WORLD PEACE REALIZATION IS UP TO U.S.

Lloyd George Says Issue Clearly in Hands of America; England Ready to Come to Better Understanding With U. S.

ALHOUND, LLOYD GEORGE SPECIAL INQUIRY TO WINNERS, Oct. 11.—It is strictly up to the United States to decide which world would become a standard of a desired ideal, Lloyd George believes. Gaining a step further today in discussion of his plan for peace insurance by an unwritten compact between the British Empire and the American republic, the British statesman expressed the belief that Great Britain and all her dominions are ready today for an understanding with the United States, which in Lloyd George's opinion would mean that no aggressor nation would ever fire a gun because the mighty power of America and Britain would crush economically and if need be by military force, any warlike power that dared threaten world peace. American threats must speak before this plan can become operative. That it will eventually be the means to bring back world peace and thus preserve it, he has no doubt.

First step in the direction of American willingness in such cooperation lies in the Harbord proposal on reparations. Lloyd George says the Hughes plan, if carried out, would simply restore the original basis of handling the reparations question, he said. Until that question is settled there can be no peace. The first step was destroyed when the Harbord States rejoined the Versailles treaty.

New Air View of Yankee Stadium; Giant Copper Bat for Weather Vane

Baseball fans who take in the World's Series have the privilege of watching some of the games from the new Yankee Stadium in New York, the world's largest baseball park, with a seating capacity of 50,000. Special airplane photographs were taken a few days ago during one of the few clear periods preceding the great 1923 battle of the mound and give a unique view of the colossal enclosure. The soft color of the copper cornice along the top of the grand stand was clearly visible in the shadow and the unusual flag pole in the foreground was shown bearing the American flag with the Yankee pennant behind, and the words "Champion, American League, Season 1922." This flag pole bears on its summit point a great copper baseball bat and just beneath is a tremendous copper baseball 10 feet in length, giving a fitting insignia of a park which in the home grounds of Babe Ruth, as being useful as a weather vane. Both the cornice and the bat were done in copper because of the permanency of that metal and the fact that both its perfect resistance to the weather and its hardness preclude the possibility of repairs ever having to be made.

SCIENCE TOLD IN TABLOID

HEATLESS LIGHT.

Benjamin Franklin wrote in "Four Richards," Almagest, "Light is what is needed in discussion." It is not only what is needed in discussion but it is what is needed and is now being sought in science. Many experiments are being made in an attempt to produce light without heat.

All forms of man-made light are wasteful. A large portion of such light is lost to heat. Nature produces the cheapest light. It is about one-fourth of the energy expended in a candle flame. It is called "cold light" because it is produced apart from high temperature and is light without heat. The light of the firefly is the cheapest form of light.

The production of light by animals and plants is the cheapest light which little is known. It occurs in at least 36 orders of animals—marine worms, starfishes and many deep-sea fishes. Animal light does not occur above the level of fishes. (Copyright, 1923, by United States Syndicate, Inc.)

ELECTRIC BEAN DYER WANTED.

Attention was called to The Times today of a new invention in England which dries hay in the stack. It is said that it is the best of the kind and that the traffic would be like the Sahara; the hay is stacked without an apparatus with a fan blowing electricity past it. It is said that the ventilation dries the hay and preserves certain qualities lost in the field. It is thought that water beans might result from the operation of a similar machine in Idaho—the stack.

Cancer New Scourge of World; Mortality Rate Rises Steadily

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Cancer is becoming the scourge of the modern world. This mysterious disease of which less is known than of any other man-killing ailment, is definitely increasing in prevalence and malignancy. Tuberculosis is declining steadily according to the report of the chief medical officer of the British ministry of health.

Other diseases are coming increasingly under the control of medical science. Cancer remains the unknown instrument of death. Dr. Margaret Lloyd, who recently died of cancer, may have achieved eternal fame as the discoverer of investigation which may result in full understanding of the dread disease. Dr. Hollies spent weary months in bed, slowly dying, and poorly aware of the certain painful end which awaited her.

