BUHL, Idaho, March 20.—Coach Barry will leave here on Friday morning with his basketball squad for Pocatello, where the Buhl high school girls will play the Shelley high school basketball team to settle the dispute in the claim on the state championship girls' basketball. Arrangements were completed for this game on Saturday evening. The Shelley girls are the acknowledged champions of the eastern section of the state and the Buhls are trying to get a game with the Buhls for the first time. They have to try to beat the champions to win the title from the Buhl maidens. Buhl has played a total of fifteen games this season, winning 14 of them by large margins, and losing one by a total of 174 points in three games, their opponents. The Shelley girls have a good record this season, having won 14 of their 20 games, and they are out to win from Buhl. A traveling man who came from Shelley to Buhl several days ago said that the whole town would be out to Pocatello to see the game. The Buhl team will not be without a rooting section, as many of the local fans are planning to drive down to Pocatello Saturday to witness the contest. The Buhl-Shelley game is being arranged for under the direction of W. S. Siders, superintendent of the Pocatello schools.

GIBBONS WILL FIGHT TUNNEY EARLY IN JUNE

CHICAGO, March 20.—With prospects of Jack Dempsey defending his heavyweight title this summer getting dimmer and dinner, interest in a fight centered here today on a proposed match between Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champions.

Although he has previously battled as a flyweight, Gibbons will not attempt to make the weight in the fight Tunney. The light-heavyweight title will not be at stake. Gibbons readily is one of the best fighters in the world. He is a heavy-weight champion. He is the only man who has ever won the title. Although Tom Hickland, New York's leading sports writer, is not making in telephone conversation with Jimmy DeForest, match-maker for the fight, he is confident that Gibbons will win the title. Gibbons' manager, Jim Dimpsey, is confident that Gibbons will win the title. Gibbons' manager, Jim Dimpsey, is confident that Gibbons will win the title.

IDAHO WRESTLER GIVEN PLACE ON ALL-COAST TEAM

Ralph Ross of University of Idaho placed on All-Pacific Coast Wrestling Team by Washington Coach.

MOSCOW, Ida., Mar. 20.—Ralph Ross, flashy Idaho wrestler, has been chosen on the All-Pacific Coast Wrestling team by Coach Wheeler of Washington State College. Ross was given the position by virtue of the number of points won during the season and through exhibition of performance. Ross, who tied with Russell, O. A. Co. for points, but the Idaho man's performance was sufficiently superior in wrestling his choice. Although this is Ross' first year as a varsity wrestler, he worked like a veteran. In addition to wrestling in the 135-pound division, Ross served as a referee in the 125-pound division. The team selected by Coach Wheeler follows: 125-pound class—Don Hendrick, W. S. 135-pound class—Ralph Ross, Idaho. 145-pound class—Frank Hyman, Washington. 160-pound class—Frank Bryan, Oregon. Probably the outstanding man of this team is Fred Griffin, of the 145-pound class. He is the only man who has won the 1922 and fastest men in collegiate wrestling. Probably all of the men named by the Pacific Northwest Amateur tournament, which will be held later in the month, will be on the team. The final standing of the Pacific Coast conference, northern division, follows: Team Won Lost Pct. O. A. C. 4 0 1.000 W. S. 1 1 .500 Washington 1 2 .333 Idaho 1 3 .250 Oregon 1 3 .250 Four Vandewer awards letters were given to Don Hendrick, 125-pound class; Ralph Ross, 135-pound class; Lawrence Stebbins, 145-pound class; and Don Wootley, 160-pound class. All of these men will be in school next spring and probably will turn out for wrestling.

Moving Mountain Ruins Colorado Road at Meeker

MEEKER, Colo., Mar. 25.—Moving mountains, a 2,000 foot peak, has been forced with water and in two days has traveled 100 yards. The shifting of the mountain has completely obliterated portions of the main highway into Meeker and other places has caused hummocks, from three to five feet high, to swell up in the middle of the road. The action of the slopes of the peak resemble the waves of the sea. Geologists account for the phenomenon by the fact that the mountain rests on a clay strata which has become softened by spring rains. Meeker is partly isolated as a result of the slide of the 2,000-foot peak. Vehicle traffic by the "moving mountain" road is impossible.

