President Coolidge Outlines Policies in Inaugural Address Which Is Practically Complete

President Will Re-affirm His Belief in Limitation of Arms; States Position on Foreign Affairs; Favors Further Tax Reduction and May Call Special Session of Congress for Next Fall to Consider Tax Relief and Re-affirm His Conservative Political Philosophy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25.—President Coolidge has completed the draft of his inaugural message and now is paring it down to make it conform to his ideal of brevity in state papers.

Contrary to many reports, however, the document will not be particularly short since he has endeavored to discuss the major policies of his administration in much the same manner, he would in a message to congress.

After eliminating all that, he feels can be dispensed with, his address will take more than half an hour to deliver.

The president proposes to make the speech a record of his administration in the past and the major policies to which he proposes to adhere in the next four years.

It will not be a brief summary but a studied exposition of his views.

On outstanding issues, the president will: 1. Reaffirm his belief in further arms limitations as the most practical step that can be taken at present toward world peace.

MADDER MAY BE SPEAKER INSTEAD OF LONGWORTH

Pennsylvania Has Switched Support to Illinois Congressman and This May Defeat Nicholas Longworth If He Is Elected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Eleventh hour developments in the fight between representatives Martin B. Madden, Illinois, and Nicholas Longworth, Ohio, for the speakership in the next house today changed the entire complexion of the race.

Heretofore, it had been felt Longworth commanded a comfortable majority in the speaker's contest to be held Friday night, but leaders of the Pennsylvania's republican delegation have now assured Madden's election by coming into his bid, according to Representative Britten, Illinois manager, Madden's candidacy.

Representative Greer, Pennsylvania republican leader, announced himself in favor of Madden and Britten predicted that Representative Vore, leader of the Philadelphia force, would do likewise tomorrow night.

On the 27th of Great's action, Representative Wood of Indiana, republican, dispatched a letter today to the editor of the Philadelphia Record, in which he so soon expected the New York republican delegation also to come out for Madden.

FAKE SECURITIES ROB PUBLIC OF ONE BILLION ANNUALLY

President of New York Stock Exchange Makes Startling Announcement of Ample Fraud in Stock Market.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Buckley stock operator and vendor of fake securities are robbing the public of $1,000,000,000 annually, E. H. Simmons, president of the New York stock exchange, told today in a speech before the national exchange officials and bankers in a unique conjugal action to protect the public.

Today the Chicago Association of Cuckoo Exchange from the Board of Trade, the Chicago Stock exchange, the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois Chamber of Agriculture, County Bankers association pledged to aid the New York exchangers in the nationwide fight.

All classes suffer from operations of unscrupulous stock brokers and fraudulent securities peddlers, Simmons said.

But among the helpless and poor, the smallest under the biggest, the most dangerous parasite of the business world.

Senator McCormick Dies Suddenly of Heart Attack Mystery Surrounds Death

Illinois Senator Was Disappointed in Not Being Re-elected Last Fall and Also Down-Hearted Over Failure of Measures in Senate; Coroner Orders Body Held in Hotel Until His Wife Reaches Scene; Had Held Party Last Night; Blood Found on Face and Body in Bed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25.—Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, died of a heart attack, Coroner J. Ramsay Nevill, certified today.

The physician's diagnosis of death being due to a gastric hemorrhage was upset by Nevill who said no blood clots were found in the stomach.

McCormick's face and hands were due to a cut on his chin, sustained when he fell after the attack, Nevill said. Nevill refused to let the body be removed from the hotel to the home of Countess Gyska, his cousin, as planned, ordering to remain until the arrival of Mrs. McCormick from Chicago.

A certificate of death due to natural causes still stands despite alteration of the cause attributed.

McCormick, apparently in good health when he arose this morning, was suddenly seized about 9:30 and expired almost immediately.

Mrs. McCormick has been summoned to small Chicago and is on her way here.

McCormick's term would have expired in June, but he was defeated for renomination last fall by Charles Dineen. He had recently been prominently mentioned for appointment as ambassador to Germany.

Senator Jerry Dempsey, Illinois, was reportedly disappointed recently in a nomination to a position which brought him to Chicago and which they felt another man might have survived.

McCormick took his defeat for renomination last fall very keenly, they said. An added disappointment was the apparent failure of the sale of Pine trees with Cuba to secure a loan of during his term. It was reported that McCormick had been in contact with his bank pending twenty years, and hoped to add it finally during the term.