Throughout all she daily dictated to fellow doctors the symptoms of her own "cancer" she observed through the notes that acquired medical sciences will make a toward effort to reach a solution of the cancer problem. As long as cancer remains half understood there can be no cure for the thousands of unfortunates who suffer from it.

In forty years the number of cancer deaths per million of population in the British Isles has risen from 620 to 1215, an increase of more than 100 per cent. The latter figure is for the year 1922.

WORLD SERIES

IN-TEAMMATES

Bambino's Two Circuit Clubs Transferred Entire Team Quickly Into Aggregation of Powerful Sluggers.

By HENRY L. FARNELL, United Press Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Starting all over from scratch, Babe Ruth and his "body's series" the New York Yankees and the Giants will resume the battle for world's honors in the Yankee stadium this afternoon.

Yankees' great comeback in which the mighty slugger returned in full glory for his kingdom and beat the Giants 4 to 3, put the series back to one game, and the both teams on the line for a new start.

New York awoke this morning straining eyes to penetrate a foggy veil all over the city. Street cars had closed the morning of their way feelingly through a curtain as gloomy as London ever saw. High up in the sky the sun was battling gamely to get through and the weather man predicted O. D. Sol would win in about 24 hours.

Indian summer temperatures again prevailed but the thermometer was high enough to threaten the possibility of the rain that has been trying to horn into the city for 10 days.

There was nothing new about the game of the series but Babe Ruth and Harry Pennock, the two star pitchers of the Yankees.

The thrilling features and sensations of the opening game were being because the Yankees were completely subdued and their chances were killed as soon as they were born.

The Giants could not stop Ruth and Pennock would let the National League champions get started and the possibility of the condemnation of Yankee was at least momentarily complete.

Two home runs by Ruth, which proved the winning margin and which inspired the whole Yankee team into perfect transformation.

Yankees' victory over the Giants in ten wickets, their first against the Giants and put them where they were in the sentimental and mathematical situation.

Last in the line-up of his great hitting was a most spectacular bit of fielding by the great Babe which was just as big as anything he has done in his career.

BABE RUTH

STATEMENTS OF MANAGERS

Miller Huggins, Yankees: "The Yankees are hitting now and it looks like we will win the series. I thought Pennock would stop the Giants. I've used three pitchers and the Giants have worked four. It seems to me that today they will win. We're not worried about Neft or Groat."

John McGraw, Giants: "Ruth's batting, Dagan's fielding and Pennock's pitching were the Yankees' biggest assets yesterday. We will stop him tomorrow. We will not bid him a 'bravo' gift but I hope he'll get a big hit. We are not going to get any more than we were before the first game. The Yankees did not do much to Jack Bentley and Neft will give them trouble when he starts."

Community Building

LAYING OUT THE NEW TOWN

Highly Important Factors That Will Count in Future Development of the Place.

To build a new town successfully and quickly there are many mighty important factors involved, says H. E. Taylor, prominent Detroit real estate broker. The site should be selected with care. Provisions should be made in laying out the new town, that sites be provided for schools, churches, playground, recreation fields, town hall, fire department and the like.

Finances, transportation, churches, schools, water, efficient construction department and selling force are also important.

To speed growth of the new town proposed to build 1,000 or 2,000 houses at once. This will encourage others to build and give activity to one of all phases of life in the new community.

To see new houses going up by the thousands is much more reassuring to your prospective new resident than a mere prediction they will be built.

There is a distinct advantage for a man in selecting a suburban location for his new home in a new town. The new town provided the originator of the new town gives the benefits to the new community by building a complete of thousands new homes at once. Then improvements, schools, churches, transportation, and usually social life follow almost immediately.

BIG MEN FROM SMALL TOWNS

Complete List, if Ever Compiled, Would Prove Astonishing to the Average Man.

In Missouri there is a town called Gallatin, which has never contained over 2000 people. E. W. Howe's list of big men in the new town of Kansas City attorney, is making a collection of photographs of prominent men produced in Gallatin and its immediate vicinity. The list of big men presented to the county in which Gallatin is located, and hung in the courthouse in Kansas City, includes the list now numbers 100, and includes two United States senators, three members of the lower branch of congress, three members of judicial cabinets, a governor, numerous judicial and military officers, and business, literary and professional men of note.

