

CONFESSION OF CRIMES ON GIBBET

Louisiana Thief and Murderer Recounts Long Series of Robberies and Killings in Story Released on Gallows; Blames Lack of Religion for Career.

VILLA PLATTE, La., Aug. 8.—Simultaneous with his hanging at noon today, Elmer Vidrine's confession, a book detailing the entire history of his crime, including five murders, was released for distribution to the public. Vidrine, who is 35 years old, will be executed for the murder of Robert L. Williams, son of the former sheriff of DeKalbe county. He has confessed to four other murders, however, and the details of each are recounted in his book, which he wrote in the shadow of the gallows.

TUMACACORI MISSION TO BE RESTORED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—Within a short time the department of the interior will have completed restoration of one of America's show places.

It is the Tumacacori mission in Arizona, built by Spanish missionaries in the seventeenth century and for many years in a state of decay. The National Park service obtained a congressional appropriation to restore the structure and make it a national monument. Double doors between the sanctuary and the sacristy have been replaced and made it a national monument. Double doors between the sanctuary and the sacristy have been replaced and made it a national monument.

The mission presented a problem to architects who directed the restoration. The original doors were carried away many years ago, and was impossible to find anyone who could describe them from personal observation.

The architects did the best they could. The doors from San Xavier mission, another historic ruin, were used as a guide. San Xavier was built before Tumacacori and probably by the same workers.

They were made of Spanish cedar and without nails. Instead, stiles and rails were joined together with lead held with wedges driven home in the tenons.

DEMOCRATIC VOTERS GIVE SMALL SUM

Over $200,000, Mostly in Contributions of Five Dollars or Less Turned in to Help Campaign of Education in Party Principles in Campaign.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—Democratic believers in "clean, practical and symbolic" politics that John W. Davis elected his president of the United States was pre-ordained—at least as far back as the date of his departure from England—arriving here, his post as ambassador.

For what Davis left England, and as a salute to 21 guns in the "presidential" salute in the American navy, an escort of 21 destroyers "salute" his "victory" under "British" leadership.

That it was that the British "scopied" us by a matter of years on our (our) "perpetual" future presidents.

Whether Davis is elected or not, the Democrats are going to make history this year.

For the party has, even now, a list of campaign contributors greater than any ever filed at the capital. Pasted end to end, the sheets containing this list would reach the full length of Pennsylvania avenue, more than a mile. The financial workers of the party, however, are the donors who are being doubted by the contributors who will now chip in their dollars and dollars as members of Davis-Bryan clubs.

VAST ROAD MERGER IS PIT OVER

Combination One of the Largest in History of Country Will Be Extended; Wall Street Declares Until It Has East and West Terminal.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Van Sweringen loop of Cleveland, Ohio, and the merger of the Nickel Plate system with the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Norfolk Valley, Port Meridian and the Erie, they have reached the end of their operations which started with a train car system in a Cleveland sub-division.

The merger, semi-officially announced by the Van Sweringens, with total assets of $1,000,000,000 and a total trackage of 11,307 miles, the fourth-largest railroad system in the world.

The terms of the merger have been set by larger stockholders in each railroad. Following action of the boards of directors the plan will be submitted to the stockholders of each road sometime this month.

The general location of the mammoth new system will be in the day of E. H. Harriman and Jay Gould, and the characters out of fiction, Orin P. Wheeler, the Van Sweringens are from the school of hard knocks.

After selling papers in Geneva the two boys and their mother moved to Cleveland, Ohio, where they lived with their father, who was a boy, went to work as an office boy. Their mother died about that time.

From office boys they advanced to clerks in a real estate office. There they saw the profit to be realized from speculative investment. After making deals with small lots they finally had an opportunity to purchase 2,000 acres on the outskirts of Cleveland. They did this with borrowed capital.

Met With Laughs.—Seeing the need of a train system to connect a line to the east with the Cleveland railroad and were met with a few laughs. That was where the Cleveland railroad built their own train system.

The sub-division and the train system proved profitable and with a few years the Van Sweringens were wealthy. This wealth was added to and in 1916 the Van Sweringens purchased the Erie Railroad, which was then being sold by the Nickel Plate system.