MEEKER, Colo., March 25.—A new highway into Meeker was planned today to take the slope of the one obliterated by Meeker's "moving mountain." The new road will be built a considerable distance from the freakish mountain which has done a 100 yard dash in two days' time, raising 20 foot hummocks in places on the old road bed and submerging it in a deluge of dirt and stone in others. County authorities planned to rush construction of the road, but Meeker has been cut off from the world to the west by the pranks of the mountain. Geologists examining the phenomenon report that the movement of the mountain is visible at times and resembles a gentle ocean swell. They account for the movement by the fact that the clay base of the mountain has become thoroughly saturated by the spring rains and allowed the 2,000 foot peak to "settle."

PROTECTION OF FORESTS URGED

BOISE, Idaho, March 20.—The forests of Idaho must be protected, not only for the comfort and prosperity of the present generations, but to provide for the continued welfare and happiness of those who follow after. Forests provide not only fuel and shelter, but recreation and the very necessary conservation of our water resources, thus preventing periods of great floods and times of great droughts. Reclamation, preservation and control are empty formalities without vegetation in concrete made in the hills. Idaho has a new forestry law which sets forth a policy of forest conservation and the basis of a reforestation program. It is highly desirable that the citizens of the state become familiar with its provisions so that they may more fully cooperate with those charged with its enforcement. Most of the forest fires are caused by carelessness and thoughtless contributing factors to the devastating ravages on our wealth and beauty and the healthful forests should be entirely eliminated. President Hoover has seen fit to issue a proclamation asking the people of the nation to unite for one week in endeavoring to protect our natural resources. I feel that the same work may well be observed by the citizens of Idaho. Now, therefore, I, C. C. Moore, Governor of the State of Idaho, do hereby designate the week of April 27 to May 3, 1923, as Forest Protection Week and urge citizens, teachers, club organizations and the press to unite in thought and action toward the preservation of the forests of the State.

and toward the elimination of that carelessness which has caused such losses in the past. It appears that this period would also be a fitting time to observe Arbor Day and I wish to encourage the planting of trees, shrubbery and flowers during this week wherever practicable and programs in the schools under the direction of the county superintendent of each county of the state. In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Idaho, at Boise, the capital of Idaho, this nineteenth day of March, A. D. 1923. (Signed) C. C. MOORE, Governor of Idaho.

RUPERT'S VICTORY.

It is not always that the biggest states, cities and towns are the most successful. This is particularly true in athletics.

The Rupert team won against a field of the best in Idaho and came from behind in the final game with Moscow to nose out the victory.

Rupert is entitled to a great deal of credit for the victory, and the citizens of that enterprising city have a right to be proud of the young men who so ably represented them on the athletic field of honor.

PROPAGANDING THE PRESS

Even trials in our courts cannot take place now without the press being propagandized. Influence is used to get before the public a favorable impression for the defendant.

Under a Cheyenne date line the propaganda says: "With the evidence of the government completed in the trial here to break the Sinclair lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, it is the consensus of opinion of lawyers and laymen who have followed the hearing in the United States district court that the government has made out an extremely weak case."

"Uncolored by the hysteria of rumors and suspicions incident to the investigation of the Teapot Dome affair before the senatorial committee last year, the issue has simmered down to the question whether President Harding had the right under a law admittedly ambiguous to transfer the leasing of the Teapot Dome field from the navy department to the department of the interior."

strued by his legal advisers, his executive order unquestionably warranted Secretary of the Interior, A. B. Fall in leasing the oil field to Sinclair. The court evidence proved conclusively that Fall did not make the lease secretly but after thrashing out the contract with Secretary of the Navy Denby and officials and lawyers of both navy and interior departments.

SIXTY-THREE PER CENT OF CHILDREN HAVE NORMAL VISION

Fully 37 per cent of approximately 12,000 school children undergoing vision tests conducted by the United States Public Health Service were found to have defective eyes with less than standard vision, according to a statement by the Eye Sight Conservation Council of America.

