Were Giants and Senators Best Teams? Farrell Gives His Views on Question

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK. Oct. 29.—It was generally agreed that the world's series of 1923 "was the best in history." It was an exciting and thrilling series between two evenly matched teams, but it was a pleasure from a baseball standpoint. The mud and dirt of little importance as far as the fans are concerned, as the greatest appeal to the stands is found in interesting competition.

While the Washington Senators and the New York Giants were the champions of their leagues, they were not regarded as the best club by some very competent critics. This opinion comes with me as applied to the Senators, but I do not believe that the New York Yankees are the best team in baseball standpoint. The mud and dirt of little importance as far as the fans are concerned, as the greatest appeal to the stands is found in interesting competition.

While the Washington Senators and the New York Giants were the champions of their leagues, they were not regarded as the best club by some very competent critics. This opinion comes with me as applied to the Senators, but I do not believe that the New York Yankees are the best team in baseball standpoint. The mud and dirt of little importance as far as the fans are concerned, as the greatest appeal to the stands is found in interesting competition.

Billy Evans, one of the best judges of baseball in the business, expressed the opinion during the series that the New York Yankees, the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns were the best ball clubs now living. He is a good authority. He followed the league at least from the closest point of observation and his opinion is worth something.

I said the Senators out-gamed and out-played their opponents.

Their failure to win the pennant is due to the success of the Senators was their good fortune in escaping injuries due to the regular season. When the Washington club jumped out as a pennant possibility, the warning was sounded: "Look out for the Senators."

The weak reserve strength of the Sen-tors was well-known and admitted even by their officials. It has been proved so many times that team is no stronger than its reserves, that the Senators couldn't have hoped to win if they had suffered the physical misfortunes that befell the Tigers and the Senators.

The point that the Senators would have been in if they had run into bad luck was almost shown daily in the world's series when Roger Peckinpaugh, the great pitcher of the game, with a charley-horse and when Ralph Miller, a third baseman who wasn't good enough to hold a job with the Philadelphia Phils., was found to be the only substitute acceptable on the Senators' staff.

That last point is borne out by fate.

The last two weeks of the pennant race, the New York Yankees must likely would have been the American League entry in the series.

The Senators have had no luck.

Their record is poor, yet they are creditable to the Senators for a most brilliant, a most deserving and a most popular victory in countering danger of physical retaliation from men only of fame and rank. They earned only the right to be called heroes.

It is felt that those who did some justice in referring to a few unique stars that are generally admired as being true nimbus baseball men.

Now We Know

A correspondent, signing himself "Elizabeth," asks: "Can you tell me why it is that more girls marry in June than in any other month of the year?" No Elizabeth, we can't tell you except perhaps it is that the girls do not have to start their wedded life by buying real Bradbury Standard Cakes."

BOISE ELEVEN TANGLES WITH NAMPA FRIDAY

BOISE. Oct. 29.—With the Botanique named scheduled for Friday at Nampa, Coach C. W. Rainey, Braves' manager, will put his warhorse through stiff workouts this week. No injury is expected, however, to him or to his players Saturday and all the men are in good condition. The Braves' defensive play will be worked thoroughly this week, the coach said.

The Braves' players expect to their credit so far this season and are returning to Nampa with the intention of defeating the fourth.

However, Nampa is in the same mood and threatening to give the Botaniques all the fun of the season. The loop gridders are reported to be in good condition and the two associations are fairly evenly matched but the Braves' grididers

will probably outweigh the loop node-skinned gridders.

Last year Nampa went down to defeat before the Braves, 7 to 6, while the year before Boise again defeated

the two teams in a double header.

Both sides will be in top form for a number of years and they are ready to try to stem Boise's run of victories.

Boise's defensive work is still weak and the offense is not particularly good, will concentrate, however,

in the department on endeavor to put up

as strong a defense as possible Friday.

Several new plays are also to be practiced.

BOXING

NEW YORK.—Mickey Walker, world welterweight champion, held off Tom Dunn, a middleweight, in a hard-fought bout tonight at Newark. The contest will have little significance as neither boxer is making the welterweight limit of 148 pounds.

