Crippled Launch Drifts for Twelve Days and Three Men Are Chased by Sharks Who Steal Their Fish and Bait; Finally Rescued and Brought to Port.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., March 10.—Thrilling details of the 12 day drift in the Atlantic in a boat told in an impromptu lecture by three Miami, Fla., men brought to Fort Arthur today by Captain Nathan, skipper of the Texas company Light-house cutter Fish Hawk.

The three men were picked up ninety miles off Charleston Light after they had drifted 200 miles and were rescued with a disabled engine. They were carried to Norfolk, Va., by the tanker which then proceeded to Port Arthur, its home port.

The trio rescued were Thomas Swetten, C. B. Danforth and Frank Russell.

Swetten, of sharks followed their launch as it drifted. Fourteen ships passed without noticing them.

TELEPHONE GIRL NOW WELL

Suffered Two Years, Relieved By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marshalltown, Iowa.—"At the time I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a telephone operator with Mrs. W. A. DeWitt. I was suffering for two years with bearing-down pains and cramps in my legs and feet. I could not walk. At times I could not do any kind of work because of my trouble. My husband was taking me to the doctor and the doctor told me to change of life and she thought it would help me and it did. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I recommended your medicines to my friends and I will always be a believer in your treatment."—Mrs. F. E. Everts, Box 143, Marshalltown, Iowa.

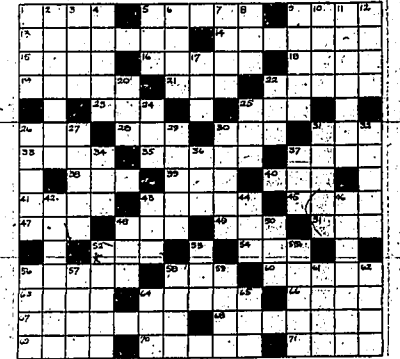

Mrs. Norton's Experience
"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and had such terrible dizzy spells that I could not stand some days. I had no appetite, was restless at night and felt all day. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I am surprised at the results after taking it."—Mrs. CLARENCE S. Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets For Puny Kids

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, underdeveloped children McCoy's God Liver Oil Compound Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put the best, good, healthy flesh on their bones. Doctors know all about them and so does Schramm's of the Co. Majestic Pharmacy, City Pharmacy, and all good pharmacists all over America, for the greatest demand, because they are not large and show results in a few days. They are not expensive either—six tablets—60 cents and children like them like candy. "A very sickly child, age 3, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy." One sickly woman gained nine pounds in 24 days. "Be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets."

BUHL JUROR IS FINED FOR CONVERSING

Five Minutes' Talk Expenses If A DeNeal Fined Saturday by Judge Dietrich for Contempt of Court.

JOISE, March 10.—Five minutes' conversation with Fred P. Taylor and Roy Smith cost H. A. DeNeal of Buhl, member of the federal jury trying Lancy Camp of Decio on charges of sending obscene matter through the mail, just $750. DeNeal, arrested on contempt charges as a result of the conversation, which he admitted, was fined by Judge P. E. Dietrich in United States district court Saturday. Taylor and Smith were witnesses in the trial, which was halted immediately. While admitting the conversation, DeNeal pointed out he had discussed the case. When arraigned Saturday morning, DeNeal pleaded not guilty and was given a trial. Taylor and Smith took the stand against him and told that he had handed them cards asking them to come to his room in the hotel and had talked to them about the Camp case as if they were defense witnesses. After he had intimated to them, they declared that he did not believe a grown man, and a married man at that, could be guilty of the things with which Camp is charged. He asked them "How-long—has—Camp—lived—near—Decio?" they said. Both Taylor and Smith testified DeNeal had told them he was on the jury which had heard the E. C. Warren trial and was responsible for the deagreement of that jury. Warren, a Bury banker, was charged with misapplication of funds, says The Stationer.