One tenth of the children examined under the direction of Dr. Talfiaterro Clark, in charge of Field Investigation in Child Hygiene, had one-half standard vision or less in one or both eyes.

The tests, part of a general physical examination made by officers of the Public Health Service, according to a report of the Service, compiled by Selwyn D. Collins, associate statistician, embraced 9,245 native white children from six to sixteen years of age in four eastern states; Spartanburg, South Carolina, and nearby villages, Frederick county, Maryland; New Castle county, Delaware, and Nassau county, New York.

The results of the visual acuity tests, made with standard test type include, it is stated, only the manifest defects. These simple tests showed that 63 per cent of the children were normal in both eyes; 27 per cent moderately defective, and ten per cent had only five-tenths standard vision or less in one or both eyes.

"When separated according to age," says the statement of the Eye Sight Conservation Council, interpreting the conditions revealed by the Public Health Service, it was found that the number of children with marked defects of vision at sixteen years of age was an increase of over twenty times the number at six years of age with marked defects.

"It was shown that generally vision was approximately the same in both eyes but in many cases good vision in one eye was found combined with very poor vision in the other."

"The council, which is directing nationwide effort for better vision in education and industry, calls the report prepared by Mr. Collins, 'striking evidence of the limited extent to which eyesight of school children is being given attention,' adding:

"There is such a large proportion of school children with defective vision that every possible effort should be made to discover those who are needlessly handicapped and to bring the matter so forcibly to the attention of parents that all those in need of correction will be fitted with proper glasses."

The report emphasizes that as most striking that but a small proportion of children with very poor vision were wearing glasses to improve their sight.

A larger proportion of girls were wearing glasses than boys. Only twenty-two per cent of the children with such poor vision as three-tenths or less in both eyes were wearing glasses and only ten per cent of those with three-tenths vision or less in one eye and good vision in the other had glasses to aid the vision of the poor eye.

"Such conditions are deplorable," comments the council. "How can children handicapped with poor vision be expected to keep up with their classes and gain the education which rightfully belongs to them?"

The Council advocates regular or periodic examinations of the eyes of all school children at least once each year. "Children," it was asserted, "should be taught how to care for their eyes and all conditions conducive to eyesight should be corrected."

"Attention should be given to the natural and artificial lighting of classrooms. Shades should be provided at all windows to control the light. Desk tops should be dulled to eliminate glare; blackboards should be placed where they will receive good light; the type of book should be clear and large in order to avoid eyestrain."

CHAPTER IX—Continued. After breakfast we unpacked the bundle in which our leader had brought his climbing accessories.

It was not in reality a very stiff task, though, for we were accustomed to such work in the field. The first half was perfectly easy, but from there upward it became continually steeper.

The first impression which I received when I had recovered my breath was of the extraordinary view over the country which we had traversed.

"My dear chap," said he, "I really cannot allow it." The head went back and the beard forward.

"For all I know there may be a tribe of cannibals waiting for lunch on the other side of the bridge."

"This is indeed curious," said the silent voice of Professor Sumner.

I turned, and found that he was examining with great interest the tree to which I clung.

"Not only a fellow-countryman," said the Chief Engineer.

"These are some of the more important things that can be done to conserve the eyes of our future citizens."

Elm Trees Must Be Treated Says Tree Inspector

That elm trees as well as fruit trees must be sprayed in the fall of Edwin V. Gibson, horticultural inspector, who in his latest report urged early spraying of fruit trees. In his letter today he says:

Properly cared for fruit trees or elm trees should be making plans to have them properly sprayed before the season is too advanced. In this State laws and city ordinances require that trees showing in fruitation must be sprayed and the fact that any such showed scale the year before is pretty good evidence that they should be tended to this year.

The writer has examined numerous elm trees in this city as well as in Twin Falls and has found some scale infestation. In practically all of them although it is not so abundant that spraying is proving effective.

In order to maintain the vigor and health of our trees as well as the beauty, we must see to it that "no quarter" is given these pests, which if unchecked, will bring about the death of them. The city of Twin Falls has made arrangements to handle some spraying, charging the cost of same to property owners and the fact that we are not able to make other arrangements should set in touch with Council member All under whose jurisdiction these matters fall.