McCormick was one of the leaders of the "Irreconcilables" who opposed the Versailles treaty. Mrs. McCormick has been a devotee of the conditions in the Senate.

After an investigation at the hotel, Detective Bernard Thompson of Headquarters, announced there were "no suspicious circumstances," and the coroner issued a certificate of death "due to natural causes."

McCormick married the daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna of Ohio in 1903. They have three children.

DEMOCRATS HAIKRA CAIR

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 25.—Republican members of the Indiana state legislature today threatened to bring the state militia to the polls to "force democratic members to keep their seats."

Business in the senate was completely halted "due to preventing a quorum" because of the absence of Sen. Bennett.

The flight was precipitated by introduction of the "Pine Tree" bill, which would have granted a loan of $100,000,000 to Cuba to secure a loan of during his term.

FRUIT TREES SHOULD NOT BE PRUNED EARLY

Expert in Horticulture States That Fruit Growers Should Not Prune Fruit Trees in the Spring.

MOSCOW, Feb. 25.—"Sit back and play a waiting game so far as the pruning of fruit trees is concerned, although winter kill has been experienced in many orchards throughout the world, the best time to prune is not determined until the spring sets in."

An advisory of E. R. Bennett, field horticulturist for the University of Idaho extension division, who has been continuing an informal survey of the results of the kill during last winter, giving his opinion to Idaho fruit growers who have expressed alarm at the possibility of a greatly reduced fruit crop for this year.

He states that the effects of the kill is so extensive as to be suggested by growers, that in many places just the buds have been killed. This means that only this year's crop will be lost.

"I would advise," said Mr. Bennett, "that growers do not attempt to prune the trees now, but to wait until the spring pruning work, such as spraying and scaling, should be done with them."

Although it is early yet for an accurate estimate of the damage done by Mr. Bennett, it is safe to say the fruit crop of the state will be reduced very little, since the early pruning workers, as he said, were headed for a foreign land and were seeking to plant on the early pruning work in Mexican territory.

In strong language Mr. Colton answered the representative Bennett made the final argument for the bill, answering particularly the objections of Representative Leatherwood.

The committee gave an indication of its purpose, but it is generally understood the bill will not be reported this session, because of a proposed amendment to the bill, which would be reported and letting other historic pathways go unmarked.

Warns to Subject.

In his statement to the committee today Representative Colton in part said:

"One of the principal objections I have to this bill is that it attempts to legislate out of existence a number of the best and most valuable property of the state."

"The bill is a direct and deliberate attempt to take away from the people of this state a property which is as valuable as any other property they possess."

KEEPING WELL

SPRING TONICS

DR. FREDERICK H. HENRY
Editor of "HEALTH"

With the first signs of spring our grandmothers went out into the woods and gathered herbs, roots and berries. Sassafras or cannelle tree spruce beer or ginger beer? Whatever it was, it was "cool, the blood," which was supposed to become hot and thick during the long winter.

This led to a "spring tonic" like many popular delusions, had its origin in the teachings of the wise men of the past.

The old physiologists believed that there were four "humors" or fluids in the body—blood, lymph, black bile and yellow bile—and that disease was caused by improper combinations of these four fluids. In the winter the blood was supposed to become thick and hot.

Doctors know better now, but the popular belief still survives. The sassafras tea our grandmothers used to make wasn't bad stuff. It was brown and sparkling and pungent with the spicy odors of the "ginger woods." It didn't "thin the blood," but it didn't do us any harm and was the best our good old grandmothers knew.

Yet, like many popular beliefs, there was a germ of truth in it. During the winter most of us stay in the house too much. We sit at a desk or a worktable too constantly. We wear too heavy clothes. We eat too much heavy food. We don't get enough fresh air and sunshine.

When spring comes we feel the universal impulse toward growth and regeneration. We want new life. We want stimulation. We need a "spring tonic," but we don't need one out of a bottle.

The best spring tonic is God's great outdoors. So get outdoors and play. It doesn't matter how. It may be with a golf stick or a shotgun or a baseball or a canoe paddle. Hunt up nice old fishing tackle and overhaul it.

Now is the time for boys to get out their marbles and to start building their forts.

