BILL TILDEN THREATENS TO QUIT NET GAME

over Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis cup committee, and former president of the association, who has been the real boss of the game and one of his most bitter opponents.

Myrick proposed that the Davis committee be forced to name the Davis cup players three weeks before the start of the challenge tournament, and tell them how they were going to play. Myrick fought it and lost. The player-writer rule which was passed, was not exactly a victory for Tilden but it was not a defeat for he is still allowed to spend part of his time improving current tennis literature.

FARMER SHOT IN HAY QUAREL

R. J. Carakadon in Rupert Jail charged with intent to murder—Twin Falls, Over Division of Hay.

RUPERT, Ida., Feb. 10.—The case of R. L. Carakadon, charged with intent to commit murder, was to have been heard this morning in Justice court, but same was postponed until tomorrow at two o'clock.

RUPERT, Ida., Feb. 10.—As a result of a shooting incident, a block of hay during morning three miles west of Hayden in the Emerald district, William Cole, 25 years of age, who lives in the same neighborhood, is in the Burley hospital with a broken thigh bone and scalp wound, and R. L. Carakadon, 57 years old, is in the Rupert Jail charged with attempted murder.

Carakadon, arrested before Probate Judge W. H. Hardy Wednesday afternoon, a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, was placed in jail after his bond had been fixed at $1,000. Hearing of the case is set for Thursday morning.

According to the version of the story as given to officials, Carakadon, owner of the farm, had pulled the block which he thought was to be used for hay, and was in the hay when he was shot.

As the argument grew more heated Carakadon is alleged to have drawn a gun and fired at Payne who was on the stack. Falling to hit him, Payne dropped his working hard and called to Cole to get the gun.

At this point, Cole, a widower with four children, is said to have talked Carakadon down, and he then left the scene, leaving the children in the hands of the neighbors.

After the abolition Payne got on his back and carried him part way across the field, where they were met by C. C. Nelson, who lives near the scene of the shooting and had been called to the scene by his son who had heard the firing. Nelson at once took the man to the hospital.

While the injured man is seriously wounded his condition is not considered fatal unless complications set in. All three men are well known in the American district. Carakadon is a bachelor.

FARM ORGANIZATIONS OPPOSE COOLIDGE TARIFF REMEDY

BY JAMES D. WHELAN.

The administration at Washington is terribly peeved because farm organizations have criticized the report of the Coolidge farm conference and have failed to appreciate the "remedies" which have been set out. Such remedies, which largely consist of increased tariff rates, could not reasonably have been expected to satisfy the farmers. Last year, the American Farm Bureau got up a table showing all possible benefits to farmers from tariffs, including some that it admitted were questionable or due to temporary causes, and it found that the tariff as a whole cost the agriculturists $301,000,000 a year more than it benefited them.

Later figures and estimates by other farm organizations go even further. There are two distinct and contrary sets of views expounded by two other leading farm organizations regarding remedies. The American Council of Agriculture holds to one theory, and the Farmers' National Council advances another.

The main difference between the two bodies is that the American Council of Agriculture wants the McNary-Haugen bill while the Farmers' National Council is opposed to that measure. Both agree that the tariff is useless at present. In its report in December, 1924, the first named organization says, speaking of the present tariff system:

"It is time to challenge the wisdom of a system that not only does not encourage an independent and contented agriculture but is actually threatening to destroy it. Such a system is inequitable from the standpoint of agriculture, but even more than that it is wrong as a national economic and social policy. The whole protective structure in the United States enhances farm production costs above those in lands whose products, sold in the world market, definitely establish the price at which the American farmer is compelled to sell in his own domestic market."

With equal severity but from an opposite angle, the bulletin of the Farmers' National Council, two weeks before the Coolidge conference reported, said:

"President Coolidge is a high protectionist and says that the advocates of that economic abortion—the McNary-Haugen bill—are high protectionists. That bill is dead, but the same old crowd—Charles J. Brand, Frank Murphy and Geo. N. Peck, high priests of protection, have dropped out a new panacea along the same old line which they have passed up to President Coolidge's Agricultural Lullaby Commission—to help farmers to survive Wall Street's Protective Tariff."

But the report of the conference is so satisfactory to the American Protective Tariff League that its organ, the American Economist, says that much of it might have been written in its offices. Maybe it was.