DeNeal denied the statements of Taylor and Smith. He told the court he had passed them the cards produced in court, but that his only motive in so doing was to caution them against making noise in their room in the hotel which disturbed him and kept him awake. He said they were inebriated and persisted in creating disturbances in their room after he had knocked on their door and asked them to stop when asked by E. G. Davis, United States attorney. If he had "curbed" them, he answered in the negative and said that he had intended to but because "the boys" were out he had refrained and only warned them.

WILLIE PITOLA BREAKS RECORD IN TWO EVENTS

Lightning Finn Lowers Record for 4,000 Yard Race and Also Two and a Half Mile Race; Paavo Nurmi Gives Exhibition

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 10.—Willie Pitola, who lightning Finn, made ancient history of two world records when he ripped 3 1/2 seconds off the old 4,000 yard mark and 3 1/4 seconds off the 2 1/2 mile event in the Journal races here last night.

Paavo Nurmi, his fellow countryman, was content to dignify eight seconds of touching his own world's record for the mile and three-quarters event.

Nurmi ran the distance in 8:03 1/4. Pitola covered the 4,000 yards in 10:41 1/2 and the 2 1/2 miles in 11:10 1/2.

Two other world records fell for the outsider in the meet. They were: Helen Pilkey, Chicago, broke the world's record for girls' 200 yards in 51 1/2 seconds, and the 60 yard low hurdle in 7 1/2 seconds.

Four Possible Courses Open to Directors of Twin Falls Independent School District; No Steps Will Be Taken Until After Next Meeting

The independent district school board is now confronted with four angles on the Lincoln field situation. It can "sit tight" and "let 'em go," it can adopt the plan urged in a petition of 48 residents and property owners for acceptance of a new site, it can field a nuisance and abolish the field, it can move the athletic park to the south part of the city, purchase the athletic association field, or suggest the City Planning Commission, acquire an extra block and erect a building on it in addition, where it already has a half a block and move the field there.

Two other amendments worthy of mention are still pending, one governing representation in congress and the other with compensation of members. Neither in vital, though one would alter the basis of representation and the other might induce a different type of statesman to seek office.

Asbury does not believe there is any serious possibility of any of these amendments being resurrected and ratified. He points out, however, that trouble-making elements of the county might gain control of enough votes to carry them in and cause contention in the national government. His chief point in citing them is to make clear the correct method of (lawful) ratification of amendments is unbusinesslike and should be altered.

"We should not send down to posterity a compromise mass of amendments floundering in a nebulous haze, which may be resurrected and ratified in the dim and distant future," he ought to have a steady and contemporaneous action with reference to proposed amendments. In a case should be rendered within the life of those interested in changing the fundamental law of the country."

Boxing Commission Has a Match and No Promotion Money

BY HENRY L. FAIRBANKS. NEW YORK, March 10.—Another move in the popular pastime of passing the buck around the world is being made today at the regular meeting of the New York boxing commission.

After passing the buck to Dempsey and having it passed right back, the commission was looking for another "puncher."

Last week the commission reportedly ordered a Dempsey-Wills fight for the world's heavyweight championship. In sending the challenge to Wills and Tom Dillmore, to the champion with orders to take "em to 'em" in 24 hours, the commission let it be known that its wishes were overruled.

Dempsey replied that he had accepted the Wills challenge last year and that if Wills held out, Dempsey also asked the commission to put up the money for the fight and guarantee against interference, and he would fight.

It now has a Dempsey-Wills fight on its hands and doesn't know exactly what should be done with it. It is quite certain that it cannot be pressed up for the world's heavyweight championship. The commission is to retain its prestige.

While the reply of Dempsey will be placed on the table officially, it is possible that it may remain there for a week or more. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, is to be here next week and the commission may decide to give Wills the fight and ask for $100,000 over with him or it may take Dempsey back for his impudence in making the commission to turn into a promotion syndicate.

The commission has no authority to make matches, although it assumes the privilege occasionally and it has no legal right to promote fights. Dempsey knows that, of course, but he made a good political move when he suggested that he action was the commission to make the fight good that was forced upon him several years ago and then abandoned.

