The Literary Spotlight

By MARIAN ELLET

A WOMAN is always a playing for the man of the truly love. That is the opinion of George Jean Nathan. In an article which appeared in the January issue of Harper's International, the young critic settles once and for all the matter of women's love. There was no exception. "Fanny was beautiful and her father owned fruit vineyards. She was betrothed to the son of her father's partner—but her love was to be no village wedding. Instead, there was a barbaric ceremony in the wilderness, held among strange faces by light of the 'seventeen-times-seven lit fire.' Then came years of struggle between love for her gypsy husband and loneliness for her home and her people and her vineyards; and then, still greater adventure."

Rupert Hughes Tells a Homely Story of a Lonely People

RUPERT HUGHES is at his best in his latest short story, "The Average Hand," appearing in the January issue of Harper's International. It is one of those homely people from whose lives dreariness and dullness and poverty have counted all beauty unless it be the grim beauty of unflinching pain.

Gypsy Life and Gypsy Love Told by a Fictionist

EVERYONE knows that "I was pressed without safety turns sour." Music came from far away in the hills and played and sang while the young girls trod the wild grass.

HOW THE WOOL MARKET BEHAVED IN 1924

Supply and demand have ruled the year 1924 in widely separated tracks in the wool industry, says the Bureau of Agricultural Production in a survey just completed. Supply is reduced now to the point where consumption cannot be greater than current production. By October 1924 demand had pushed the index for the price of wool to 221 over the standard of 100 for 1913. Indications point to a situation within the next few years when production, which is expanding, will once more bring prices to a point at a lower index.

From 1923 until March, 1924, the United States wool industry had operated at a high pressure, and the consequence was a period of accumulated stocks of goods from March to June, 1924. Mills reporting to the United States Department of Commerce for June showed a consumption of 21,000,000 pounds, with non-reporting mills probably bringing the total consumption up to around 30,000,000 pounds. But this was the last slack month in the year. Since June the mills have been running at increasing pressure and the wool market has strengthened rapidly. On September 30, 1924, dealers and woolers mills held 20,000,000 pounds of wool against the 47,000,000 pounds stacked up on the buyers' reserve shelves on September 30, 1923. October 1, 1924, shows a reduction of 28 per cent under stocks held on the same date in 1923.

America has consumed 700,000,000 in 800,000,000 pounds of wool annually within the last three years while it has produced less than 300,000,000 pounds per year. The United States has been forced, in consequence, to be a heavy importer.

MORE SLEEP FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN
Dr. FREDERICK B. CHESMAN
1214 Washington Street

BEN FRANKLIN wrote his Poor Richard's Almanac over one hundred and fifty years ago. One of the most frequently quoted sayings in it was the one about getting to bed early to rise. "How many people this advice has made wealthy and wise, no man can tell." Certainly it has had its share in bed early has been unable to tell. "I need to be ready for the day or get to go to bed. There's never anything else to do. But now the movies and the radio are a strong temptation, especially for school children.

In Sioux City, Iowa, the teachers found that the children were not getting enough sleep, so they started a "more sleep" campaign. They arranged to have the school physician and the superintendent talk to the parents on the need of more sleep. The children may be tired at the little sleep on the health, growth and school work of the children. A pledge was drawn up in which parents agreed to have their children in bed not later than 8:30 for grade pupils and nine o'clock for junior high pupils. Five nights a week during the school year. A house-to-house campaign was made; the superintendent offered a prize to the school which would secure the highest percentage of parents signifying. Circulars, buttons, showing a check face with the date pointing to 8:30, were given to the children whose parents had signed the early-to-bed pledge.

A awful lot of bother, you say, to get children to go to bed early. "Try true, but it is apparently necessary to make a game out of it. Nothing I want children to do. But the method didn't matter. It's the results that count. What were the results in Sioux City? Healthier and more alert children, better homes at school, better natured children at home.

The growing child needs plenty of sleep. The child that stays up half the night is tired, cross and dull the next day. See that your child gets plenty of sleep every night.

LANDIS GIVES OUT STORY OF BALL SCANDAL

Supreme Dictator of Organized Baseball Makes Testimony of O'Connell and Dolan Public Today

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, supreme dictator of organized baseball, today gave out all the story in the O'Connell-Dolan attempted bribery case showing that nothing important had been concealed in previous versions of the affair.

The report was taken as an answer to charges that other members of the New York clubs were involved in the attempt to bribe Landis to let Philadelphia club to "throw" a game last year in the classic.

No player, except O'Connell, and possibly Dolan—both already imprisoned and banished from the game—had been named in the reports.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The testimony taken in the investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal may be made public as it concerns the supreme dictator of the game, who was tried by the O'Connell and Dolan and that George Kelly, Frank Frisch and How Young knew that he had done.