It's the time for little girls to get their skipping ropes and jack stones. Get the "time" for baseball on the vacant lots and for picnicking horseback in the backyard.

We all need a spring tonic. You can get your share.

There's air and sunshine enough for everybody and they don't cost a cent. (Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

Curious Form of Door.

One of the oldest of human inventions is the door swinging on hinges at one side. Some weaving insects, such as trap-door spiders, employ a similar device. But nothing is so old or so good to escape the efforts of inventiveness. A Belgian, Joseph Heuri Dirckx, invented a door of a new type, consisting of two triangular parts which close together on a diagonal line, running from one lower corner of the door, opening to the opposite upper corner. The two parts, or leaves, are pivoted in such a manner that when opened they swing into partitions in the ceiling, leaving an entirely unobstructed passage.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD IN BUHL

Buhl Will Entertain District Basketball Tournament; Sub-District Tourney to Be Staged This Week; Twin Falls Standard Second in This District With Filer Leading; Rupert Has Not Lost a Game This Season.

BUHL, Feb. 25.—Buhl's athletic plan for this year is to hold a basketball tournament for the district basketball tournament to be held March 5, 6 and 7. Local fans are anxious to see the contest with enthusiasm that bids to make a success.

At the same time, the managers of the tournament are planning a series of tourneys in the district this week to determine the teams to enter the tournament held at Buhl this week end as previously planned, for the reason that Buhl will be permitted to enter the tournament under a ruling of the state and district board which provides that the team winning the tournament be permitted to enter a team without qualification.

Filer is leading in the sub-district, while Twin Falls is second on a percentage basis, and Rupert and Caldwell are willing to enter Twin Falls, Filer and Buhl from this division.

Nine boys teams will be entered in the district tournament and two girls' teams will compete for district honors. Loving cups will be awarded to the district champions and to the runners up, while a 'loving cup' will also be awarded to the team which wins the district championship.

Both Jerome and Gooding have strong teams this season, and are expected to be heard from in the Halley section. It is hard to predict the winners.

Rupert Wins Every Game.

The Rupert-Buhl sub-district will select their two teams which will be held in Gooding on February 27, 28, while the schools in the Halley section are holding a similar elimination tournament.

Idaho Student Has Part in Raising Big Memorial Sum

Elliot Wood of Bliss Assists in Raising Large Sum for Memorial at Oregon Agricultural College.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 25.—A student from Bliss has had a part in raising more than $200,000 of the $500,000 required to erect a memorial union building on the campus. The student who worked in the campaign organization is Elliot Wood, inspired by the example of the most famous of his countrymen, the Spanish-American and world wars, students and faculty pledged $25,000 to the project if less than a week of this sum faculty members contributed $27,000. Although the student and business men of Corvallis have contributed nearly $100,000 in campaigns not completed. With less than $200,000 to be raised and the entire annual fund practically untouched, the financial part of $200,000 will be received by April 1, say those in charge.

The building, planned for completion in the fall of 1926, the plan offered by Leo Thomas, 27, architect, provides for a building 200 feet long and towering to a height of 100 feet. It is designed in keeping with the campus building plan, yet has the added attraction of classic architecture.

In the building will be offices for the various student organizations now centered over the entire campus, and a large lecture hall for men and women with appropriate rest and reading rooms. The stadium with a seating capacity of 5,000, will probably be utilized by large gatherings such as the annual regatta in the spring.

A theatre with a pipe organ and seats for 100 persons has been included, with workrooms and shops for scenery making. The organ will be donated so that its music may be transferred to the large auditorium when it is being used for purposes. A set of chairs will be installed in the upper part of the dome.

An elaborate suite of four rooms and a large reception hall, and a room will be provided for the alumni treasury and staff, now located in a small room in the commerce building. Included also will be an information desk and museum's room and a group of rooms to be assigned to special campus organizations.

Members of the governing board are Lindsey Spillett of Hood River, president; E. D. Atchley, Paulsen, and E. E. Wilson, Corvallis, members of the board of regents; H. L. Clark, Portland; Percy Colburn, Astoria; H. H. Hilly, Portland; and Donald Hill, Corvallis, applicant representatives.

PATE HELD TO DISTRICT COURT FOR BURGLARY

The preliminary hearing of Paul Pate, charged with burglarizing the Golden Rule store on the night of January 27 came on this afternoon.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Probate Judge Justice found him over to the district court under a $200 bail. He offered an evidence in his own behalf and asked a question of witnesses.