SYNOPSIS

Malone, a London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he has decided to marry, appeals to his editor for a dangerous assignment, and is sent to interview the terrible Professor Challenger, a scientist, who has recently returned from an expedition to South America with an amazing story, which no one believes, of the existence on a great plateau, there of many forms of prehistoric life. By way of proof he shows Malone two sketches—one, of the flightless dinosaur animal resembling the stegosauria which he had found among the mountains of the Colorado, and another of a prehistoric plant, Maple White, who had died of starvation; some blurred photographs, and a piece of the wing of a prehistoric insect. He then, directly, which he had shot down, Malone is convinced of Challenger's story, and that he will conduct a scientific lecture by an opponent of the professor, a Mr. Waldron.

At last the lecture came to an end—I am inclined to think that it was a premature one, as the perforation was hurried and disconnected. The thread of the argument had been rudely broken, and the audience was restless and expectant. Waldron got down, and after a chirrup from the chairman, Professor Challenger rose and advanced to the edge of the platform. In the interest of my paper I took down his speech in verbatim.

"Ladies and Gentlemen," he began, amid a sustained interruption from the back of the hall. "Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children—I must apologize, I had inadvertently omitted a certain section of this audience" (turning, during which the professor stood with one hand raised and his right arm pointing emphatically, as if he were bestowing a political blessing upon the crowd), "I have been so anxious to detect to you, but Mr. Waldron, there he beamed and blinked at the lecturer—" "Will excuse me when I say that there are necessarily some who are defiant and misleading, since they have to be graded to the comprehension of the ignorant audience" (frankly cheering). "Popular lecturers are in their nature parasitic on the signature of protest from Mr. Waldron." "They exploit for name or cash the work which has been done by their judgment and their own research. One applicant, a new fact obtained in the laboratory, one brick built into the temple of science, far outweighs any second-hand exposition which passes an idle hour, but can leave no useful mark behind it. I put forward this obvious reflection, not out of any desire to disparage Mr. Waldron in particular, but that you may not lose your sense of proportion and mistake the acolyte for the high priest." (At this point Mr. Waldron whispered to the chairman, who half rose and said something severely to his water-carrier.) "I am not a student of yours" (loud and prolonged cheering). "Let me pass to some subject of wider interest, which is the particular point upon which I, as an original investigator, have challenged our lecturer's accuracy." It is upon the performance of certain types of animal life upon the earth. I do not speak upon this subject as an amateur, though I may speak as a popular lecturer, but I speak as one whose scientific conscience compels him to adhere closely to facts, when I say that Mr. Waldron is very wrong in supposing because he has never himself seen a so-called prehistoric animal, therefore these creatures no longer exist. They are indeed, as he has said, our ancestors, but they are, if I may use the expression, our contemporary ancestors, who can still be found with all their hideous and formidable characteristics if one has but the energy and hardihood to seek these haunts. Creatures which were supposed to be Jurassic, monsters who would hunt down and devour our largest and fiercest mammals, still exist." (Cheers.) "Prove it!" "How do you know?" "Question!" "How do you know?" "I know because I have visited their secret haunts. I know because I have seen none of them in any of the museums, and a notice, 'Inhabited'—'Am I a liar?' (General hearty and noisy approval. "I'll hear someone say that I was

"Am I a liar?"

Grave and reverent sounds seemed to have caught the prevailing spirit as badly as the students, and I saw whitebeards and white heads shaking their fists at the obtuse Professor. The whole great audience assailed and slunged like a boiling pot. The Professor took a step forward and raised both his hands. "There was something so big and shouting and wild in the man that the clatter and shouting died gradually away before his commanding and fierce mien, his masterful eyes. He seemed to have a definite message. They hurried to be seated. "I will not detain you," he said. "It is not worth it. Truth is truth, and the value of a number of foolish young men—and I fear I must add, of their equally foolish seniors—cannot affect the matter. I claim that I have opened a new field of science. You dispute it? (Cheers.) "Then I put you to the test. Will you accompany me and allow the link to our own number to go out as your representatives and test my statement in your name?" Mr. Sumner, the veteran Professor of Comparative Anatomy, rose among the audience, a tall, thin, hither man, with white hair, and an aspect of a theologian. He wished, he said, to ask Professor Challenger whether the results to which he had alluded in his remarks had been obtained during a journey to the Himalayas, and if so, had been made by his two years before Professor Challenger answered that they had.