With all the great farm organizations united on the practical worthlessness of the protective tariff, it should hardly surprise President Coolidge to find that they were not converted overnight by recommendations which the Tariff League says might largely have been written in its own offices.

1000 TO 1 AGAINST WAR

Suppose the protocol of mutual assistance were now in force. Greece and Turkey have a difference. Turkey has expelled the Greek Patriarch and Archbishops, which act Greece claims is contrary to the Treaty of Lausanne. Turkey denies it, and refuses arbitration. Under the protocol, Greece would demand either arbitration or trial before the world court, if that body decided it had jurisdiction.

Turkey would either accept one of these methods or be declared the "aggressor" in any war that might result even if Greece struck the first blow. If there was arbitration and it went against Greece, on the ground that the expulsions were within Turkey's sovereign rights, Greece would accept the verdict, under the same penalties. The chances are a thousand to one that no war would result, in either of these events.

In the thousandth case, the "aggressor" would be boycotted by everybody, at once. Such nations as chose to go further would consult as to steps against the aggressor. Nobody could take steps in its favor, without risking the same consequences. The war would be decisive, would hurt only the offender, and would not disrupt the rest of the world. America's obligation would be confined to a peaceful boycott.

Opening Up
EARLY in the morning when it's time for folks to rise, how oft this same old story has been told. A sleepy missus whispers, when dad opens up his eyes, "You'd better get the fire, the house is cold." So father toddles out at the break of the day, and it really doesn't take a fortune teller to tell a wondering woman that the remedy is so simple as to help fix the room's furnace in the cellar.

He stumbles in his slippers and his bathrobe drags behind. He really has real reason to be sure. But what's the use to argue when his wife's made up her mind that it's up to him to feed the furnace?

"Use the coal," he blazes, and he's 'em beat up the stairs in a flash. He's warm to get the furnace fire in trim. For if he isn't, he'll warm his little spouse, she'd likely make it kinder.

"You asked me, Therese, 'I'm all set.' I snapped the lock of his bag. 'I'm sorry I can't give you anything. I haven't a thing. Not even a pair of wine and a what-is-it they say in books?—oh, well—a blanket.'"

In the modest salon Paula manifested a fierce and steady speed for the remainder of the drive.

"We call the place Stormwood," Paul told her. "And nobody outside the door family-knows how fitting that is. Don't you see, I'm not going to tell you any of my secrets. And don't you say I take her for it. ... How's the job?"

"I don't see it. The work?"

"I like it well enough, only—well, you see we leave the university architectural course thinking we're all going to be the Sturges-Waltens. We're just, tossing off a Woolworth building and making ourselves famous overnight. I've spent all yesterday and today planning a drydock box that's going up on the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Ashland, well."

"Just all year?"

"Ten years from now maybe they'll let us do the plans for the drydock box all alone."

"Why don't you drop it?"

He was startled. "Drop it? How do you mean?"

"Cut it. Do something that will bring you quick results. This isn't an age of waiting. Suppose, twenty years from now, you do plan a grand Gothic office building to grace this new and aggrandized Michigan boulevard they're always shouting about! You'll be a middle-class man living in a middle-class house in a middle-class suburb with a middle-class wife."

"Maybe," slightly nettled.

"This turns out to be the gates of Stormwood. A final turn of the drive. An avenue of trees. A house, massive, unshorn, porticoed. The door opened silently, and in order with a lift of the eyebrow or a nod of the head. Paula looked high and away from her little ears. He decided not to mention it.

Paul told himself that Paula had known her husband would not be home until ten and had deliberately planned a letter to meet him. He was not, therefore, confessing himself a little neglect when Paula said, "I've asked the Emerys in for dinner, and we'll have a little party next day."

Philip Emery, you know, the Third. He used to have it on his visiting card, he really did.

The Emerys were drydockers; had been drydockers for sixty years; were accounted Chicago architects; prepared England; had come from the fish camps along Chicago's grim and startled suburban penitents. They had a vast estate on the lake near Stormwood. They arrived a little late. Dirk had seen pictures of old Philip Emery ("Philip the First," he thought, with an inward grin) and decided to dine at the rather antique third edition, that the stock was running a little thin. The dinner was delicious but surprisingly wonderful little work than Solina would have given him, Dirk thought, but he came home to the farm this week-end. The talk was desultory and rather dull. And this chap had millions, Dirk said to himself. Millions No scratching in an architect's office for his life.

