GIANTS' LEAD DWINDLES AS REDS PICK UP

Pirates Annex Two Out of Three Games While Cincinnati Hurries Along at New York's Heels; Situation Critical.

(By HENRY L. PARRELL.) NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—With their lead flattered away by two and one-half games, the New York Giants are once again in that position which might be called critical. Yesterday they dropped the final game of the series to the Pirates...

and gave the Pirates a grand total of two out of three. The Reds won and came back again within jabbing distance of the leaders. All the noble work that the world's champions on their last victorious sweep through the west has gone for nothing. The lead they acquired by knocking the Pirates strong and beating the Reds on the floor has faded away through one of the worst storms the team has had this season. As long as the Giants maul and murder pitchers they were able to get by even when they were carrying some terrible burking with them but the batters have now hit the slide with the pitchers and they are in a bad fix. With his pitchers in the hole again, John McGraw can have no happy thoughts over the coming series with the national St. Louis Cardinals, unless he can work his offense around to some kind of an effective attack.

WOULD NOT BE POPULAR GAME

Youngster Couldn't See Marble Pains as Explained to Him by His Fond Mother.

James R. is eight years old, and a native of a small city. The other day he came home with a lot of new marbles, and after hunting up his old ones, announced that he had just lost.

The next day he came home and shook out the empty bag; his mother saw him and asked: "Where are your marbles?" "I lost 'em, lost 'em to Gene, he won 'em."

"Why, Jimmie boy, how did you play?" she queried. "Well, we put down a box, and he threw one, and I threw one, and when one of us missed 'y the other one took all they was in the box."

The astonished mother saw, and as she uses the method of substitution in the rearing of her children, then proceeded to tell him how he ought to play, using such terms as "law" and "man" and "span out."

When she had finished, this was the answer she received: "Why mother, if I played marble like that, I wouldn't ever find anybody in this town to play with but you."—Indianapolis News.

MISERY IN CONSTANTINOPLE

The famous beggars of Constantinople must go. Their numbers have increased so greatly since the war and they have become so importunate and impudent that the authorities have instructed the police to stop their operations. They infest the streets and localities where foreigners gather, demanding alms at every step. In a recent roundup nearly 2,000 children of both sexes were found to be living by begging and sleeping in rains, old dugouts, under mosquito terraces or in niches in the walls. In one neighborhood more than forty boys and girls were found.

JANE KNEW THE ANSWER

A seventh-year class in School 29 was reading the ordinance of 1787, and came on these words: "The free male inhabitants." When asked the meaning of the phrase, Jane promptly replied: "The unmarried men."—Indianapolis News.

LUIS, HIMSELF, IN AND OUT OF THE RING

It ought to be the "battle of the ages"—this go between Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo. Brute strength and punching power probably will predominate over ring cleverness in their little party at the Polo Grounds in New York, September 4. Both the champion and the "Wild Bull of the Pampas" have started in on their training rig. Here are some late pictures of the Argentine matter. They show his "ring face" and his dangerous hitting power. And yet, we almost forgot, Luis Angel all dolled up in his "civilian," too!

HARSH TREATMENT OF INFANTS

Those Afflicted in Anatolia Confined in Dungen, Their Only Diet Being Bread and Water. The religion of the Anatolian peasant is streaked with primitive paganism—Christian though he be. A firm belief in nature spirits is one of these maniacisms. Melville Chater in the National Geographic Magazine describes how these spirits "evile" an insane person by exercising the devil within him. In a pitch dark dungeon underneath a church at Kaisariye, where Christians daily worship, insane persons lay upon the stone floor, mangled and food, living on bread and water till the evil spirit had relinquished possession and had fled to attend to other satanic business. Since medieval times this particular Oregon has enjoyed local popularity for the exercising of evil spirits. No matter how violent, the patient is usually calmed after a few days of bread, water and manacles and darkness.

PROOF OF TWIN FALLS' GROWTH

No more convincing proof of the rapid growth of the population of Twin Falls need be cited than the fact that 75 new water licenses have been taken out within the past sixty days; an average of one and a quarter per day, including Sundays. This means that 75 new families have come to stay within the past two months; for transients do not rent places permanently and take out water licenses. At five persons per family, on the average, this means a permanent increase of nearly 400 souls. It must be remembered that this increase is due to popular co-operation accompanied by promise of future development, which is indeed assured by not actually under way. No wonder the veteran Twin Falls citizen, Carl Hahn, in taking charge of the hotel and sanitarium which opened this week in the Lloyd hospital building, says that this is the most opportune time in the history of the city to begin business in Twin Falls, and that the next thirty days will see a wonderful advance.

It is worthy of notice that the recent growth in this city has commenced with the decline of fractional spirit which for a time unfortunately divided the community and prevented the co-operation which is necessary for the greatest degree of municipal development.

It is fortunate that this renewed spirit of co-operation, with its splendid results is shown at a time when the meeting of the district convention of the Kiwanis clubs of Utah and Idaho is to meet here. The Kiwanis motto, "We Build" cannot be realized in any community which is divided by distrust. In the present harmonious Twin Falls spirit alone can be found the inspiration to build up the community as it is now being built up and as it should in still greater degree be built up in the immediate future.

WORK MEETS ENEMIES OF THE WEST

Idaho cannot help but feel gratified over the statement of Secretary of the Interior Work that the west should have additional reclamation projects where and when feasible, for it is a most fitting reply to the enemies of the west who are endeavoring to influence congress to withdraw aid to the west and curtail to such an extent as to be seriously damaging, appropriations needed in western states to reclaim arid lands. Idaho included.