Here is a story of a country town that should attract wide attention. All over the United States antiquated and dull country towns are being sent out on a mission of prominence and universal utility. What an encouragement for country boys!

Garden Cities in Germany.

Garden cities and their promoters have been the subject of an interesting subject of discussion in Germany. The German garden city movement was a direct outcome of the English movement, started by Ebenezer Howard in 1899. The German Garden City association was founded in 1902, with the object of introducing the German movement and introducing into Germany whatever in the English plans seemed applicable to the different circumstances in Germany.

During the first year of its existence, the young association met with much criticism and the attitude of the majority of its members forced it to proceed very carefully. Its chief object was to bring to the attention of entirely new cities to country districts, as had been Howard's original plan, but to create a new kind of town, the immediate relief of existing towns. Other essential features were that the movement to land values should be spent for the benefit of the community, who would continue to own the property, and that only a leasehold interest should be given to the cooperatively tenancy.

Home Worth Some Sacrifice.

"Things worth doing are not to be postponed without effort and sacrifice. Nothing is more worth while than a home."

OTTO F. SCHMIDT, chairman of the building loan committee of the Home Building exposition, said.

"The first step in home ownership is the decision that you will own your home. The next step is to own a first and saving. It then is a matter of weighing values; of economy to dress, food and furniture; the building fund may be made to grow.

"As soon as one commences to do anything, the first step is to determine the amount of his ambition, for it is astonishing how quickly a building fund will grow when contributed to systematically by another systematic person. The fact that instead of being an effort and a sacrifice, this activity is a pleasure and a source of mounting gratification."

EVERY COMMUNITY INTERESTED

Most of our readers have noted that American Education week is to be observed this year from Sunday, November 18, to Saturday, November 24, somewhat earlier than in former years. The program emphasizes the importance of the country schools by devoting the exercises of two days mainly to the consideration of rural problems.

Sunday, November 18, is designated, "For God and Country"; Monday, "American Constitution day"; Tuesday, "Patriotism day"; Wednesday, "School and Teacher Day"; Thursday, "Literary day"; Friday, "Community day"; Saturday, "Physical Education day".

The slogans for Friday, November 23, are, "An Equal Chance for All Children"; "A Square Deal for the Country Boy and Girl." The suggested program emphasizes the plan for "equality of opportunity for every American boy and girl" and urges the importance of a public library in every community. It is expected that every rural community will assemble at its schoolhouse on that day. On Saturday will be featured, "The Great Out of Doors" and the "Conservation and Development of Forests, Soil, Roads and Other Resources."

WHEN OKLAHOMA WAS YOUNG

The present troubles in Oklahoma, particularly as they apply to the matter of holding an election, will recall to many of the pioneers in that state a similar experience, but on a small scale, which might easily have become a bloody tragedy, which occurred in Oklahoma City during the summer of 1889.

Shortly after the opening of the territory, April 22, 1889, the people of Oklahoma City—the entire territory was under military rule at the time and for months later—were given permission to form a city government and administer their own affairs, subject of course, to the final approval of the military authorities. An election was held, the usual city officers were elected and installed and all was lovely for about sixty days. Then a few malcontents began an agitation for a new election. The provost marshal, who had consented to and aided in the first election, very promptly informed the citizens that another election would not be permitted. This pronouncement on the part of the provost marshal was met by a number of citizens by the suggestion that the army officer might select a deep hole in the nearby river and jump into it.

The day of the election arrived. With the exception of a first lieutenant and about 25 privates, all the cavalry and infantry stationed at Oklahoma City was in attendance at the annual encampment of troops near Arkansas City, Kan.

The day preceding the election the citizens were again admonished that the election would be prevented, but they paid no attention to the admonition. Ballots were prepared, several places for voting were provided and it was arranged that the polls should open at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Shortly before the hour of the opening of the polls the first lieutenant and his 25 men, armed with rifles provided with bayonets, arrived at one of the polling places. The lieutenant informed the gathering of voters that the election could not be held and ordered the crowd to disperse. The crowd jeered the lieutenant and his few soldiers and suggested that he go to some place which was hotter than was Oklahoma City at the time.