Kelly, Frisch and Young were arrested by the commissioner last week, the mystery remained as to why Landis accepted part of O'Connell's testimony as it concerned the supreme dictator and rejected the portions implicating the other players.

Landis in no question, President Hoeyler said today, "that baseball fans were just die-hard supporters of the world's series and that there was no scandal that had not been revealed in the past."

With the commissioner that all the facts and the results of the investigation has been made public.

Gets Christmas Gift From White Sox

Eddie Collins, for many years captain and second sacker for the Chicago White Sox, has been appointed manager of the team to succeed John Dwyer.

Collins said from his home at Lombard that he was delighted to get the chance to manage the Sox. "It's a mighty good Christmas present," he said. "It's too soon for me to say what I intend to do to give the Sox a winner," he continued.

Books Show Soccer One of World's Oldest Sports

Curious insight on the age of soccer is given by the Journal des Sports de l'Afrique du Nord de France.

This paper reproduces a peculiar engraving discovered among some old books sold by a bookseller on the Quai des Trans-Sudgates in Paris, in 1823, representing a game of soccer.

The fact that there were 11 players and that their attitudes were the same as football players of today led the author to conclude that soccer is of the origin of the game.

In 1586, it says, "six years after the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, the first European who mentioned soccer in his diary was a very young man named John Smith, who was playing the game in the Virginia colony."

The author asked the ball toward a player in the center or toward the right either to touch it with his hands or to return it with his foot. The ball was of leather filled with down.

Mention of the game in England dates further back still; however, repeated decrees prohibiting it having been issued, only in 1848, when Edward III, Henry IV, Henry VIII and Elizabeth, the first of these being as early as 1284.

Life Without Friendship It is like taking the sun out of the world to break down human life, friendship is the sun of the human race. We have given man nothing better, nothing more steadfast—Cicero.

Alvin Stenquist, forty-year-old, Finnish veteran in the Olympics, last July at Paris, was declaredly honor recently in a modified marathon on the streets of Helsingfors, capital of Finland.

Athletics are booming in France, Schmalz, collegiate and military events are slated for next year and in addition international games will be engaged in with Belgium, England and other countries.

Sam Brendon, president of the Canadianis, says he has made $50,000 in the trade. "I will play better golf." The first will be harder to keep than the second.

"President Turner" and Manager Lewis of the Portland club are teaming up for besting using their teams for next year. They expect to make a deal for outfielder Paul Strand of Toledo in the near future.

True Courage—The truest courage is always mixed with circumspection; this being the quality which distinguishes the courage of the soldier from the gallantry of the mad and foolhardy—James O. Neill.

An advertisement worth looking over, as never overlooked in the newspaper.

BOISE REALTOR FACES CHARGE

BOISE, Jan. 10.—Alfred T. Stein, manager of the Edward Stein company, Boise firm dealing in real estate, has been charged with a violation of the anti-trust law.

The charge is based on a warrant charging Stein with having conspired with Laurel E. Egan, Ada county prosecuting attorney, who owns a real estate business in the city.

The warrant was issued in the court of Carl H. Norris, justice of the peace, Mr. Stein said that the conspiracy involved in the alleged bribery, which concerns the instance of alleged bribery, was in the nature of a conspiracy to defraud the public.

He said his office is contemplating other charges against Stein, either on the basis of the conspiracy or on the basis of the anti-trust law.

Northwest Millers Look at Portland Lack for Wheat Shortage

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 10.—A wheat shortage in the Pacific northwest—one of the great wheat producing sections of the country—is in prospect until the next season, crop in available, according to information today from leading millers here.

For some time past millers have been obtaining much of their wheat for part in flour from the mid-west and today a shortage of it is complained from across the mountains.

For the first time, however, millers are seeing a shortage of wheat in the northwest territory it was said, this comes as a result of the usual conditions here and follows the exportation and shipment of millions of bushels of wheat from this territory eastward in the month.

The shortage is expected to be a serious one, according to information today from leading millers here.

DAILY MARKET REPORTS

GRAINS RAILLY.
CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Grain futures closed steady. Wheat, 1 1/2c; corn, 1 1/4c; and finished higher on the board of trade today.
 The absence of larger outside interest prevented an extensive advance in wheat. A significant point was the sharp uptick in May while July was inclined to lag. This, according to seasoned traders, showed the usual speculative condition to May.
 Heavy receipts and dull demand prevented corn from following more closely the uptick in wheat. It, too, closed the smallest fraction higher.
 Provisions finished strong.