Date, who is only 19 years old, formerly lived near Filer. It is said that on one occasion he was followed here by detectives from Portland, who searched him with their dogs but they find no evidence to cause his arrest. He was not represented by attorney, and while suddenly bright enough does not appear much concerned.

Coaches Vote Four Backs as Best Ever

Recently 20 coaches, many of whom have been at the game for a score of years either as player or coach, were asked to name an all-time all-American team.

There was a wide difference of opinion everywhere except in the backfield. Here the vote of the coaches was practically unanimous.

Eckersall at quarter, Grange and Thurg at the half and Eddie Mann at fullback. The last three were top-heavy favorites, although the McMillan pressed Eckersall far above the job at quarterback.

"Fup" Wenzey got the most votes for all-American coach.

MUNICIPAL POWER PLANT MAY BE ISSUE IN CITY ELECTION

There is talk of municipal ownership of light and power being made an issue, or the issue in this city this spring. This can only come about if some actuated by the spirit which Arthur L. Swin said is evident in certain quarters should insist on drawing the lines away from a sane meeting of the problem involved. Mr. Swin said there were a few who would oppose municipal power regardless of any facts presented, and a few who would favor it in a similar spirit, but the great body of the people simply wanted whichever system would be best for Twin Falls.

The Swin resolution, adopted at the open meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with but one dissenting vote, asked for an election on the subject. Since that time, some have construed this to mean that Mr. Swin meant an election for the issuance of bonds for the construction of the system, and there has been some talk about the probable amount of bonds that would be issued and the large cost involved in getting complete estimates on this. Eventually such elaborate estimates would have to be made, but they are not needed now.

What Mr. Swin did mean is made clear enough by his article in the Times Saturday. He meant to get a line on a power site, or power sites enough, to furnish light and power for this city, so that options could be secured on them, and then put the proposition up to the people. Should they want to retain them, they could be secured, after which the details of working out a complete power system could be done as soon as possible. This last would take time and cost money, but the city would have a reasonable time under the law before beginning development. Take the course followed in the American Falls district proposition. First a series of popular meetings were held. Then the matter of creating the district was put up to the voters. After it carried, the question of issuing bonds was submitted to the taxpayers. At last, after the bonds were issued the final plans were amended several times before adoption. If it had been necessary to determine just the sort of dam to be built in the start, the cost would have been immense and the result unsatisfactory. Suppose the city should take over a power site at a reasonable figure and it should eventually prove impossible to construct the plant by reason of the failure of the people to vote construction bonds. The site could probably be sold for the purchase price. Dr. W. H. Dwight made some very sensible remarks in favor of this plan at the council meeting on the evening of February 16.

If all candidates will pledge themselves to back the Swin plan as construed by himself, and convince the people that they mean it, there will be no power issue in the spring campaign. No council elected could legally do more than he suggests; no council elected should do less. It is a plan on which all reasonable people can and should agree. It involves no great expense and would put the whole question up to the voters, without any of the personalities that clutter up financial and economic issues where candidates are involved.

JARDINE STATES POLICY.

Dr. Jardine, who will be secretary of agriculture next month, starts out his statements of policy with the announcement that he wants to see more co-operation between the business man of the farm and the business man of the city. Says Jardine, "I have never seen anything gained by trying to band one class against another."

That is a good statement, but it will be hard to put into practice. What the farmer wants most now is banding to protect himself against the classes with which he does business. This is what the farm press is urging upon him and what all the farm advisers are preaching. "They tell him, what is very true, that if he does not prepare to fight intelligently for himself, he will get poor treatment."

We will always have producers struggling with consumers. It is good practice to buy as low as possible and sell as high as possible. The weight of the buyers in the land is always tugging against the weight of the sellers. This is class banded against class. Jardine will find it hard to break this clinch.

He will find, too, that there are sectional battles to iron out. The south, which buys Idaho potatoes and supports Idaho reclamation, seeks a market for its cottonseed and peanut oil. These, in the form of spreads for bread and shortening, are condemned and legislated against by states in which dairying is struggling to get a good hold. Class banded against class, again; one farmer fighting another farmer.