NEW YORK.—Abe Goldstein, world bantamweight champion, has signed to meet Eddie "Cannon Ball" Martin in a bout at Madison Square Garden Dec. 15. The match will be for 15 rounds and at the bantam weight of 118 pounds.

BOSTON.—Young Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out Joe Burke, Detroit, a heavyweight, in the third round. Billy Connelly, Kansas, won an 8-round decision from George Robinson, Cambridge.

Twin Falls County Citizens Endorse Masters' Candidacy

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor

From Twin Falls County.

HE IS FAIR AND SQUARE

You Will Honor Southern Idaho
If You Elect Him.

Masters Is the Farmers' Friend

If Elected He Will Fight for:

Lower Freight Rates

Lower Idaho Power Rates

Non-Political Fish and Game Department

Bi-Partisan Public Utilities Commission

Tuberculosis Hospital Fund for Idaho

Strict Enforcement of Prohibition Laws

Better Educational System

Lower Taxes and Less Extravagance

A Square Deal for the Farmer

To the Voters of Idaho:

As citizens of Twin Falls County we wish to endorse the candidacy of L. H. Masters for the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Idaho at the coming election. You will find his name on the Democratic ticket, but we believe that the man rather than the party, is the paramount issue in this election. We feel that Mr. Masters is thoroughly qualified for this office since he is a graduate of the Kansas State Normal School and while there he did special work in Parliamentary law which fits him especially for such an office as he speaks. He has also taken two years' work at Ottawa University and Baptist School in Kansas. We have known him through business relations as a straight-forward business man. He has been a public speaker and has written much through his Daily Newspaper which is one of the leading independent daily newspapers of Southern Idaho. He has always upheld Idaho and her industries, and is one of the best boosters for Idaho and her institutions we have known. In view of these facts and many others we are asked to ask you to support him at the polls in the November election.

We feel that the State of Idaho will be honored and we know that his home town will be proud of any candidate which you may choose in him as a state official. If we feel that Masters was just an ordinary type of individual, we could not trouble ourselves to endorse his candidacy. We know that he has been unusually successful as a newspaper man and we believe that this is largely due to the fact that he tries to give every man a square deal. He has backbone to stand for the things which he deems are right and we believe that we need men of this stamp in office.

We know that Masters stands for the following progressive program of legislation, and if elected, will do his best to see that same is enacted into law and then these laws enforced. He has waged a relentless campaign for law enforcement through the columns of The Times. He is a strong advocate for good roads and wants the State of Idaho to get 100 cents worth of road construction for every dollar assessed against the taxpayers of this State for that purpose. He believes thoroughly in strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and favors a jail sentence for bootleggers. Masters has waged a fight against the exorbitant rates of the Idaho Power Company through the columns of The Times even at the expense of being cut off by their advertising department. He has fought against high freight rates of our railroad companies in Idaho and has set forth clearly that the present freight rates are hindering the rapid development of our resources more perhaps than any other one thing. He was raised on a farm in Kansas and understands the farmer's problems and is in full sympathy and understanding with them.

For years he has been in favor of the re-establishment of the Direct Primary Law from one end of the ticket to the other. In this respect, he stands for a pure democracy and on the same platform as Senator Wm. E. Borah.

It may interest you to know that Masters is a member of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, the Masonic Lodge, the Kiwanis Club and the Baptist Church. He takes an active interest in each of these organizations.

If you can see your way clear to join with us in this movement without regard to party to further the candidacy of L. H. Masters of Twin Falls County, we shall greatly appreciate anything you will do in his behalf. A little work on the part of each will mean much toward this man's election. The position of Lieutenant-Governor, co-chairman of the Senate is a most important one and especially so in case of a tie vote when he holds the deciding vote. This is especially true when a critical issue is before that body. Therefore, it behoves us to choose the right man for such an exalted position.

If you desire further information regarding this man and what he stands for we shall be pleased to answer any of your questions. Feel free to write us in regard to anything you wish to know as to his platform or where he stands on a particular issue.

Respectfully,

DAVIS AND THE NEGRO

Of all the idiotic things started in this campaign the, as crudely voiced on the streets, "Davis sez a-nigga is as good as a white man," is the most foolish, and unfat.