A 3 1/2 to 4 per cent toll content spray should be used and every twig and branch thoroughly covered.

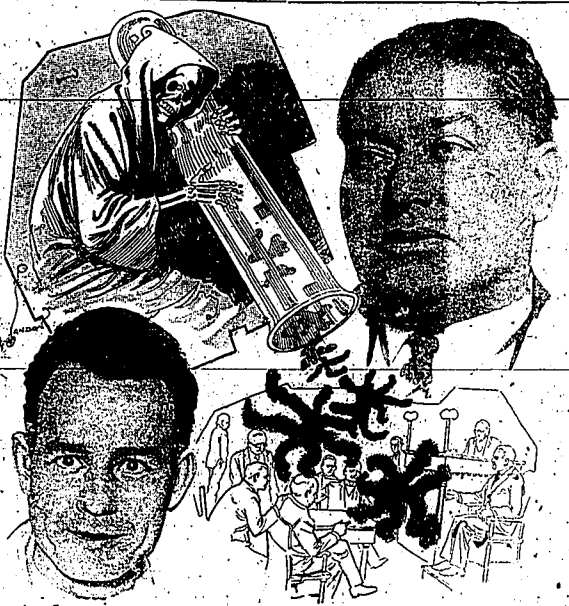

"As Poor as Job's Turkey," a simile often used to indicate extreme poverty, has reference to the deplorable state to which Job's property had been delivered by God into the hands of Satan. "Job's turkey," according to the popular notion, had one leg cut off in its fall, and was obliged to jump against the fence to gobble. The originator of the saying apparently is not realized, for Job never was obliged to jump to possess a turkey, since that bird is a native of America.

Thomas Chandler Hathburn of Snowflake, who uses the word "gobble" in "Sam Slick," and wrote about the doings of "Samuel Slick of Bluffville," refers to "Job's turkey" in some of his writings.

Intrigue of Germ Poison Cases Recalled in McClintock Probe

CHICAGO, Ill., March 25—Germ poison, terrible, subtle, cowardly weapon of murder. Yet germ murders are rare. Three proven cases are on record. These will be closely investigated by state and defense attorneys in the death of William McClintock, "millionaire orphan," for whose death William Shepherd and Dr. C. C. Falk have been indicted.

Of all possible methods of malicious homicide, the administration of disease germs is most apt to excite the imagination. Almost no other attack is the unwary victim as defenseless. Some of the most intricate and dramatic trials in history have occurred in connection with poison cases. One such, still long that a decade ago, is recalled.

Dr. Arthur Warren Waitz was a young and promising dentist of New York City. He lived with his young wife in an upper residential neighborhood. He was socially acceptable and had won some distinction as a tennis player.

Friends believed in innocence. "When he was accused of having murdered his wife's father and mother by administering to them doses of poison and disease germs his numerous acquaintances were incredulous and angry."

But he was arrested and in court under oath he unfolded an amazing story of hatred, poison and intrigue. "The police would have done to invent the victim's name, but they would force his acceptance and application, and using an assumed name for a beneficiary."

Then, taking advantage of a meal in common, he dosed his victims with one of his strange alkaloid drugs or infected them with the germs of disease—typhoid or pneumonia. As soon as the victim died he would collect the insurance.

A recent germ poisoning attempt, which did not end fatally for the victim, was the effort of Clarence O. H. ... Mrs. Darling, a witness against her husband, told of quarrels over her husband's devotion to another woman. On Darling's plea for forgiveness he became reconciled.

Returning from a trip to Europe, Mrs. Darling became ill. Investigation led to the arrest of her husband and he confessed that he had given his wife arsenic and diphtheria and pneumonia germs. He was confined to a sanitarium.

Kansas City police in 1909 accused a man of attempting to kill a relative by use of typhoid germs but the man was never convicted.

NOTICE TO CONSTITUTIONS Hild will be received by the Twin Falls Highway District until 2:30 P. M. on April 1, 1925, for cashing loans on the Jarboe road at Cedar Creek Hill.

THE PICTURE IS NOW PLAYING AT ORPHEUM Government Opera Co.'s Military Academy for Filming of U.S. Navy Officers, "Classmates."

