655 including charges on the survey recently completed; that Stewart, inasmuch as he agreed to the $25,000 cash raised by Reno county, Nevada, would have been available and that backing from New York capitalists to the extent of $100,000 had been secured. For all these reasons, the damages in the full amount, with necessary costs incurred in prosecuting the suit.

Office History of Case
According to the complaint, George L. Davis, Thomas McQuibban, John L. Stewart, Richard L. Stewart and J. L. Stewart incorporated the company originally and made application for a certificate of incorporation. The certificate which was granted by the Interstate commerce commission. Wolfe further states that the company was organized in the month of July, 1922, the assurance was given by Stewart that he owned or controlled the right of way between the towns of Wells, Idaho, and Rogerson, Idaho, and that in addition he owned or controlled the right of way between the towns of Wells, Idaho, and Rogerson, Idaho, and that in addition he owned or controlled the right of way between the towns of Wells, Idaho, and Rogerson, Idaho.

Terms of Contract
It is alleged that under the terms of the agreement, owing to the resignation of John L. Stewart, the company was dissolved and the assets of the company were sold. The proceeds of the sale were to be used to pay the debts of the company and to distribute the balance to the shareholders. However, it is alleged that the assets were not sold and the proceeds were not distributed.

Wolfe's Claim
Wolfe claims that immediately before the survey was completed a total of $242,655 was available for the survey. However, it is alleged that the money was not used for the survey and that the survey was not completed.

Stewart's Defense
Stewart's attorney, Thorer K. Heckman, has filed a motion to dismiss the complaint. He claims that the complaint is barred by the statute of limitations and that the damages claimed are too speculative.

Wolfe's Reply
Wolfe has filed a reply to Stewart's motion. He claims that the statute of limitations does not apply and that the damages claimed are not speculative.