Davis spoke of equality of opportunity, which means "equality before the law." This is a constitutional guarantee, it is a principle of simple justice. The fourteenth amendment, which just as much the organic law of the land as the eighteenth, says:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction, the equal protection of the laws."

The fifteenth amendment of the constitution says: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied, or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

These are plain statements. The supreme court of the United States has frequently defined their meaning. Those who respect the constitution of the United States will respect these provisions of that great document. So much for the law.

So far as the morals of the case are concerned, Littleton sufficiently pointed out the correct way, when he said that the fact that he believed a negro was entitled to what he earned, did not mean that he wanted to marry one, and that in respect to getting recompense for what he earned in the sweat of his brow, the "negro is my equal and the equal of Judge Douglas." The question of being "as good as" somebody does not enter into the case. It is simply a matter of constitutional law and economic justice. Davis favors both for all citizens.

MELLON BILL, RETAILER AND THE BIG DEPARTMENT STORE

Some months ago it was shown in two editorials that where a tax was levied against a monopoly it could not be shifted, because the price is fixed by a trust it is placed at the point of maximum return and an extra tax, any attempt to boost price would mean a loss. All economists agree on this point and common sense concurs. Hence the talk about shifting taxes by trusts is nonsense.

But regular trusts are not the only institutions that cannot shift high surtaxes. The department stores cannot and did not at any time. When the first tax reduction bill was up, Ira C. Cooley, of Illinois, a friend of the great department stores of that state, in a speech on August 19, 1921, inveighed against the high surtaxes on the ground that they injured the business of these institutions, which could not shift them, and worked in favor of the small retailer, who did not have to pay them. On page 5723 of the Congressional Record of that year he declared that before the war, the waste baskets of congress were "Filled with bills proposing to tax department stores in every conceivable kind of form; proposing to exclude their catalogues from the mails. To exclude their letters from the mails. Why? Because all over this country they were bearing heavily upon the small merchants. But since the excess profits tax has been a law I think you gentlemen will agree with me that there have not been many such bills placed in the waste basket."

"Now the small merchant finds himself in the position of the week, who have the promise of the scriptures that they shall inherit the earth, and the small merchant taking advantage of his opportunity, has been able to more than hold his own from that time to the present."

"Of course, each business is allowed an exemption of $3,000, but in case of large stores that exemption is negligible. I doubt if John Wanamaker would look or unlock his doors for $3,000 per year, and I am perfectly willing to guarantee that he cannot sweep out his place for ten times that amount."

Yet, while every trust publication rails against the retailer as the original and persistent sinner, as a price raiser; adroitly shifting blame for trust extortion; an appeal, not infrequently successful, is made to the small merchant to get rid of the high surtaxes by supporting the party which proposes to cut them as they are cut in the Mellon hill. This will place him exactly where he was for a generation before the war, with reference to the department stores. The retailer who votes the republican ticket on account of a vague plea in behalf of "business" is boosting the business of the trust and the department store and cutting his own throat.

TARIFF ARTICLE STILL TO COME; SUBJECT NAMED

In response to inquiries will say that there is no article still due to the tariff committee, but the one proposed in the first article of the McNary-Haugen bill was introduced by the majority of the agriculturists of the House, and was adopted by the majority of the conditions for the avoidance required that the tariff on various agricultural production did not operate to fairly take care of the products. That bill was specifically voted down. Chairman Haugen illustrated the failure of the tariff protection by writing the following: "The American Economist, as quoted Saturday, repeated declared for three years after the passage of the Tariff of 1920 that the tariff would not operate to fairly take care of the products. After the passage of the Fordney-McCumber bill, that the prices of farm products were raised; and that the farmer must not only pay the taxes on what he grows, etc., to show that it is a fact. On October 17, in a copy received by him, came the American Economist follows: 'Other Republican Congressmen in quoting a list of tariffs dealing with farm products usually neglect to mention that the tariff, as it stands, has not even now state rate increased price from the consumer. If lets the farmer assume the tariff will operate to fairly take care of his product, compared with the foreign product, and let us recall the manner in which he would do it. He would simply what the entry rate out as prohibitive, but—then—do you have a separate article for each. The declaration that the farm—tariff does not protect him admitted on affidavit by the chairman of the tariff committee in debate. The negligible amount of imports—have been shown—indeed—and otherwise very recently—in the "American Economic Review." In passing, although Mr. Hansen referred to each specifically as one of the commodities which must be sold on the market so that the world may benefit, the surprise news that Mr. Hansen's statement is false. The other night he alleged that we did not raise enough eggs to supply our needs. Unfortunately, however, there were imports last fall of 220,000 dozen eggs, less than enough to supply a demand of 100 million. The imports last fall of eggs and bacon were exported 220,000 dozen, and, last year according to the American Economist, we exported a surplus of 100 million dozen eggs. We need not go into the details of the tariff, but that will prevent importation on cheap foreign and domestic products, sometimes palmed off by brokers under a superior label.