Mr. Sumner's desire to know how it was that Professor Challenger claimed to have made discoveries in those regions had been overlooked by Wallace, Bates, and other previous explorers of established scientific reputation. Professor Challenger answered that Mr. Sumner appeared to be forgetting the Amazon with the Thames; that it was a somewhat larger river; that Mr. Sumner might be interested to know that with the distance which communicated with it, some fifty thousand miles of country were opened up, and that he was not aware it was not impossible for one person to find what another had missed.

THE RIGHT OF SEARCH IN A NEW PHASE

French statesmen oppose a treaty giving to the United States officials the right to search French ships for liquor in United States ports. Traditional laws of nations which they plead may support their opposition, but consistency and right are with the United States. If American ships were carrying epidemic disease into the French ports, France would have a perfect moral right to stop the practice, and would be bound not only to tolerate her action but to cooperate with her in it. There is reason to fear that French liquors, smuggled into the United States, are contributing to the moral pestilence of the lawless liquor traffic that infests this country at the present time. French people are not dull, and but for the liquor interests that dominate French politics, they never would dream of pleading international law against a friendly agreement permitting our government to safeguard the country against that pestilence.

WHAT PICTURE OF RUSSIA IS THE TRUE ONE?

A reader of the papers who wishes to find out the actual facts about the situation in Russia is soon perplexed by conflicting stories. According to one report the people of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics are ground under the heel of an intolerable despotism, maintained through cruelty and assassination by a ruthless band of outlaws, and are sinking lower and lower in poverty and misery. Another tells a tale of steady economic recovery and of a people generally firmly attached to the soviet regime, and descants with enthusiasm upon the fashionable attire of the radiant beauties of Tiflis. A third conveys the information that the soviet system is on the verge of collapse; a fourth, that sovietism impressively entrenched in Russia, is able to carry on a vigorous and world-wide propaganda and threatens the very existence of the national governments. So, the contradictory stories, whatever value in fact they may possess or lack, transmit their various ecstasies of admiration or alarm, of glory or gloom.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE IN RURAL COMMUNITIES

A recent report to the Bureau of Education from Massachusetts contained the statement that there has been a marked improvement in health work in that State since the recent enactment of a law requiring the employment of school nurses in the smaller (that is, largely rural), townships. A recent investigation made by the State department shows that 99 per cent of the pupils attending the public schools in Massachusetts are receiving the benefit of school nursing service. This figure means that this service is extended as fully to rural as to city schools. Among the various phases of the work promoted by the school nurse are nutrition and dental work, weighing and measuring, and in many towns, serving of milk to elementary pupils during the morning session of school. Eighty townships of less than 5,000 population have been conducting dental clinics for one or more years. In many towns there are traveling clinics operating under the auspices of the farm bureaus; in others, clinics are in cooperation with municipal authorities, nursing associations and branches of the American Red Cross. The school nurse in rural communities has served in many places in the United States as well as in Massachusetts, to enlarge and improve, if not to initiate, a health program among the rural schools.

FOG HORN OF HAIR LONDON—Human hair is used to operate a new electric fog horn. A strand of several hundred hairs is stretched between two supports and on this strand is a link. As the fog gathers and the air gets moist, the hairs stretch and allow the link to drop down on electrical connections, completing a circuit which starts the fog horn.

Business Revival and Confidence

Business conditions, as reported by the Federal Banks, show continued improvement. Individuals have found adjustment to prevailing situations, and the movement is forward. During the months of depression from which the country is emerging, this bank has maintained its position of safety, and approaches the period of renewed activities with confidence.

Conservative methods, caution and prudence have been characteristic of this bank from the days of its organization. The First National Bank was the first bank of the community. Its growth has been in step with that of the tract, and its position has been such that it has been able to assist in the development of our industrial life.

It is a record of constructive, of conservative, business life.

We solicit your business upon our record.