Then they visualized the merger of a line to the east with the Cleveland railroad and were met with a few laughs. That was where the Cleveland railroad built their own train system.

RAISE SALARIES CUT BY THE LAW OF LAST WINTER

Loophole in the Statute Will in Their View Allow Them to Collect Former Wages After the Legislature Had Out Them Down.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 8.—State-wide attention has been called to the recent action taken by the state industrial accident board, the members of which have raised their own salaries after the legislature severely pruned the board and particularly reduced the salary appropriations as of July 1 the members of the board have raised their salaries $21 per month.

The legislature appropriated $16,000 for salaries for this department, which would allow members of the board $250 per month. But in doing so the legislature failed to change section 6249 of the compiled statutes, which says that the salaries of the board members shall be $200 per annum and therefore left the members entitled to as much of this amount as appropriations would yield. with such perfection that it would baffle sensation, the witness said. "Klumpke was a main feature, his ideas running along that line."

Clara W. Williams.

Yesterday Miss Lorraine Nathan, strikingly handsome, 18, daughter of the millionaire head of the Quaker Oats company, took the stand and did her bit toward helping "Dixie," her one time sweetheart.

She is today Gertrude Reinhard, equally pretty and youthful, but in more humble circumstances, in due course to "Dixie's" defense. She too is former sweetheart. Gertrude is an artist's model and stenographer. Lorraine met Lohb in 1921 while Gertrude was at the youth about two years later at a Bohemian gathering.

Both agree that "Dixie" had a lovable personality and had never been so readily responsive for his part to the murder of Robert Franks, 14-year old schoolboy.

Gertrude's testimony is expected to be akin to the lines of Lorraine's story. Gertrude may testify that she is in the underworld that Lohb paraded imaginary deeds of bravery before her in an effort to impress her with his daring.

BEYOND CHILDREN

Children under three years of age frequently have a bronchitis, catarrh, induced by bad hygiene, improper feeding, digestive disorders, rickets, malnutrition, teething, or poor breathing. It may directly brought on as a rule, by exposure, sudden temperature changes, "cooling," or a cold. Acute infectious fever, pneumonia, or tuberculosis may result from the condition if not promptly treated.

There is usually a general laxation with restlessness and fretfulness, slight fever, cough and increased rapidity of breathing, with a rattling in the chest, and shortly his expectoration of a secretion that usually begins as a thin mucus and soon becomes a mixture of mucus and pus. Children too small to expectorate swallow the mucus, which may produce vomiting or diarrhea. If the condition increases, the fever grows high and breathing becomes more difficult, and a bluish or purple color of the skin appears. Prompt treatment, instituted early, will prevent the disease, and the few favorable in very small children and infants, but uncomplicated cases, might favor a cough and increase of cough in which only the larger tubes are affected usually result in a thin mucus, and this is sometimes mistaken for bronchitis, pneumonia, or for influenza; but in these conditions the fever is high and the other symptoms more pronounced.

The child feels like to lie up in the room, it should not be forced to remain in bed, though usually it will want to be carried. There should be no restriction to the child's diet, but the child should not be overfed or starved. Some recommend a cotton-bast woolen sock, but any covering sufficient to keep the chest warm without restricting movement is satisfactory.

As the disease is usually the result of a toxic condition, food taken should be readily and this as rapidly as possible for safety. No food is better than a mixture of acid fruit juices, and the child should be encouraged to take water freely.

THINGS BORAH OVERLOOKS

Senator Borah in his arguments relative to the removal of canal tolls on coastwise vessels makes two great omissions. First he fails to say that international opinion outside the United States is overwhelmingly to the effect that the removal of tolls is against our treaty obligations that leading international lawyers here take the same view and that it is our moral duty to live up to our agreements or arbitrate the question.