And those enemies are ever active. Not a few of them are misguided, and being misguided, make erroneous and damaging statements. Take for instance a recent statement issued by the National Bank of Commerce of New York in its current issue of the commerce Monthly.

A policy of immediate reclamation of every acre of arid land for which water can be procured cannot command unquestioning support," says the review. "The demand for farm products depends upon domestic consumption and export trade. In so far as the increase in the volume of agricultural output keeps pace with the growth of population it is secure. But enlarged production which creates a greater surplus for export, is precarious, in view of the gradual improvement of agriculture in Europe, the possibility of development of Siberian grain lands and the increase of agricultural production in the tropics. Temporary glut of farm products on the market has heretofore caused situations which the farming community would not like to see repeated. The west is not asking for the immediate reclamation of every acre of land for which water can be procured. The west does ask that present projects under construction be completed and that projects shown to be feasible be constructed under the supervision of the government. And that is the policy that Secretary Work is in harmony with. It will take some years to complete these projects and the land under them will therefore not produce immediately. By the time the projects are completed and the lands are producing, domestic and foreign market conditions will have experienced a natural change.

Should the west remain stagnant so far as reclamation is concerned, or should it plan for the future and urge upon congress that it be liberal in its assistance toward bringing about the reclamation of lands for which water is available? Definitely the latter should be our attitude. Secretary Work, the man who will have more influence than any one else to follow out the west's idea here, believes as the west does. And he makes clear his attitude when he says in outlining the policy of the reclamation service:

"Reasonable against any new project where the cost is so high that there is no reasonable probability of the farmers being able to repay construction costs. Such action will advance and not retard meritorious reclamation projects.

"Recommended against any new projects where the probable cost of operation and maintenance, through pumping or otherwise, will be too heavy a burden for the water users to carry annually.

"Make not only engineering studies of proposed projects, but studies of soil, climate and markets, including kinds of fruit, grains or other crops which the soil and climate will permit to be grown profitably.

"Make careful study of the probable annual cost of operating and maintaining a project when land, including the cost of drainage systems.

"If a project is undertaken, see to it that the cost of construction is accurately calculated, so that when the work is completed unexpected and unanticipated burdens do not rest upon water users because of undervalued construction costs.

If Moon Is Out of Reach, Try Spotlight Substitute

Helen Moretti Finds Singing Urge-Will Always Find a Way

If you can't have the moon, the spotlight makes a very good substitute. At least so Helen Moretti has found. Helen grew up expecting to be a grand opera singer. She came of a long line of operatic stars, and she had a voice that was said to be a credit to the family. But there was a serious drawback - Helen hadn't the money for the intensive training that opens demands. I was determined to sing, yet I had to earn money," Miss Moretti explains. "I looked like an unshakable median until one day the head of a valuable agency happened to hear it. Warbling. He offered me a contract at more than I could have made in grand opera after all my training, and I took him up."

"Since then I've learned several things. One is that vaudeville is not necessarily low-down. After that in life you meet a wider range of people, and if you have the 'uplift' instinct you can help educate them."

"Take for instance Tell Me a Story, a fox trot ballad I sing, written by the composer of that unforgettable 'Whispering.' It's high class and I have trained my audience to like it and ask for a repetition of it. They prefer it, far above their 'habitués.' I see that while I tell the song and grand opera - today - to my vaudeville. She'll like it, and pretty soon the spotlight will have been brighter to her than the moon ever is."

should be put under the control of water users at the earliest possible moment."

Secretary Work has outlined a common sense policy that is constructive and, if followed, will mean much for the development of the west. Idaho is particularly interested in the reclamation of its lands and the utterances of the secretary should make us feel that in the head of the interior department this state and all western states vitally interested in a solid and substantial reclamation program, have a friend. # No More Fooling

Nowhere did Abraham Lincoln show his shrewdness of judgment to better effect than in that famous utterance which ended, "You can't fool all the people all the time."

In the past, there were a few misguided advertisers who thought they could sell their wares better by misrepresentation. But those advertisers have long since gone out of business or mended their ways. Hard experience taught that Lincoln was right. Untruthful advertising doesn't pay.

Other advertisers proved that the only way to advertise successfully, make regular customers and build up public good-will was to tell the absolute truth about their goods.

So, you can be sure that every consistently advertised product is good. The advertising test has proved it. The very fact that it is advertised is your best warranty of satisfaction and true quality.

The concern that tells you frankly what it is doing is a good concern with which to do business. That is why it pays to read the advertisements, to patronize advertisers, and to buy advertised merchandise.

WHEAT CROP USELESS TO PRODUCERS

Apparent Heavy Reduction of Freight to California Points of Only Nominal Value; No Alteration in Tariffs to Real Points of Shipment; New Line Will Make Difference

Although the wheat rate from Twin Falls to California points was cut this morning by nine cents, the wheat will be shipped to San Pedro Harbor or Los Angeles, and the rate to Portland is more satisfactory than the new rate to California. The fact seems to bear out the contention of Senator Frank R. Connelley, that the shipping rate cut is not a real cut.

There will be a cut of a cent per hundred by St. Louis on August 30, but the effect, so far as the local wheat crop is concerned, will be nominal. It will be all, since there is no wheat being shipped to California from Twin Falls to Los Angeles and San Pedro Harbor after August 30 under the new rate. The rate to California, which is being computed on the basis of the new rate to Portland, is not a real cut, since the rate to Portland was anticipated when the wheat opened here, so that the completion of the road from Moscow to Twin Falls will make a great difference in the price of wheat in Twin Falls. It will make a better shipper of wheat than Portland and make the reduction a real, instead of a nominal benefit to the producers of the tract.