One copy of the photograph, Classmates, the picture produced by the Orpheum production, is to go into the official archives of the United States Military Academy. "Classmates" is an authentic record of the West Point of today since it was made under the direct supervision of the military officials.

Aside from Barthelme and the principal players, all the roles of "Classmates" are played by cadets and officers of the Academy, seven Major Henry H. Lewis, adjutant of the Academy, appearing in a part. Major Lewis also supervised every detail of the production.

"The cadets make remarkable actors," says John Barthelme, who directed Barthelme. "They made their part alert, resourceful and they held 'classmates' in the words. They were enthusiastic over 'Classmates' because it gives all Americans a glimpse of what life is at the Academy. Their enthusiasm—and the splendid spirit of the Academy—shines out in the screen production."

Ball Lighting. Ball lighting is an example of what was seen in northwest Louisiana a recent thunderstorm, occasionally seen during thunderstorms, most notably at sea. It always appears after an exceptionally vivid lightning flash, and is believed to be composed of oxygen and ozone thrown off in a positive, highly charged, cloud. It has the appearance of a luminous sphere falling very slowly, or when more the ground, impinging horizontally, but though repelling the earth, and finally disappearing as the result of an explosion of considerable violence.

Over development of the reserves by construction of too many roads and trails is to be especially guarded against. The interior department is working to obtain complete jurisdiction over the national parks. This already has been obtained in California, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and New Mexico, and Colorado, is to be sought. There are still many private holdings in the national parks, although many citizens have donated their lands to the government. Congressional appropriations to buy some of these which cannot be otherwise obtained, especially when important national monuments will be sought. It is possible to enable the public to get to the parks and monuments will be encouraged. Automobiles operated for pleasure and transportation companies operating under government franchise, are permitted in the national parks. Outdoor sports which are maintained include horseback riding, walking, moose, swimming, boating, and fishing, will be encouraged. Winter sports are being developed as much as possible, and promise to become more popular. Educational use of the parks will be encouraged.

THROUGH THIRTY-FOUR CENTURIES WITH TIRES Snakes First, Maybe, Then Leather, Iron, Now The Cord and Balloon

This chart shows one of the earliest successful attempts to cushion wheels. It was found in the tomb of Yvan and Tuen, parents of the wife of Amenhotep III, king of Egypt, 3400 years ago. The earliest of the modern tires was the "Phosphor" tire, which was made of a mixture of sulfur and rubber, and was used in the early part of the 19th century.

A STORY has been handed down through the ages about one of our ancestors of Stone Age who built up a large trade by winding serpents around solid wheels. The serpent is said to have looked more or less like our balloon equipped tires of today. The serpent is there as no witness living today, the story will have to be accepted or left as a fable. However, in 1849 a Scotchman, named Thompson, patented his "Vegetable India" tire. It was a contrivance—a leather cover laced on the wooden rim of the wheel. The tire proved to be impractical and was soon abandoned. Thompson had foreseen, though, for his patent had included a rubber inner tube on the same principle as those used today in the best pneumatic tires.

In 1871 Thompson built several road-strengtheners of the iron tire type and equipped them with solid rubber tires five inches thick and ten inches wide. These were the pioneer heavy truck tires. The two-wheeled "Iron-Shaker" was introduced in Paris in 1865 or 1868. This tire was originally equipped with flat bar tires, which were later replaced by rubber-lined tires. The first practical pneumatic tire was invented in 1845 by James Boyd, a Scotchman. It was made of a mixture of sulfur and rubber, and was used in the early part of the 19th century.

University and high school classes in science will find special facilities for various studies. Museums containing specimens of wild flowers, shrubs, and trees, mounted in oil, will be available to each park. It will be furnished as soon as funds can be procured.

Low-priced camps under government franchise are maintained, in addition to contrivances, and for camping grounds on each reservation. All the franchises yield revenues to the government, which are deposited to the credit of the interior department with the treasury. The scientific experts of the other departments of the government are called upon to aid in administration of the parks. The public health service, the biological service, the department of entomology, and the department of fisheries, all are represented in the parks.
