Automobile Industry Will Break All Records in 1924

(Copyright, 1923, by United Press) Detroit, Dec. 8.—The automobile industry in 1924 will equal, if not exceed, the prosperity it experienced this year—the greatest year in its history—three of the leading motor car manufacturers in America predicted in exclusive interview with the United Press today.

"The greatest stimulant that business could have," said C. S. Mott, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, is the full adoption of Secretary Mellon's recommendations for drastic tax reductions.

"I expect the 1924 automobile business to equal that of 1923, which was the greatest ever enjoyed by the industry and is much larger than 1922," Vice President Mott said.

"Our best indications of industrial prosperity are based on employment. From everywhere information is that more men are working more steadily than ever before.

The Hogerson Wells railroad is started. The dream of the ages long to pass in Twin Falls and Southern Idaho. Now let's keep boosting until it is completed to Wells and then go after another line from the north which will make Twin Falls the mead of Southern Idaho as a transportation center.

The Salvation Army drive in this city is meeting with success because their cause is a worthy one. Some of the biggest and best business men have laid down their regular avocations and are devoting their valuable time to this undertaking. One-half of this money goes to the support of the home for unfortunate young mothers who need special care and attention at a critical time in their life. The other half is used right here at home for charity work and for the support of the Salvation Army movements in Twin Falls.

People here who were acquainted with the Brownings of Ogden will be pleased with the decision of the court which gave those young men their freedom. We are inclined from the evidence presented to believe that the man who was shut was not a good husband and did not deal fairly with his wife and the Browning brothers were justified in trying to take her home where she would be given a square deal and not be subjected to the threats of a drunken husband. The whole affair is a sad case and will always leave a blot on the fair record of both families.

BANK RETURNS SHOW GREAT PROSPERITY

The growth of individual debits during the past month in Twin Falls is one of the signs of forthcoming wonderful prosperity in this district. It shows this community up as one where money is plentiful and banks are on a stable basis.

It is believed that next year the banks of Twin Falls county will be able to finance the needs of the county on their own money. When work gets under way on a large scale on the new road in the spring the prosperity of the Twin Falls tract will increase greatly and when it is finished next fall crops can be delivered at San Francisco, the prosperity will be boundless.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

(From Capital News.)

President Calvin Coolidge has delivered his first address to congress. It is typical of the New England president—direct, decidedly frank and free from rhetorical flourishes. As messages go it is well balanced, contains constructive thought and indicates the president has a firm grasp of the situation that confronts the country. If there is a criticism to be offered it pertains to his views on the agricultural situation, but even that may be modified because the nation's chief executive lays upon the direct remedy—organization to meet organization.

A simple but fitting tribute is paid by President Coolidge to the memory of the man he succeeds—Warren G. Harding. "It is our duty under the inspiration of his example, to take up the burdens which he was permitted to lay down, and to develop and support the wise principles of government which he presented." By that expression, President Coolidge recognizes the Divine right to give and to take away and yet he recognizes the great principles for which the late president stood.

In a few well chosen words, the president disposes of our foreign policy. He classes the league of nations as a "closed incident," the country having definitely refused to adopt it. He recognizes the league only as a foreign agency. "We hope it will be helpful," he said, adding, "but the United States sees no reason to limit its own freedom and independence of action by joining it. We shall do well to recognize this basic fact in all national affairs and govern ourselves accordingly." The president declares he is for the creation of a permanent world court in which the United States shall participate. This he holds to be not a partisan question and should be discussed with entire candor without pressure and without prejudice.

There will be general commendation of President Coolidge's stand on the Russian question. He is against recognition of that country now. He has an objection to the carrying on of commerce by American citizens with Russia. "Our government does not propose, however, to enter into relations with another regime which refuses to recognize the sanctity of international obligations," says the president. "I do not propose to harbor away for the privileges of trade any of the cherished rights of humanity. I do not propose to make merchandise of any American principles. These rights and principles must go wherever the sanctions of our government go." America will go in the economic rescue of Russia only when that country shows a disposition to compensate our citizens who were despoiled and to recognize the debt contracted with our government, says the president.

