It is fortunate on the beginning of the Christmas season to find that less than 70 families in Twin Falls are really in need of assistance.

Governor Richardson of California, took the right position yesterday when he declined to interfere in wholesale pardoning of so-called political prisoners.

"Life has its troubles as well as its joys, but we must try to overcome them and to stress the happier sides of it. We must not permit ourselves to sink into the slough of despondency and pessimism."

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS ON RUSSIA

The statement of Secretary Hughes implying Bolshevik interference with American institutions, and the attack thereon by Senator Borah and other senators, to be followed by an investigation, will clear the atmosphere.

The statement of C. E. Rittenberg, secretary of the Worker's (communist) party, that the secretary of state has perpetrated a frameup and forgery is false. Possibly he was deceived, but so, others have been who are in no way sympathetic toward the trusts.

Senator Borah yesterday refused to deny that Russia sought to overthrow some governments, saying in response that France and England sought to overthrow the German government.

FORT TICONDEROGA, altar upon which long years ago was sacrificed the brilliant blood of three nations, has become a patriotic shrine in American history.

For more than a century its crumbling walls, brush and briar covered, lured only the small boys from the neighboring village of the same name. Tourists and vacationists, crowding the Lake Champlain boats, cast only chance, uninterested glances at the bold promontory, unmindful of its undimmed and illustrious past and glory which once crowned the neglected headland.

Today the walls of the old fort tower again from their eminence. The martial spirit of Montcalm, of young Lord Howe, of Sir Lord Amherst, of Ethan Allen and of Colonel John Brown lives again in the barracks, magazines and battery. Out of the heroic past, the shades of the Black Watch, the defenders of His Christian Majesty Louis XV, the Green Mountain Boys and the Continental Line deploy before the Amphitheatron fronting a new generation of visitors who no longer seek the northern playgrounds without a visit at Ticonderoga.

The magnificent old ruins, once the most formidable fortress in North America, are being restored. Mistake not—no modern structure with sixteen luck disappearing guns, bomb proofs and camouflaged works is being built upon the jutting point at Ticonderoga. The restoration is in fact the original fortification, as planned by Louisbourg and Montcalm, built, as Sir Jeffrey Amherst rebuilt and Arthur B. Clark strengthened.

Restoration to Endure.

Like a test for a photo play of France and India War and Revolution it is, save that the duration is to endure, to perpetuate for centuries to come the grim and absorbing drama when Ticonderoga was the key to Canada, or, conversely, the key to the defeat of the King's Colonies in the Revolution. From the dawn of history in America, its possession was a coveted goal of every bloody war on this continent.

No historical or antiquarian society is giving the Ticonderoga that was, to the nation that is. It is the work of the architect, Stephen H. P. Pell, owner of the broad acres upon which it stands, and actor of a family across the hundred years, has had his major house dwelling below the historic plateau.

Mr. Pell's achievement stands unparalleled today. To him and to Alfred C. Bosson, New York architect-who-worked-with-him-in-con-structing the plans and specifications of long ago and supervising the construction, in 1912, the nation owes a public debt of gratitude.

Ticonderoga of Yore. Ticonderoga of today—but it is not of Ticonderoga of today of which we write; it is of the Ticonderoga of long ago, when the families of three nations operated in making northern New York one of the chief battlegrounds of the American continent.

On the west shore of Champlain stands Ticonderoga. Just north of the rushing stream which carries the waters of Lake George to its larger neighbor, Chouetteaux—the "Seven Two Lakes"—is the Indian base for the pole.

Enter Champlain.

Iroquois hunting ground was unvisited by other tribes, but Iroquois nevertheless came in 1609, these paddles up in their canoe from Canada a war party of Montagnais, escorting Samuel de Champlain, a gifted French explorer, who with two other Frenchmen, has agreed to show his allies how to overthrow their old enemies. The next day it is done. The French conquer—"devil's spirit," say the Indians—now down the banks who see from the point of defeat but never forgetting. The matches of Champlain and his men are won a victory over the Iroquois and have made future allies for the English yet to come.

It is the pride to the illustrious drama whose acts are still 147 years in the future.

Building the Fort.

Then the curtain rises on the opening scene. It is 1755 and the French are erecting Fort Vaudrouil on the point. Here where Champlain fought those many more than a mile in the rear, out of sight of his army and the enemy. He has heard that the French are in inferior force. He will not other with his cannon. The count and is forward on the morning, a shing charge at the point of the spot.

