BUSINESS HAS PROMISING OUT-LOOK FOR 1925

Industry and Trade Outlook Is More Promising Than at Any Time Since the World War; Confidence in Business Outlook for New Year.

By FRANCIS H. SISSON, Vice-President Guaranty Trust Co., New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—At the beginning of the New Year the general business outlook is more favorable than it has been at any similar time since the war. The way has been prepared for broadly diffused progress in industry and trade. The resulting prosperity therefore should be well sustained. But a possible headless enthusiasm, by inducing a renewal of general inflation of credit and prices, could make certain its early passing.

The most important favorable factors in the present situation include:

1. Good harvests and the improved relation between prices of farm products and of industrial commodities.

2. A sound banking condition and easy money rates.

3. Confidence that business will be encouraged before fiscal economy and further reduction of taxes for some years at least by freedom from new meddlesome interference by government agencies.

The actual inauguration of the Dawes plan, with its promise of increasingly stable economic conditions in Europe and further expansion of American foreign trade. Certain obstacles to progress must nevertheless be overcome. In particular, too far in replacing inflation, the extremes in business which regularly result from too much optimism and greedily bring to an end the present period of prosperity.

Only the collective sober judgment of business men can adequately safeguard against the influences for inflation, with its inevitable penalties. This kind of restraint has been effectively demonstrated at different times in the last two years. And in this the hope that a saving moderation of optimism will prevail in 1925.

COLD WEATHER PREDICTED FOR XMAS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—Weather will be cold December 22 to 25 inclusive.

Northern Rocky mountain and plateau regions cold weather practically the entire week with probability of occasional snows. Southern Rockies and plateau regions temperature below normal practically the entire week. Generally fair the first part and probably local snows. East and central rains wet of the divide the middle and later half of the week.

COLORADO SHIVERS IN COLD AND SNOW STOCK UP

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 20—Below zero weather prevailed over Rocky Mountain states today despite a weather forecast of fair and warm.

Some suffering was reported among the people in the mountains and fear and fear was felt for cherry orchards in northern Colorado, many of which started budding during the warm weather two weeks ago.

The impact of a farm family was kept in mind all the day, however, the actual outcome, for winter, will depend upon the going only a few days prior to the time when the demonstration began at the Better Homes Committee's demonstration of what constitutes a "better home," a farmhouse.

The impact of a farm family was kept in mind all the day, however, the actual outcome, for winter, will depend upon the going only a few days prior to the time when the demonstration began at the Better Homes Committee's demonstration of what constitutes a "better home," a farmhouse.

Temperatures ranged from 30° to 40° below zero in Colorado Springs, to 20° below zero in Cheyenne, Wyoming, and 18° below zero in Yellowstone national park 25 below.

Eastern Colorado had temperatures ranging from 20° to 30° below zero.

GENERAL WOOD'S SON SUED FOR DIVORCE
HE IS NOT RICH

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20—Lucky Wood, son of the governor-general of the Philippines who came into prominence with his unusually successful negotiations conducted by cable from Manila a year ago, is to be sued for divorce by his wife, the latter confirmed to-day.

Moreover, in a statement just received with him yesterday, Mrs. Wood said her young husband who is at present in France is in financial difficulty. And she did not believe he had recently cleaned up $20,000 in the gold market, because he had enabled her to send him $10,000.

FATHER AND SON GO TO U. S. PEN

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 20—W. T. Barnes, former Methodist minister, and his son Arthur L. Barnes, in federal court here found guilty of conducting a mail swindle, were sentenced yesterday to be taken to the federal penitentiary of Leavenworth, Kansas, shortly where they will start serving sentences.

William D. Hooper, charged with the same offense, was acquitted. The elder Barnes was given two years in prison and his son one year.

The men were found guilty of fraudulent business transactions in connection with the United Home Holders association of Casper which they operated.

The convicted men had apparently been doing business in Colorado and in several western states.

Sarah A. Crowe, said to be an associate of Barnes, has not been apprehended.

The shipment of 110,000 pounds of butter by the Twin Falls Dairy association to Los Angeles, during its short period of existence indicates what may be expected when the shorter routes with lower rates can be secured through the line from Roger's to Wells. The dairy and creamery future in the Twin Falls country is in its infancy. More and more this part of Idaho will diversify and will concentrate on the production of less bulky articles that are more valuable and that cost little to transport.