The nation's chief executive holds the allies to their debts, but he says he is willing to give them ample time, in which to pay. The deferred interest alone on this indebtedness, he says, amounts to a million dollars every day. "Our thousands of citizens with credit in the amount of hundreds of millions of dollars have no redress save in the action of the government," says the president. "There are very substantial interests, which claim the duty of our government to protect as best it can. That course I propose to pursue."

The message discusses the fiscal condition of the country, setting forth very briefly our main problems are domestic and every effort must be made to reduce the taxes of the people consistent with a constructive policy of taking care of our immediate needs. He "condemns a decrease in the tax on earnest incomes and abolition of admission, message and misance taxes. He would remove the tax on moving pictures, diminish the charges against moderate incomes, revise the surtaxes, abolish the excess profits tax.

Indulgence is given to the present tariff law and its elastic provision permitting the president to increase or decrease schedules not in excess of 50 per cent to meet the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. A merchant marine is favored, together with necessary public improvements, consolidation of railroads to reduce overhead and thus bring down freight rates, strict enforcement of the Volstead law, the formation of a better policy of mutual understanding, and confidence to deal with the negro question, and indulgence is given the principle of civil service.

Adequate defense in time of peace and proper support of the army and navy with an effort to develop aviation, are supported by the president. "We want no more competitive armaments," he says. "But we want no weakness that invites imposition. A people who neglect their national defense are putting in jeopardy their national honor." He declared for restricted immigration declaring, "America must be kept American."

The president is against the bonus. He makes that positive statement in his message. He favors proper and adequate care of war veterans and the support of their dependents. He finds much in hearty accord with most of the legislative program of the American Legion except the bonus. "The attitude of the government toward these proposals should be one of generosity," he says. Regarding the production and distribution of coal, the president says legislation is urgent to empower the president to appoint a commission to deal with any emergency that may arise.

Taking up the agricultural situation, the president says: "In the most part agriculture is successful." However, he finds there is some acute distress. He does not believe the government need the desired relief. "Simple and direct methods not interference by the farmer himself are the only real sources for restoration," he says. "The farmer must be relieved by a reduction of national and local taxes, he must have reduced freight rates and cheaper fertilizer. "He must have these organizations," asserts the president. "The customer with whom he exchanges products on the farm for those of industry, is organized, labor is organized, business is organized, and there is no way for agriculture to meet this unless it, too, is organized."

Idaho and the western states in general will be gratified over the view that President Coolidge takes on relief for settlers on reclamation projects, for therein he touches a matter that is close to the people of this state and the people generally of the west. He says: "By reason of many contributing causes, occupants of our reclamation projects are in financial difficulties, which in some cases are acute. Relief should be granted by definite authority of law empowering the secretary of the interior in his discretion to suspend, reduce, and reassess all charges against the water users. This whole question is being considered by experts. You will have the advantage of the facts and conclusions which they may develop. This situation, involving a government investment of more than $125,000,000, and affecting more than 30,000 water users, is serious. While relief which is necessary should be granted, no contracts with the government which can be met should be met. The established general policy of these projects should not be abandoned for any private control."

President Coolidge's message will be well received in the United States, although the reception is not likely to be so enthusiastic abroad. He frankly meets the pressing domestic problems and suggests a solution of some of them. His stand is firm as to our future foreign policy and while many will not doubt disagree with some of the things he says, they will be forced to admit that the entire message holds well to the traditions of the United States.

THE BASELESS FEAR OF FINANCE'S POWER

BY WALTER W. HEAD

We speak of "cool"; immediately we visualize a pile of black lumps. We speak of "wheat"; in our mind we picture a golden field of grain or perhaps the farmer's load on a team to market.

"Finance" is not a commodity. Being an intangible thing, it is greatly misunderstood. It means one thing to some people, another to others.

By reason of this mystery surrounding it, it is too frequently feared, and financiers assailed as enemies of the public good.