The attack all along the line began about 10 o'clock with the regulars in the van. The 50th, the royal Americans and four other regiments press forward to that formidable breastwork of spiked iron branches, and set no further. Mardouret first from the French line cut first swishes in their rank. They close up and attack again—and again. Unchecked! A terrible sacrifice! Flanking batteries are sunk by gunfire from the fort. Indian allies, after a little skirmishing withdraw to Sugar Bush Hill to remain spectators. Frontline and reserves can not turn the French right. They till Abercrombie of it back at the sword.

"Attack once more," he directs from his position—out of grave peril "shoot the sawmill roof off houses and bastions says.

The Epile of the Black Watch.

That order sends the Black Watch to death and eternal glory.

The French see their peril. The chivalrous Marquis de Montcalm, commander of the King's French Ticonderoga command in person. He arrives on June 20, 1758 and finds 3,000 men available. He realizes that if he could not hold the fort, he would be forced to retreat. He sends out scouting parties to meet them, advance his forces to the westward and, under the plateau, begins an earthworks which is reinforced by trees, felled in the nearby forest and placed with their sharpened boughs point-men, who reach the lower end of Lake George on July 21. But Montcalm has withdrawn all of his men but about 400 under General Hebert. There is orders to hold as long as possible and evacuate rather than be surrounded.

Amherst is an Abercrombie. He had a small force and effect the surprise, so Connecticut sends a company of militia and delegates the command to Ethan Allen, Vermont, who has joined his force to the 10th and 14th New Hampshire. He hears a commotion from the Massachusetts Assembly and for while the quiet tempered leader has a row. They comprise the whole garrison, or the world's a soldier named Rice gives as his version of the story.

Rebuilding, Under Way.

So, while Wolfe was in the north in pointing at Quebec and looking for reinforcements from the central column under Amherst, the latter gentlemen sits his own down road camp Ticonderoga and proceeds to rebuild the fort "which I hope will meet with your approbation," as he writes in Pitt. Not until October he is ready to start his march as the British batteries move northward on Lake Champlain. History records drops out of Ticonderoga. Fortune has frowned elsewhere upon French arms and Montcalm has withdrawn northward, leaving a garrison of small numbers under General Bourlamaque in the fort. Against it comes "Lord Jeffrey Amherst, a soldier all a King," with a force of some 10,000 stages of onramps and his taken prisoner. Allen and Arnold are looking for bigger game. They run up the other ridges to the top of the commanding the westward bank of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress. In Allen's subsequent report of what he says when the second Captain Deslisle appears betrayed in the doorway. "I know out of here this instant, you damned old rat, or I'll scold the whole garrison; or the world's a soldier named Rice gives as his version of the story.

Foreword—John Burgoyne.

But to return to 1778. Carleton follows by his victory by marching toward Ticonderoga where, after looking upon "the capture of the enemy," he wisely decides to return forthwith to Canada. He has the job of advancing into the heart of the rebellious colonies to "another" if not a better name, none other. In fact, says "John Burgoyne, Esquire, Lieutenant General of His Majesty's forces in America, Colonel of the Queen's Regiment of Light Dragoons, Governor of Fort William in North Britain, one of the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament, and commander of an army and fleet employed on an expedition from Canada.

All through the spring and early summer of 1777 Major General Philip Schuyler, commanding the Northern Department, has been preparing to receive the British invasion. At Ticonderoga he places Brigadier General Arthur St. Clair with 800 men, 100 cannons, 100 muskets and, at a council held June 20, which Schuyler attends, it is concluded that the position is insufficient, that repairs are badly needed, and that a long resistance is unprofitable in the present.

Evacuation and Retreat.

Burgoyne's orders are being Ticonderoga by July 1 and St. Clair is prepared for resisting a frontal attack. But he has the British Mount Denance and British guns are drawn steadily to its summit. That night for a second time done by day. St. Clair evacuates the fort. By way of a pontoon bridge he crosses the lake to the shore, but a house in the old French village catches fire and dislodges the British. The British are hot on his trail and rear guard engagements are fought on up the lake.

A great wave of resignation sweeps the budding pond at news of the loss of Ticonderoga. Schuyler and St. Clair are raised to their commands and ordered before a court martial. Later they are to justify themselves and be held in high regard. The loss of Ticonderoga serves its purpose: it arouses the fighting spirit throughout the army. The loss of Ticonderoga serves its purpose: it arouses the fighting spirit throughout the army. The loss of Ticonderoga serves its purpose: it arouses the fighting spirit throughout the army.