Nothing was ever gained by this sort of thing, Jardine says. He may be right, but whenever he puts his finger on a specific instance, there will be thousands to give him book and verse to show that something has been gained.—Statesman.

SYNOPSIS

A young London newspaper reporter is rejected by the girl he loves on the ground that he has no heroic accomplishments to his credit. She wants to marry "a man of great deeds and strange experiences," she says. The reporter, determined to win her, decides to go in search of adventure.

CHAPTER I

"Try Your Luck with Professor Challenger!" I always liked McArthur, the crabbed, old, round-bellied, red-headed newspaper editor, and I rather hoped that he liked me. Of course, "Inasmuch" was the name; but he lived in the rarefied atmosphere of some Olympian height from which he could distinguish nothing smaller than an international crisis or a split in the Cabinet, and he was too busy passing his hourly minutes to his inner sanctum, with his eyes staring vaguely and his mind hovering over the Balkans or the Persian Gulf. "He was above and beyond us. But McArthur was his first lieutenant, and it was he that we knew." The old man nodded as I entered the room, and he pushed his spectacles far up on his bald forehead.

"Challenger!" I cried. "Professor Challenger, the famous sociologist! Wasn't he the man who broke the skull of Huxford, of the Telegraph?" The news editor smiled grimly. "Do you mind? Didn't you say it was adventures you were after? 'Tis all in the way of business, Sir," I answered.

"Exactly. I don't suppose he can always be so violent as that. I'm thinking that Huxford got him at the wrong moment; maybe, or in the wrong fashion. You may have better luck or more success in handling him. There's something in your line there, I am sure, and the Gazette should write you."

"I have a few notes for your guidance, Mr. Malone. I've had my eye on the Professor for some little time." He took a paper from a drawer. "Here is a summary of the record. I give it you before."

"Challenger, George Edward. Born: Larva, N. H., 1843. Educ.: Lafayette Academy; Edinburgh University, British Museum Assistant, 1882. Assistant Keeper of Comparative Anthropology Department, 1893. Editorial and voluminous correspondence since year. Winner of Craighton Medal for Zoological Research; Foreign Member of—well, quite a lot of things, about two inches of small text—Sociological Institute, American Academy of Sciences, La Plata, etc. Ex-President Palaeontological Society, Section II, British Association, 1914. Honorary Secretary of the Zoological Congress of Vienna, 1904. Recreations: Walking, Alpine Climbing. Address: 22, Park Road, Kensington, W., London."

"There, take it with you. I've nothing more for you tonight."

"One moment, Sir," I said, as I realized that it was a pink bird, and I had a red face, which was controlling itself. "I am not very clear yet, why? I am to interview this gentleman. What has he done?"

"The face flashed back again. "Went to South America on a solitary expedition two years ago."

"You seem very anxious to lose your life." "Well, Sir, anything that had adventure and danger in it. I read the result, and, of course, in any case it would suit me. The more difficult it was, the better it would suit me."

"To justify my life, Sir." "Dear me, Mr. Malone, this is very-very stated. I'm afraid the day for this sort of the 'racer' plan. The expense of the newspaper-mission business hardly justifies the result, and, of course, in any case it would only be an expedient man with a name that would command public confidence who would get such an order. The big blank spaces in the map are held for establishing relations for romance anywhere. Well, a bit, though," he added, with a sudden smile upon his face. "Taking of the blank spaces of the map gives me an idea. What about appointing a fraud—a modern-day Robinson Crusoe—and making him a decision? You could show him up as the last that he'll! En, Ma! I would like to see. How does it appeal to you?"

"Anything—anywhere—I care nothing." "Mr. Malone was obliged to thought for some minutes. "I wonder whether you could get on friendly terms, in any way, with terms with the fellow," he said at last. "You seem to have a sort of sympathy with the fellow, with people—sympathy, I suppose, or animal magnetism, or youthful vitality, or something. I am convinced of it myself." "So why, very good, Sir." "So why, should you not try your luck with Professor Challenger, of Emmer Park?" I date say I looked a little startled.

Steps in Discoveries

One year after Michael Faraday had discovered benzene came the discovery of aniline, which is today made in enormous quantities from benzene; in 1835 a German chemist named Runge discovered that aniline treated with chlorine of blue produced a beautiful blue color, but it was not until 1856 that an English chemist, Sir William Henry Perkin, discovered aniline purple and so founded the immense color industry of today.