No nation or people ever achieved greatness without the assistance of finance—accumulated capital, managed and directed by those skilled in the handling of wealth and money.

Accumulated resources are represented at times by hoards of gold, but more frequently by ships, bonds, and other productive securities.

America measures her resources in terms of billions of dollars. She has thousands of prosperous private and public works of developed villages and towns, thousands of miles of railroads and paved roads.

When the early pioneers first traveled over the prairie, which are now rich and productive fields, their resources consisted of a few acres of soil, a healthful climate, and the sunshine and rain necessary to the growth of vegetation.

As the early settlers wrought and produced and prospered, they saved. These savings they have used as the tools of production—plows, harrows, bladders, stoves, railroads, banks and manufacturing machinery.

SAVINGS—FINANCIAL PROGRESS. The building of the railroads was the great outstanding contribution of finance to the development of the West.

The West owes a debt of gratitude to the investors in eastern states who returned to invest their money in the rich territory, making possible development by the use of their accumulated resources.

Bank deposits represent very largely the savings of the people. The loans they make possible are employed in productive enterprises.

The development of municipalities depends very largely upon the credits extended by investors and communities. The development of municipalities is possible very largely through the sale of municipal bonds to investors in other places. All this is the work of finance.

WAGES HERE AND ABROAD

THE American factory worker is receiving wages the purchasing power of which is above the wages paid in any other country in the world.

Table with 2 columns: City, Wages. Rows include New York, Ottawa, Amsterdam, London, Christiana, Stockholm, Warsaw, Brussels, Paris, Prague, Madrid, Berlin, Vienna.

An important factor in the discussion of the wages of workers is that the productivity of the American worker has been greatly increased.

WHAT AGRICULTURE NEEDS. A recent summary of the agricultural situation grouped the needs as follows:

1. Increased and balanced production. 2. Increased understanding of credit facilities. 3. Increased market facilities. 4. Better business methods.

DAIRY FACTS

Good Supply of Ice in Summer Big Investment

Nothing adds more to comfort in hot weather than a good supply of ice. In dairy farming it is an investment that pays a good return in the amount of produce that it saves from spoiling.

The machine shown is made by the use of the ice box. These boxes allow the ice to be stored, or removed with a small amount of lifting.

If also forms are obtainable, it takes a surprisingly small amount of material to build such an icehouse, and it will keep the ice in splendid condition with no danger of the ice as in houses that are built of wood.

Increase Productiveness of Herd by Better Sires

Keeping books with your cows to the only sure way to build a herd of high producers. In selecting cows on their records, discounting the unprofitable ones, using only good pure bred sires, and raising better calves from the best cows, you are sure to increase the productivity of the herd.

It is also advisable to weigh each milking because it enables one to feed intelligently and if sickness, neglect or abuse has caused a cow to drop in milk a remedy may be applied before the loss becomes serious.

Weighing milk creates interest among the milkers and encourages clean milking and careful treatment of the cows.

Ropiness in Milk Caused by Growth of Bacteria

A copy or alloy condition of milk, sometimes noticeable after the milk has stood several hours, is caused by the growth of a certain class of bacteria which gain entrance after the milk is drawn.

Though probably not more injurious than ordinary sour milk, this condition is especially troublesome when the milk is used in other milk products and otherwise in other milk and even to the detriment of an entire community.

The remedy is through washing and sterilizing of everything that in any way comes in contact with the milk. Continued hot water and steam at the rate of 12 to 15 ounces to the 100 gallons of water is recommended by the dairy department of the Ohio experiment station as a safe and effective disinfectant.

Find Crushed Corn Best at New Jersey Station

At the New Jersey station ear corn was compared to corn and cob meal for feeding cows. The corn was broken on the cob and compared to the other experiment station as a safe and effective disinfectant.