At bridge after dinner Philip the Third proved to be sufficiently the son of his father to win from Dirk more money than he could conveniently afford to lose.

ANSWER TO WEEK-END PUZZLE

Heavy Taxes Holding Back Auto in Germany.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Imposition of numerous taxes and fees are a serious impediment to the development of the use of automobiles in Germany, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce by its foreign representatives.

Owners of motor cars are one class that rarely escapes paying taxes, because of the police registration of all motor vehicles. But even before an automobile can be put on the highway reaches the user it has been the subject of considerable taxation through the turnover tax that has been assessed upon each transfer of the material going into the car.

With the purchase of the car the buyer must pay a luxury tax of 10 percent of the selling price. Upon issuance of an operating license and registration, payment of the yearly operating tax is required. As in other countries, except that Germany's is much higher, this tax is based on the horsepower of the machine. The tax on a six-horsepower passenger machine is 120 gold marks a year; or the tax is $40 marks, and for a 24-horsepower car, 1,200 marks.

Even after these taxes are paid the automobile owner has the burden of paying turn-over taxes on gasoline, oil, spare parts, tires and accessories.

Rheumatism

"Yes it's all gone."

Don't close your eyes and think that the pain, motion and strength are gone for you forever. It is not so. You can get rid of your rheumatism by building up your blood power. It is a fact that Rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-cell bodies. S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleaners in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the backbone of pain released from your strutting body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness and aches and pains all disappear; your stomach made strong; your feet plump with the old sweetest glow; your blood enriched; and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

It is in S.S.S. and it's all good food that is in S.S.S. The liver uses S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again.

CORN PRIZES ARE GIVEN AT HANSEN

Feed at Moose Hall—There will be feed at the Moose hall on Wednesday evening to which all members of the Moose lodge are invited.

Discharged from Hospital—Miss Ed Hansen of Hyrum, Utah, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davis, and Mr. M. J. Johnson, were discharged from the hospital last yesterday.

Used to Tampco—Lynn C. Beauchamp left today for Tampico where he resumes work for the company for which he has been employed for some time, following a vacation spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Beauchamp.

Will Give Play—Another play by the same young people who have presented a number of popular plays recently at the First Ward chapel of the L. D. church, will produce another Friday evening entitled "The Professor's Hobbies" at the First Ward chapel.

May Buy Tickets—Many are buying tickets from him and at the drug store for the merchant dance tonight at 10 at the Elks club. Secretary Charles F. Dwight said he would be glad to see a number of friends, alone or as invited.

Bloom Explains Situation.—To explain the situation today, Superintendent Bloom said in substance: Last year the voters gave a mandate to levy and three quarters mill extra. By August, when the levy was made, the board found it would get along with less, and levied only five and five-eighths. It will be impossible to get along with less than the present standard of efficiency. We already have too many students and pupils than last year. With the completion of the railroad and the completion of the new house, the population is bound to increase and the expense of conducting a school is certain to be greater than last year.

May Not Levy All.—The fact that the board asks to be given leave to levy seven mills in addition to the eight-mills which it is permitted to levy, does not mean that it will levy that much, any more than the fact that the board was granted only five and five-eighths mills last year, meant that it would not levy that much. It is not possible to ask for less than the amount on mills under the circumstances and in view of the present and prospective growth, should there be a demand for the re-establishment of courses in manual training.

Will Be Only Fractional.—Under no circumstances would the board ask to levy more than seven mills as formerly. Only that which is strictly necessary to the maintenance of the school is demanded. There is no demand for that extent. This year the board has a deficit of $8,000 for the year. It is not proposed to levy one mill for the purpose of making up the deficit. It is proposed simply to give to the board the privilege should it appear by August 1st that the board need use it for levying up to seven extra mills, or five and five-eighths of one mill which is a total of just one and one-eighth mills. The board was permitted to levy last year by the voters.

INCREASE OF SCHOOL LEVY IS NECESSARY

Superintendent Bloom Says That Total Amount Asked Is Only Quarter of Mill Greater Than Was Granted Last Year; Will Not Make Levy to the Full Amount Unless Necessary.