Perhaps more important from Senator Borah's alleged point of view is the fact that so far as the producers of which we have a surplus, the removal of such tolls would work to our distinct injury in this western country. What would be removed from coastwise vessels would be levied on all vessels engaged in international trade and would result in the increase of ocean freights on all goods, whether carried by American or foreign ships. Wheat and other products carried through the canal to foreign shores would help pay the increase. And while we would be resorting to a more than doubtful expedient in the removal we would be discriminating against American vessels engaged in international trade.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES - AGRICULTURE

While farmers are growing more prosperous, as a result of increased prices of cereals, that is not the reason, as indicated by a dispatch yesterday that mail order houses are enjoying a measure of returning prosperity. While the higher prices of cereals have not been reduced anything like as much as the administration wants them reduced, their relative reduction has proven beneficial to the mail order men. During the first congressional discussion of tax reduction under the Harding administration, Congressman Copley of Illinois, a friend of the mail order houses, deplored the fact that high surtaxes were ruining the business of these institutions to the benefit of the small merchant. He pointed out that the exemption and the lower rates were material in the case of the man with small business, that amounted to but little in cases of larger business. Under higher surtaxes, he said, local merchants were enjoying prosperity. Discrimination against mail order houses in favor of other lines of business of like magnitude would be unconstitutional, of course, but general reduction of higher taxes such as the administration advocates would incidentally be of peculiar benefit to them, according to the very convincing arguments of Congressman Copley.

On the average even before the war and higher surtaxes, the purchaser from the home merchant can do better in dollars, cents and satisfaction than from the mail order man. At present the advantage is all in favor of the local man who advertises. The mail order man cannot shift his tax, and he will doubtless be strongly in favor of the administration policy of cutting down the higher taxes, which fall most heavily on him. The cut on higher taxes has been quite enough for the present, unless it is proposed to do what David A. Wells says never had been done in history, adopt a really scientific system.

M'KAIG MAKES BORAH PLEA

(By JAMES D. WHELAN.)

Ray McKaig predicts that Senator Borah will be unanimously nominated by the progressive state convention, although the distinguished senior senator voted against the law permitting the taking over of the railroads in case of war, voted against the law permitting the taking over of telegraphs and telephones, voted against the Adamson law, voted against woman's suffrage, and has the backing of the principal men connected with the Idaho Power company, the Idaho-Nevada Sugar company and the lumber trust, and, in addition, has repeatedly and warmly endorsed President Coolidge and pledged him his support.

Mr. McKaig says that he has come to this conclusion after a trip around the state. "The truth is that Ray is a Borah man first and a progressive party man later on and thereafter. He has nothing to do but work for politics and he is an effective worker. He mentions a number of counties where he says the "party organization" are unanimously for Borah, mentioning Twin Falls among others. The progressives in this county must have experienced a change of heart since the Jerome convention in that case, for three out of the four delegates there voted with the Daw Dunning element and against the Borah-Mekaig combination.

Aside from his devotion to the Borah interests, McKaig appears to have another object in view, namely, to prevent fusion or understanding between democrats and progressives. McKaig knows that under no circumstance as conditions exist in this state, can a legislative progressive in both houses be elected, even if it were possible to elect H. P. Samuels on a third ticket as his more enthusiastic if less judicious friends assert.

With an understanding between the parties, the state and legislative tickets could be elected and a policy of reform legislation carried through. McKaig and Borah, both figure that the endorsement of Borah would not only insure the election of our senior senator to succeed himself, but would make fusion or un-

BURLEY-NEWS

BURLEY, Idaho, Aug. 8.-Mrs. Willard England of Burley and her two sisters, Misses Hazel and Lora Ann England of Salt Lake City met with a very painful and serious accident near Franklin, while en route to Salt Lake City. Mrs. England was driving the car at the time and in trying to avoid another car that was coming down the grade as she was going up, endeavored to pull to one side but could not shift gears properly and the car backed more than 100 feet down the grade, turning over twice before it landed in the river at the bottom.
Mrs. England sustained two broken ribs. Miss Hazel Ann England was badly bruised and it is feared that she was hurt internally while Miss Lora Ann England had her knee and ankle both thrown out of place.
They were rescued by passersby and taken to a doctor in Franklin where they will remain under a doctor's care until able to be removed to Salt Lake City. Mr. England was notified at Burley and left immediately for the scene of the accident to bring home the damaged car.