The seemingly extreme pacifist voiced by Senator William E. Borah sounds very much like a plea for continuation of the very conditions he denounces. War is a possibility in this world and as long as it is the great nations and the small ones, too, will recognize this as a fact. Violation of peace will continue until the world unanimously draws down on it and agrees definitely to back by some sort of sanction or force agreed upon and clearly defined to punish those who violate it. For various nations to pass laws declaring war piracy would make no the stiffest difference on earth, because in each there would be the assumption that the other fellow was guilty of the piracy. A league which defines the rights of nations with precision and among which the members are mutually pledged to support the international understanding is the best legal method of getting rid of war. Of course, the inauguration of the spirit of Christianity and the Golden Rule must go hand in hand with this agreement or it will come to naught.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, in presenting its legislative program to the congress through the president showed the courage of superb conviction that the election makes the business blue in congress the only important one. The chamber comes out openly for a government subsidy to ship owners, as against government ownership and operation of ships. The eminent business gentlemen who control the destinies of the chamber of commerce are shrewd enough to suggest that the way out of the people's ships shall be written down to "what the ships will bring in the market." This is a polite way of asking the government to sell the ships at whatever the shipping ring wants to pay for them. This establishes a new principle which we believe the farmers will take to heart; that it is up to the government to make good any losses sustained by products and agencies necessary to win the war—that is the government should pay off the additional indebtedness which farmers incurred to enable them to produce raw material for food and clothing necessary to win the war. The chamber of commerce takes a quiet filing at the federal trade commission, though suggesting that the Sherman antitrust law should not be repealed, in asking that trade associations shall be allowed to compile statistics as to prices, etc., and these should be made available to business men. This would tend to continue the evil of price fixing associations. America's great employers of labor also want a flexible immigration quota. No suggestion is made that the sky scraper units on the manufactured necessities of life should be reduced.

SHALL CHILDREN KEEP BANKRUPT
FARMERS OUT OF CITY JOBS?

In 1922, about two million of the farm population were driven off the farms and nearly the same number in 1923. This represents at least between six and seven hundred thousand able-bodied adult males. The agricultural revolution is going on rapidly with 700,000 tractors in use on American farms and with the rapid increase in the use of electric power on farms. For a few years at least there will unquestionably be a decreased demand for man-power on the farms. In 1920 there were over 430,000 children between 10 and 16 years of age engaged in non-agricultural pursuits and 647,000 children between these ages working on the farms. As long as the employees of labor can legally hire children at scandalously low wages to do the work for which they would be compelled to hire adults at fair wages if they could not exploit children, evicted farmers will swell the bread lines in American cities. Many farm organizations are opposing any change in the immigration restriction laws. Those who do this are thoroughly illogical to oppose the child labor amendment, which would merely empower the federal government to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age. Nearly every opponent of this amendment knows that congressmen would not vote for a law prohibiting or even regulating the full activities of laborers under 18 years of age on farms but no state does so. The National Manufacturers if they did. Each state now has the power to prohibit child labor on farms but no state does so. The National Manufacturers association and other exponents of labor and farmers are opposing the child labor amendment. It is unfortunate that some farm organizations have been trapped or forced into opposing this measure which is merely permissive and not mandatory. Wages of children in labor are not sufficient to buy many farm products and there are never jobs enough to keep the able bodied adults busy, while children slave at a pittance.—Farmers National Council.

There fell a long silence. At length Sir Oliver spoke in a small voice.

"Not a doubt but you have him no more than he was seeking. You are right, Master Leigh. You have the right. I am glad to see that he has been compelled to seek steel that he might escape a rape. Best as no doubt, Sir Oliver?"

"No doubt, but you have been here because of that. Sir Oliver pursued, as if continuing with himself, "Being in ignorance perhaps of his doings, desiring him a saint and a hero, they refused to avenge him upon you and disregard you further for that purpose."

He sighed.

"Well, well, Master Leigh, I make no doubt that knowing yourself for a man you have all your life had the right of self defense to which he had him to his responsibility for all that happened to Sir Oliver."

Out of the consideration of hermeneutics, he said, "In his turn, he might perhaps serve Sir Oliver by a frank disclosure of all that he knew of the secret of the treasure he had found in his boat, and he fled to avoid being accused of having taken it."