That it is proposed by the school board to ask the voters to levy a quarter of a mill more than the voters permitted it to levy last year, but that this may not be used, was explained by Superintendent J. B. Bloom today.

Bloom Explains Situation.—To explain the situation today, Superintendent Bloom said in substance: Last year the voters gave a mandate to levy and three quarters mill extra. By August, when the levy was made, the board found it would get along with less, and levied only five and five-eighths. It will be impossible to get along with less than the present standard of efficiency. We already have too many students and pupils than last year. With the completion of the railroad and the completion of the new house, the population is bound to increase and the expense of conducting a school is certain to be greater than last year.

May Not Levy All.—The fact that the board asks to be given leave to levy seven mills in addition to the eight-mills which it is permitted to levy, does not mean that it will levy that much, any more than the fact that the board was granted only five and five-eighths mills last year, meant that it would not levy that much. It is not possible to ask for less than the amount on mills under the circumstances and in view of the present and prospective growth, should there be a demand for the re-establishment of courses in manual training.

Will Be Only Fractional.—Under no circumstances would the board ask to levy more than seven mills as formerly. Only that which is strictly necessary to the maintenance of the school is demanded. There is no demand for that extent. This year the board has a deficit of $8,000 for the year. It is not proposed to levy one mill for the purpose of making up the deficit. It is proposed simply to give to the board the privilege should it appear by August 1st that the board need use it for levying up to seven extra mills, or five and five-eighths of one mill which is a total of just one and one-eighth mills. Moroni Olsen Players Present 'Taming of Shrew' Splendidly

The last play to be presented by the Moroni Olsen players was a very successful evening at the Laying the Shroud under the auspices of the Dual-wire and Protestant churches. This third offering by this company surpassed all others as far as classic production to say and many more years' experience than the Moroni Olsen players have had in the past. "The Taming of the Shrew" is called a comedy, the first part rounded very much like tragedy to the end. The play was a very successful one, and many more years' experience than the Moroni Olsen players have had in the past. BLOOM IS CHOSEN AGAIN SERVE AS HEAD OF SCHOOLS

Superintendent Is Offered Two Year Contract With Substantial Salary Increase—Accepted by Superintendent Bloom. The Special Election for Increased Levy is Called for February 21.

The school board last evening elected Superintendent Ernest Bloom for two more years at an increased salary, by unanimous vote and amid many commendations for his work during the past year. His salary was increased from $2500.00 to $3500.00 per annum. The board also called a special election February 21, to ask the voters to grant seven extra mills in addition to the eight mills allowed by the statute. In order to defray necessary expenses and to re-establish manual training and domestic science in some degree.

Six Mills Necessary.—Six extra mills are absolutely necessary for the carrying on of the schools, even without the two branches of three-quarters mill. Bloom was elected last year in addition, but only five and five-eighths was used. According to the report of Superintendent Bloom, the enrollment is greater than at any high peak of 1920-1921, and last Friday showed an actual enrollment of 245.

MANFIELD, DANCERS TONIGHT

Dance Center Keenly Anticipated—Anticipation of the Twelfth Century Ball.

The appearance tonight of the Fortia Manfield Dancers in their beautiful and unusual Dance Concert is being keenly anticipated. The program is divided into three parts and includes several visualizations of famous compositions. In the first part, Liszt's "Les Preludes" is the composition chosen, and it is depicted by an allegorical story, based on poetry which inspired the composition, and represents the eternal struggle between the forces of good and evil with Virginia Stanfield as "Life," Jeanette Jiles, "Fidelity" and Jack Davis, "Dedication." Another beautiful visualization is that of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." Then there is a delightful dance entitled "In Happiness Sin," which represents a demure little Quaker girl succumbing to the lure of a Strauss waltz. A humorous touch is given by the quaint "Dutch Leap" dance, while Jeanette Fuller and Jack Daw are seen in two charming modern numbers, "Waltz Fantasy" and "Caucasian Tangle." "Topsy," a dance of Russia, is danced to the tune of the "Topsy" (Tchaikovsky). Altogether the program is rich in variety and charm and indications point to a full house. Seals may be had at MacIsaac Pharmacy.