Gallant John Brown.

Plans are laid to recapture Ticonderoga, even in the face of Burgoyne's advance and Colonel Howe's advance from the north. Howe's advance from the north. Howe's advance from the north.

Until Peace Comes.

Finally, in October, 1780, Major Carleton's British army captures Ticonderoga in the course of an expedition up Lake George. In 1781, the occupation is made permanent. From then on, it is the British hold Ticonderoga, but they do no damage from it since stagnating in middle New York, where, after Saratoga, he surrenders, and General Powell retreats, and Ticonderoga and evacuates it at once. But the Americans do not recapture it. It has become "unmanned" land. It has become "unmanned" land. It has become "unmanned" land.

BOY SCOUT GUARD FOR FALLS PARK

Practice of Picking Juniper and Spotting Great Shoshone Park View Will Be Prevented by Vigilance of the Troops.

The boy scouts of Troops Six and Seven will guard the Great Shoshone Falls park on individuals and destroyers will not carry away junipers for decorations on previous years. The watch will start tomorrow morning. Names of violators will be reported to the county commissioners.

Troop 6 under Ralph Husted will be first on the job. Scout Executive P. Douglas Hawley will visit the camp from time to time during the day.

Mr. Hawley has just returned from Hager where he established a new troop, and made a number of official visits.

On Christmas day he will visit the Christian and Methodist churches in this city during morning service.

Coch Charlie Moran

Coach Charlie Moran is given credit for contributing largely to the popularity of Coe's college. Back in 1915 when the "Flying Colonnels" started the football club that was eventually to land them in the position of victors over Harvard and make the Millionaire of the army of Kentucky colonels, the enrollment of the entire college was 72.

Then came the period of football ascendancy and the spreading of the realization "Coe" meant something besides a position on a football team. This year there were 82 candidates on hand for the football team, more than the entire number in the college eight years ago. Moran is a National League umpire during the baseball season.

PERSONALS

Johnnie Shinn, editor of the Pilot, returned accompanied by Mrs. Shinn, spent today in Twin Falls looking after business.

Frank Kennedy of Hansen was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

John Day was up from his ranch north of Idaho yesterday doing his usual morning milking.

ARGUMENTS ON AMERICAN FALLS DISTRICT HEARD

Arguments hearing on all possible legal questions relative to the status of the American Falls district were heard this afternoon by Judge James R. Bellwell representing the district and Attorney Joseph J. Thrall of Jerome before Judge W. A. Hancock here. The object is to determine the liability of the land in the various tracts in event of delinquency of payment by any of the subscribing units.

In the first instance land is liable only to the extent to which the particular unit within which it is situated has agreed to pay in any unit, the rest would be liable and whatever way the district tract holds it will be taken to the supreme court to settle it for this state.

FOX JURY GETS RECHARGED BY PRESIDING JUDGE

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 21.—The jury considering the fate of Phil E. Fox charged with the murder of W. S. Cahan was recharged by its oath after deliberating for six hours and a half.

The jury, at a deadlock after taking the case under consideration all day, last night and officially beginning deliberations at 9 o'clock this morning asked a recharge on all three verdicts of the verdict in charge of Judge G. H. Howard. There was no indication as to how the jury stood.

Dust Particles. A count of the dust particles found in air at the top of the Washington monument has been made by the United States weather bureau every day for the last year.

Ancient Roman Roads Bumpy. Amusement came to the boys with comfort over the bumpy surface of the stone slabs which form the famous thousand-year-old ruins of the ancient Romanes.

What'd Be Our Choice, Too. While the old-fashioned sled is a good one, it has been superseded by the modern sled, which has a flock of hair that holds a duffel down—Cincinnati 1, Quebec.

MANY ARE URGED TO RUN FOR HEAD OF KIWANIANS

The annual meeting of Kiwanis club members which will be held next Wednesday evening promises to be an interesting affair as a number of members are being urged by friends to stand for the presidency. The effect of the Christmas season has been to make all inclined to defer to others, and the discussion has been marked so far by uninterest, while to have leaders who will carry into effect the motto of the club, "We Help."

Married

Jaune Gray (above) actress, and Jaune Martin, tenor, with the Chicago Grand Opera company, have been married. It is learned. The ceremony was held nearly a month ago, and the couple succeeded in keeping it a secret this long.