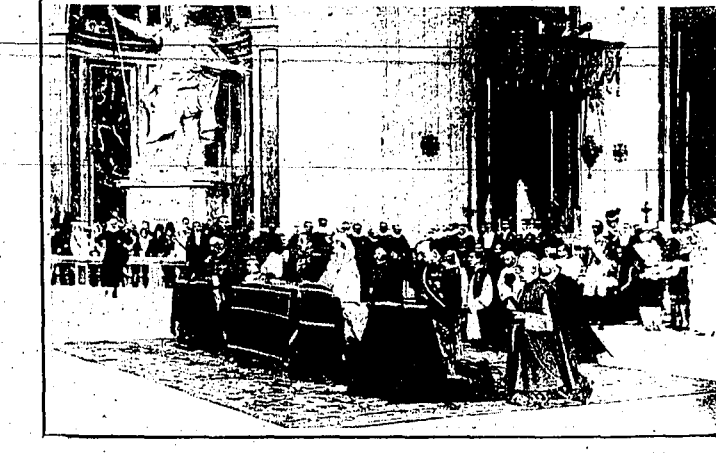

Save Holter Calves

Here's a good rule to follow—save your Holter calves and sell your bull calves. If he is a pure bred he is worth good money to a breeder.

Why Sell Rish Cream?

Cream testing from 30 to 40 per cent makes better butter than if it falls. For this reason a better price will be received, which is to the advantage of the creamery patron.

REDUCTION OF TAXATION ISSUE IS LAID SQUARELY BEFORE PUBLIC

Copyright, 1921, by National Budget Committee

THERE can be no doubt that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's recommendation to Acting Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee that the next Congress make a general downward revision of taxes has struck a responsive chord throughout the country.

It is concrete evidence, the kind that excites and detaches in every American home, that after a disastrous world war, the United States have passed the critical period of readjustment.

The approach to normal conditions has not been opened without a considerable effort, however, and it will be well for a citizenry, encouraged by Secretary Mellon's statement, to keep this in mind.

The surplus of receipts over expenditures which has resulted at the close of each year since the war ended, was made possible only by a program of economy in the conduct of public business.

This program received definition in and an impulse from a new budgetary system which became operative in 1921. Administrative requirements were reduced to a minimum and constant pressures were exerted to anticipate tendencies on the part of Congress to return to the former system of considered, extravagant appropriations.

A revolutionary change in the attitude of administrative departments toward the expenditure of the public money was effected on the part of the Treasury, and the old system is now laid before the people for their consideration.

Through their representatives in Congress they must now decide whether they prefer general reduction in Federal taxation or whether they prefer that the lid so lightly clamped down on Government expenditures during the last three years shall be lifted.

Enter the program of economy and efficiency in Government affairs must be continued or the proposal to reduce taxation to a more appreciable extent must be given up.

As an economic problem the present proposal to reduce taxes can be readily understood. It is estimated that taxes collected during the year 1925 upon the business and individual income tax system of 1924 will yield revenues in excess of expenditures to the extent of $32,000,000.

This is the margin within which tax reductions may be made and this margin will be reduced dollar for dollar in the proportion that expenditures not now contemplated by the Government are authorized by Congress.

Compared with the total of expenditures this margin is not large. Guaged, however, by the benefits, direct and indirect, which a reduction in taxes to that amount would bring to more than 14,000,000 taxpayers, it is an enormous sum. Relief from payments to the Government is but a part of the benefit thus to be conferred.

Greater impetus to the long run would be the fulfillment of Secretary Mellon's prediction that a decrease in taxes will bring an increase of funds available for investment in productive industries. Such an outcome would mean not only more income for persons employed but a reduction in the cost of the necessities of life upon which these incomes are expended.

SHEA MUST GO TO PENITENTIARY; PAROLE REFUSED

George H. Shea, convicted early this week of the crime of an attempt to commit a statutory crime, was sentenced by Judge W. A. Hancock to a term of from one to 14 years in the state penitentiary. Applying to a plea for parole, made by his attorney, W. P. Guthrie, who called attention to the recommendation for mercy made by the jury, the court said that Shea was a grown man whose staff was amply proven, but in view of the recommendation of the jury he would refrain from raising the minimum to twenty years as permitted by the law but would fix the penalty at from one to 14 years, but would refuse a parole.