Within a few seconds the lieutenant had thrown his men into line from one side of the street to the other and then came the formal command: "Charge bayonets!" The soldiers charged. Several of the citizens attempted to argue the matter, but a soldier under orders has no time to argue, and by the time the aforesaid citizens had been prodded pretty severely with the business end of a bayonet they decided that it was time to move on, and they moved with great haste. Others moved with them.

The same procedure was employed at other polling places until there was only one gathering left. This crowd was being addressed by a soap-box vendor, who had climbed upon a high pile of lumber at the side of the street. By the time the soldiers reached this crowd several hundred persons had gathered. The orator had his back to the soldiers and did not know that they were approaching. He had worked himself into a frenzy and, waving his arms, shouted: "Follow citizens, the question that we must meet and meet right now is: 'Shall we submit to bayonet rule?'"

Just then the pretentious order of the first lieutenant rang out: "Charge bayonets!" The soap-box orator looked around and at once sensed the seriousness of the situation. He struck the street, running, and the big crowd followed him. The election was over.

... AT THE ... THEATRES

"THE COVERED WAGON"

In "The Covered Wagon" coming to the Lavington theatre next month, Twin Falls (theaters) will see a picture reproduced some of the most thrilling episodes in the annals of America. These are connected with the difficulties and dangers of the pioneers who wagon-trucked 2000 miles from the Missouri to Oregon, by more than a coincidence, the same old grandsons of the very heroes who attacked the caravans are the grim work of scalping and shooting the stragglers and of transfixing the hero, Billy Wingate, with an arrow, is done by Arapahoes, then by the Indians tribes armed with bows and arrows and shotguns.

"THE ISLE OF LOST SHIPS"

It has been a long time since we have seen such a thoroughly satisfying motion picture as "The Isle of Lost Ships" at the G. L. Layington Theatre. National picture which opened at the Orpheum theatre last night. It is 100 per cent entertainment and we predict that it will be one of the outstanding successes of the year. Maurice Tourneur, naturally directed it. That statement alone should make further comment unnecessary, for this director has an unbroken line of cinematic masterpieces to his credit. But Tourneur's work on "The Isle of Lost Ships" is such an unusual picture from every standpoint that it merits lavish praise. Life insurance offering is a powerfully told story of character development; of life lived in the raw, switched in big, broad strokes against a weird background as was ever conceived in the brain of man. Tourneur has given to the production a "vividly realistic touch and one so strikingly beautiful that it is lifted out of the realm of melodrama and into the land of the "fairly tale come true."

hills of the Rockies. Through Wendling and Idaho they proceeded amid great privation and hardships, that were lightened somewhat by the occasional success of Laramie and Fort Bridger, posts maintained by the government or used by the fur traders in their commercial dealings with the Indians. The next and last stop on the Oregon journey was Fort Hall, near the present Postville, soon after which the news of the discovery of gold was received from California.

NEWBORN AT IDAHO

Chester Conklin skipped through life as a "newbie" a bell-hop on the Oregon journey was Fort Hall, near the present Postville, soon after which the news of the discovery of gold was received from California. Chester Conklin's favorite expression—"Pictures claimed him"—and he became a Keystone cop. Mr. Conklin's role in "Desire," now showing at the Idaho Theatre, is one of the rare occasions when he dons a dress suit and remains just as funny. Most people consider a show incomplete without a comedy so this picture is no exception. It is a distinct novelty as it brings to the screen the famous "Gump Family." It is hard to conceive of a man in a life who could portray the famous chintz wonder but it seems a man has been found. And then the Old Home Town Four will sing the song entitled "Andy Gump" which is just being introduced at the music stores.

OIL IN SOUTHERN IDAHO

The cup of cheer to a man with oil experience is to catch his can full of crude oil from a well in which he is interested

We have over a 7 per cent showing of gas and oil against an adverse pressure of over 900 pounds per inch. A showing of this kind in our well is indicative of our being in a real good flow.

Our well is drilled to a depth of below 2900 feet, and this sand was encountered considerably above the depth at which we anticipated finding it. Therefore, we were not entirely equipped to continue to completion.