Yankees Sign Mexican

The first full-blooded Mexican ever to play in the major leagues will be Adolfo Argueta, the senior bats long enough to play in the major leagues. He has been drafted by the Yankees from the Cordoba club of the Texas association and will report at the training camp next spring for instruction by Miller Huggins. According to Scout Bob Connerly, who observed him, Adolfo is a right-handed pitcher of some six feet with burning speed and a sharp-breaking curve. He has been in Mexico of pure stock and defied the Texas to play ball. The Yanks paid the regular draft price of $1,000 for the pitcher.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Last Minute Gift. The last minute gift shop of the Business and Professional Men's club, which is located in the fifty State's military store tomorrow.

Shaw Divorce Granted. Judge Hancock in District court this morning granted a divorce in the case of Sidney D. Shaw vs. Ella Lewis Shaw. The other members and the defendant was not represented. Divorce was granted for a just more than one year was charged.

For Canal Directors. The first part in the next election campaign for the Twin Falls Canal company when the next-coming week nominated William Cunningham and Charles J. Miller to succeed the present. It is understood that all members of the present board will be in a receptive attitude. The other members are T. M. Baird, Ivan G. Lincoln and Frank Hawley. Whether new candidates will enter or not is unknown.

Find Stolen Car. Again the city water department proved the efficiency in the finding of stolen cars, when it was found in the city street near the Ford car, license number 2122, lost last night by Carl Hines of Pocatello. It was found in an ash street in the Hinkel addition. The car had been taken about 10:30 last night from in front of the skating rink, Third avenue west. This was the second car found for its owner by Mr. Haysburn within three days.

Sleep Herler Held. As a result of a hearing in jail yesterday afternoon Tom Jensen, sheepherder employed by Jack France, was held by C. G. A. Arvelina, justice of the peace, to answer to a larceny charge of the theft of sheep skins from his employer's outfit at Hamden. It is believed in the authorities here yesterday evening. Attempt will be made at once by local coroner proceedings to secure the release of Jensen, according to his attorney, J. H. Sherry.

Lawyers Had Summary Judgment. The disposition of the new firm of Holsen, Stephen and North, which was formed a year ago, was announced yesterday. Members of the firm are Slim L. Holsen, former prosecuting attorney, and Chas. A. North. The dissolution provides the formation of a new firm, associated with Mr. Holsen in the near future. The new firm, J. Holsen, Inc., Stephen and North will continue partnership which they established here about 12 years ago, and will move the first of the year into quarters formerly occupied by them in the Twin Falls Bank & Trust company building.

Juniors Score Hit. "Fifty-fifty", the annual junior class play given last night in the high school auditorium secured a distinct hit with 120-100 average in attendance. The story comes out of the best of the young artists, these parts being well taken by Chas. Hirsman and Lawrence Turner. Louise Owen as Mrs. Bodice, the landlady, gave an exceptionally good interpretation of the part, and the work of Jeanette Glynn as Jessie Miller was also good. All others of the cast played their parts well, and showed good training under the coaching of Miss Lindley. They were: Valton Swain, Emma Watson, Harriet Chapin, Albert Murphy, Ruby Denton and Leonard Mee.

Other members of the class who associated with the play were John Wolfe, stage manager; Robert Elk, assistant stage manager; and John Overman, and Joe Christopoulos, business managers.

Smooth Pedestrians Wanted. Troops in the Home counties are said to be particularly lazier, and in our opinion they will remain so until some extra exercise more discipline in observing the restrictions they put down as a top drawback. The passing show.

CHURCHES TO HOLD SERVICE FOR CHRISTMAS

Churches of Twin Falls will on next Sunday greet the Christmas season with a splendid assortment of musical programs and other services at various hours during the day. In their respective places of worship, The Lutheran church will extend their Christmas program to include Christmas eve, and a special service on Christmas morning, and the Twin Falls mission will hold its Christmas services at the Mission on Monday.

The present "Bethlehem" by the Spoworth League, and a Christmas concert by choir and orchestra constitute part on the plans of the Methodist church while the Presbyterian church plans to add a recitation "Chas" in their evening program of music.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 123.—To Fool a Smart Spectator. Challenge a smart spectator to lay his hands flat on the table, while you stand a glass of water on the back of each hand. Tell him that he cannot do it without the water vibrating. When the glasses are on his hands, have him and you with another glass. He cannot move his hands without tipping the glasses, which will wet the tablecloth. He will soon call for assistance, after which you remove the glasses from his hands, and every one enjoys a good laugh.