The total imports of butter and butter substitutes of less than a hundred thousand pounds a year, including those from Norway and Norway, it agrees he has, show how little the legislation might prevent and protect.

For the reason given, the next article will show the slides and scenes of "The Sea Hawk" and "The Sea Hawk," a discussion of the famous disappearance which took many years to solve the mystery of the disappearance of the "Sea Hawk," showing how the hawk element is organized and how it works. Esparto Grass Used for Many Purposes

The tufts of grass are constantly traversed by tufts of canals with numerous roots. Their growth never停止了。 They are the central plant of the desert, but as it grows it sometimes in six days' Journey and 90 centuries is the price of a foot, there is not much of a fortune in it for the collectors, remarks the American Scientist.

At the desert, it is pressed into balls with primitive presses and then exported. Esparto is of very tough texture and great flexibility, and for centuries has been used in making hats, umbrellas and bags. In the Spanish navy cables made of esparto are used.

Arabs have built fine ditches around the trees, so that the water can easily reach them.

BURLEY, Idaho, Oct. 22.—Governor C. C. Moore gave two addresses in Canyon county on Wednesday; the first at Oakley during the morning hours, the other in the evening at Burley. In the afternoon he was taken from Burley to Oakley via automobile and was accompanied by Judge T. Bailey Lee, Ex-Mayor W. W. Youmans and the State Auditor, and the Canyon county central committee. Late in the afternoon he and his party returned to Burley where the governor was entertained at 6 o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Nichols, who escorted him to the L. M. S. Tabernacle for the evening address.

The meeting at night opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by a Scripture reading, then an address by Judge T. Bailey Lee, the latter introducing the speaker of the evening. Music during the evening was furnished by the high school orchestra, a vocal solo by Miss Margarette Nichols, and one selection by a mixed quartet.

In the beginning of this governor's address he said, "Conditions are improving rapidly, not by fault finding, but by the efforts of the people of the state." In speaking of tax reduction, the governor did not take the credit upon himself except in that he kept the state employees at home doing their own work and having others hired to do it for them. He said there were always, however, he did not say as a reflection upon the rectness of Ex-Governors Alexander and Davis, but it just followed in the natural course of events. He said that $600 had been saved in appropriations made for the governor and lieutenant governor. Gov. Moore said he had stayed on the job, thus eliminating traveling expenses and as head of the state family, he had, therefore, asked to set an example and asked the rest to follow suit.

The appropriation for fruit and livestock inspection was reduced $35,000, and the appropriation for roads was spent in combating the fence and mouth disease, but the agricultural department which controls that inspection will turn money back into the treasury at the close of the biennium.

The Speaker further stated that during his administration Idaho had built 2000 miles of state highway they are maintaining at a cost of $150 per mile and the cost of maintenance of the roads costs $125 to $100 per mile to maintain them. There has been $25,000 per month saved on highway department salaries through the reduction of number of employees as the department was reorganized since Governor Moore assumed his office. In commenting on the motor license law, so far as the state is concerned, a cut in half would not matter, as it is only 25 per cent of the money that comes to the state in the country. And the country would be the losers if such a cut were made and no state stake. In speaking of national affairs, Governor Moore said that the supreme court, that charges of grafting if it were admitted, about the office of president and other departments of government and what would be the result of the trial of the country and revolution. The governor also stated that government ownership of railroads would increase the taxes in Idaho 25 per cent. In concluding, Mr. Moore attacked the various political parties and their leaders and their policies and whether campaign for their acceptance.