SALMON DISTRICT CLAIM PRESENTED BY A. McPHERSON

The statement of the views of those favoring the creation of an irrigation district operated by settlers to take over interest in the Salmon Canal company Tuesday in this district.

The campaign for the formation of the present district is now in progress and it is expected that the voters will be called on at the election on Tuesday, when in this city will be held in the court house. While there have been rumors of a vast number of persons, the fact that there has been nothing tangible in evidence. Most of the present district has been proposed as a candidate for the office of director of the canal and the vote will be open at the court house from 9 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night.

The directors of the Salmon river project was concluded with the holding of two enthusiastic meetings with the farmers at Hagar and Berger. Five meetings in all have been held for the purpose of acquainting the farmers with the benefits to be derived and determined directors of the project in the proposed district. The voters will be called on at the election on Tuesday, when in this city will be held in the court house. While there have been rumors of a vast number of persons, the fact that there has been nothing tangible in evidence.

Some of the farmers on the tract have secured federal farm loans and other loans from the joint stock fund bank, and in their cases, there would be no assessments of benefits on their properties, inasmuch as they have secured it full with cash with the company. Therefore, no liability will be incurred by those who have paid up water rights. When this is done they may be able to secure a river a substantial permanent community. The farmers there are looking forward to the realization that through the medium of the irrigation district, the Arden and amidities they had when they settled on the Salmon will yet come true.

NEBEL HELD TO DISTRICT COURT FOR ENTICING GIRL

Joe Nebel was bound over yesterday afternoon to the district court in default of $5000 bond was retained to the custody of Sheriff Alvin H. Berling, daughter of Mrs. Fred Craig, from her home and keeping her in his cabin until found by officers. School known generally as Indian Joe, because of his marriage to an Indian woman, who accidentally killed her first wife, entered a plea of not guilty.

The girl testified that she was the child of her own mother, as she was not riding and when asked by an unknown man in the city to ride to contact with Mrs. Craig said that Joe had paid attention to the girl previously. Deputy Sheriff Stone, who made the arrest, told about finding the girl in the cellar of a two-story Attorney J. W. Taylor represented the state at the preliminary and W. P. Guthrie was the defense.

Attorney W. P. Guthrie said this afternoon that he would file habeas corpus proceedings Monday on the ground that the evidence produced was insufficient to hold the prisoner.

What Does it Cost to Operate a Buick

every day in all kinds of weather and on all kinds of roads? Below is a letter we have received from one of the many commercial men, using Buicks in their business covering the intermountain territory.

Burley, Idaho, September, 3, 1923.

Mr. C. E. Lind, Prop. Lind Automobile Co., Twin Falls, Idaho. Dear Mr. Lind:

I am herewith giving you an itemized account of the cost of the operation of my six-cylinder Buick from September 1st, 1922, the day you delivered it to me, to August 31, 1923, inclusive. In other words, exactly one year. This includes all the repairs, tires, gasoline and mileage made from month to month.

Table with columns: Month, Gal. Gas, Repairs, Tires, Miles. Rows for Sept, Oct, Nov, Dec, Jan, Feb, March, April, May, June, July, August, Total.

801 GALLONS OF GASOLINE, 17,793 MILES, 22.21 AVERAGE MILES PER GALLON. As I became more familiar with the car and got more used to the way of handling it, I saved on the gasoline. I find running at a certain speed, I get the best results, and the weather also has a great deal to do with the amount of gas used.

As you know, I drive the car all the year around for my business takes me out in all kinds of weather and over all kinds of roads. I find myself in snow, mud, mountains and hills. The Buick never fails me no matter what the conditions are. I can truly say that I am pleased with the Buick, and can recommend it to any one planning on buying a car. I also can recommend the Lind Automobile Company.

Yours truly, GEO. W. BRAMAN, When Better Automobiles Are Built Buick Will Build Them.