Sir Oliver uttered him, and oddly enough, if uplifted him all the more when he reflected that perhaps he would be jeopardizing his own privilege in doing so. Finding slender impossible, after a while he would have talked again; but by that time his companion's regular breathing warned him that Sir Oliver had fallen asleep during the short silence.

Now this surprised and shocked the skipper. He was utterly at a loss to understand how one who had lost Sir Oliver's life, had the right to sleep tranquilly in the knowledge that at dawn he was to hang. Considering matters, he was truly deeply touched to reflect on such a thing.

He could not help but feel a deep sympathy for the man who had found room in his mind to think of him and his fate and to undertake to contrive that he should be saved from the rope.

He was the more touched when he learned that Sir Oliver's desire to which he had him to his responsibility for all that happened to Sir Oliver.

Out of the consideration of hermeneutics, he said, "In his turn, he might perhaps serve Sir Oliver by a frank disclosure of all that he knew of the secret of the treasure he had found in his boat, and he fled to avoid being accused of having taken it."

Sir Oliver uttered him, and oddly enough, if uplifted him all the more when he reflected that perhaps he would be jeopardizing his own privilege in doing so.

"Lord, how my head aches!" he complained.

IDAHOPower Loses Rebate on Tax Appeal

Prosecuting Attorney Renders Opinion on County Commissioners Which Is Against Refund to Idaho Power for $2505.25 Taxes.

In an opinion handed down at 2:30 this afternoon Prosecuting Attorney D. W. Steward has ruled that the Idaho Power company is liable for the assessment levied against it by Assessors S. Claud Stewart for the property tax upon Salmon Falls on which the utility paid $2,505.25 under protest. The company appealed to the commissioners for a rebate. The county board referred the matter to the prosecuting attorney who sustains the assessor in the following opinion:

You have referred to me the question of the liability of a corporation to sustain against the Idaho Power company for personal property taxes, the property being situated at the Upper Salmon Falls, and what "decreed" in its assessment of "personal property, power and miscellaneous equipment," the assessed valuation being $22,600. The facts appear to be that while there is no property in the said area which comes within the class of "power and hydraulic power works and miscellaneous equipment," yet there remains the question of certain improvements in the way of development of the power plant, which are the rights in land which is intangible in its nature and hard to classify. It further appears, that the Idaho Power company itself, in a statement to the public utility commission, on August 21, 1923, set forth in their description of the plant that certain hydraulic power works valued at $75,552, and miscellaneous equipment value at $8,860.

To say that there is no property that would be assessable under the law would be to disregard the statement of the company itself. In that respect; moreover, the nature of their water right there, which is being held and exercised by them, would seem to come within the provisions of section 3012 of the Idaho compiled statutes, which read as follows:

"Personal property for the purposes of taxation shall be construed to embrace all items with which it is possible to deal and comprising it all goods, chattels, stocks and bonds, equities in state lands, easements, reservations, and all other natural and things of whatsoever name, nature and description which may be held or used by the person, firm, or corporation during their monthly meetings as follows:

Tetendorf, 450; second class, 323; first class, 112; motor busses, 320; equipment, 112; a boat, 12; and horses on the farm department, which, however, proved unnecessary.

Speaking of camping equipment, Director Thomas M. Robertson said:

"The 1924 campaign season began with 200 boys in winter camps. During the spring and summer camp participation increased to 1,000 boys.

The council held a six-week summer camp in Shoshone with a total of 151 boys from 24 troops present. A new mess hall was erected and the cabin rates reduced for winter camp. Water system installed and several projects in improvement of grounds were completed.

One hundred and twenty-two boys attended any kind of camp. Through the efforts of H. H. Hill, Mrs. A. H. Hill, Mrs. C. L. Hill, and Mrs. W. M. Cantrell, the camp for the summer was opened.

Twelve large pyramidal tents have been secured for use in future camps. We have over $1600 worth of camp buildings and equipment, owned very largely by the Twin Falls council."

Under the "circumstances as you see them forth to me, and particularly in view of the company's own statement of the nature and value of the property assessed upon the Upper Salmon Falls site, I think that the assessment should stand. The situation is such that the nature of the rights involved ought to be determined in some way by court action if necessary.