We have ordered all of the necessary material and expect its arrival at a very early date, at which time we will resume work and complete this well.

We are offering to the public, until October 25th, 1923, our non-assessible common stock at the price of 50c per share, no amount to be sold in less than 100 share lots. The assets of this company today entitle this stock to a valuation of above par, which is $1.00 per share. We believe there is little question that the book value of this stock will be $5.00 per share by January 1st, 1924.

We invite you to invest with us and partake of the benefits derived from our "Cup of Cheer."

Litvin Denies All Knowledge of Car Theft by Hannah

Well Known Garage Man Says That Salt Lake City Ford Thief Misrepresented Facts to Jury; Explains Statements to White Regarding Number of Cars Purchased.

"The reason I told Detective Albert White and the officers that I bought three or four cars from J. Hannah, instead of the actual number was this: I knew at the time that Hannah was accused of dealing in stolen cars, and I thought possibly that he had sold stolen cars to me. I knew if that were the case I would have to pay back what I received. I had money enough to pay for three or four if I told him the names of all those that would all come in at once and I would have to close up business. But if they came in from time to time I could make arrangements to take care of them. Hannah never told me that he had stolen any of the cars that he sold to me and never mentioned anything else, except that he had information about the preliminary trial that the cars were really stolen. —David Litvin, as witness in his own behalf told to the jury this afternoon on direct examination.

He denied all statements of Hannah implicating him with connection with the theft, saying that Hannah had never told him that a certain car was a "hot car" and explaining the quarrel with Deputy Assessor Jack Shirout. He made arrangements to repay those to whom he sold stolen cars.

With reference to the debate about the date with which the office of the assessor, Litvin said that it would be difficult for him to determine the date on which the cars to do more than designate them as such, and that the law required no more. In many cases he has receipts or tags on the cars were used. He bought cars from many persons. He stated that David Litvin allowed to an excitement when informed by J. Hannah, confessed auto thief, that Hannah had sold cars to him.

Hannah said that he advised Litvin to take bills of sale for his own protection when he began dealing with him and that Litvin did for a while and then refused to do so. Hannah said he asked the Twin Falls man if he might set any lawyers and the latter agreed that this might be done. Ernest Reed back in a telegram said that he had seen a check book, but on an account of work on American Falls. The witness said that Hannah was the one who showed him.

Albert A. White, United States deputy assessor, said that he and the other officers were present when Litvin arrived at the assessor's office, while White City Detective E. Woodard of Salt Lake City was searching for the missing car. White said that he had shown Litvin a picture of Hannah and asked him if he knew him, to which Litvin replied that he had never heard of him. White said he asked the Twin Falls man if he had ever seen cars from Hannah and Litvin said he had bought two. He said that later Litvin said he had bought one or two years ago. He said he asked Litvin if he had sold one to K. H. Woodard and he had said no. The following White said that he, E. Woodard and J. A. Woodard were at Litvin's garage when Litvin told him that he had sold a car to Ernest Reed back and that he had forgotten about that sale. White said that he told Reed back that he would not help get the car back, but while White helped him get up right or into car, Litvin did not say a word to him, as he was informed by Litvin's lawyers, he said, that Litvin did help.

White said he told Litvin his official position, but did not inform the defendant that his statements might be used against him.

White said he asked Litvin at the court house if he had bills of sale for the cars he bought from Hannah and the latter said he did, but had them in the car and that he had brought them for the door to go to the Litvin garage when Litvin said he had to bill the sale. The witness then asked to see the books he had to transactions and Litvin said he kept them.

Case Last Thursday
J. J. Hannah, alias Henry Parker, took the stand late yesterday in the case against David Litvin, who was charged with the receipt of stolen Ford, which Hannah was turned over to the Twin Falls man. Hannah arrived Thursday afternoon with United States Detective A. White and was put upon the stand. He was a close order witness had testified. The state contends that Hannah stole the Ford car and turned it over to Litvin. The Salt Lake dealer, who is under federal indictment, said on the stand when first court adjourned, Hannah says that he stole the Ford car.
