WHEELER IS INDICTED FOR SECOND TIME

Montana Senator Is Charged With Conspiracy To Defraud The Government In Connection With Oil Deals; Spitework Is Rejoined.

WASHINGTON. March 27.—A true bill indicting Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana, democrat, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with oil tank oil deals was returned today by the District of Columbia grand jury.

Edwin Booth and Gordon Campbell, both of Washington, were on the wheeler's side on the same charge.

"This is the second indictment" of Wheeler in connection with his alleged efforts to influence the interior department for Campbell, his chief, "for whom it was charged he was working his influence."

The indictment, which was returned last fall in Great Falls, Mont., shortly after Wheeler had become a candidate for vice-president on the independent ticket, was rejected by the grand jury first; indictment has never been brought to trial.

U. S. Attorney General Stueart issued a statement yesterday before the local grand jury, claiming he had new evidence in the case.

The indictment requires a letter addressed to Campbell, dated March 8, which Campbell was asked for a copy of and which presented "proof" of the written "mug" allegedly discussed with officials of interior department.

The grand jury has been in session since early in February. Ex-Attorney General Stone having announced in his statement that he had no new evidence to lay before it in Wheeler's case. "The nature of the new evidence was not made public until the indictment was handed down," he said.

Wheeler's indictment in Montana was investigated and his alleged illegal activities referred to the Senate investigation committee, headed by Senator Smith.

The inquiry resulted in a report recommending that Wheeler be indicted for obstructing justice and the report was approved by a vote of the senate.

The Montana indictment was returned to the grand jury in the name of Justice of the Peace, who conducted the investigation into the department of justice conducted by Wheeler and drew him at that time charges of a frame-up.

Lillian Gish Will Take Witness Stand

NEW YORK. March 27.—Lillian Gish, the motion picture actress, will appear in the role of a witness in court today. She will be called to the stand to testify to her ability—the central point in the suit brought against her by Charles H. Dull, former president of the Impression Pictures, who seeks to make her act for that company alone.

Dull, by summoning Lillian to the stand, expects to show she is not as dumb as her counsel seeks to prove.

NEW YORK. March 27.—Court fans who expected to see Lillian Gish on the witness stand today were disappointed.

Attorneys in the suit of Charles H. Dull, president of the Impression Pictures, against Lillian Gish, declared not to call her to testify today and perhaps not at all.

The main session of the trial was consumed entirely by testimony of B. E. Smith, once Lillian's attorney.

He told how the contract was first written so Lillian would receive 15 percent of the gross receipts of "The White Sister." When the suit was filed, it had been learned and how the contract was later changed to make the figure 20 percent before the world participated. It was also shown that the clause was made fraudulently.

Lillian took more interest in the proceedings than any other person, according to attorneys, making numerous notes to herself.

EXERCISE DOGS.

London.—Many children in London are spending money by taking the pet dogs of rich people out for walks.

ARMY AIRMEN ARE REPORTED LOST

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R. March 27.—Lieutenant G. P. Rogers and his three assistants attempting to fly here from Langley Field, Va., were forced to land in the Soviet Union, according to word received at Moscow's international airport today.

Lieutenant G. P. Rogers and three assistants from the army air service in a glider, Martin "bomber" plane, were reported missing when they started on their flight of 3,000 miles, turned to safety after running into a snow storm over the Pacific today.

Income Taxes Will Not Be Published

WASHINGTON. March 27.—The treasury department decided to postpone all income tax returns collected, not to make public the new income tax payments until Internal Revenue Commissioner Earl Hamner, who is responsible for the collection of taxes, has given an official order for publication.

The daily publication of figures, expected within a few days, for at least two months, or officials said.

JAZZ GIRL FAINTS SEVENTH-TIME TODAY

Newspaperman Upon Court Is Made Sure Dorothy Ellington, Who Is On Trial For Maternal Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO. March 27.—She and defense dislocated today in an effort to end the court torture of Dorothy Ellington, juvenile matricide, who is on trial for the murder of her son.

Newspapermen, after Dorothy had heard the seventh time since the hearing opened against her defense official from Weir's office started shouting, "Get her out of here!"

Mrs. McClintock died soon after she was found guilty of killing her son, being a widow, she left her six-year-old son in the custody of the Shephards.

Shephard, who is Mrs. McClintock's stepson since their school days, was deeply attached to the young "millionaire orphan," however, and, according to Judge Olson's opinion, probably resented his interest in the girl.

During the coroner's inquest into Billy's death, which was indefinitely postponed, Shephard was advised by the grand jury—Judge Olson directly accused Shephard of murdering Mrs. McClintock, Dr. Olson and Billy in order to make the girl available to him to get the vast McClintock estate.

It is Judge Olson's belief that Shephard poisoned Mrs. McClintock and Olson's opinion is that Shephard killed his stepson.

Shephard, however, said he had acquired shortly before the alleged murder of Billy, in view of this, Olson's second conclusion that Shephard may have administered poison, whereas Billy's body—which Shephard did not show any signs of poison.

Shephard, however, said, however, that there is only one chance in ten that Shephard would allow himself to be condemned for the death of his stepson.

UTAH CONVICTS FIGHT A DUEL

Newman Erb's Wife Turns Up After Rail Road King's Death

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 27.—A fight to the death fought by two prisoners in the Utah state prison this morning, killed Robert Flores, convict serving for homicide, and was followed by the heart by J. A. Sanchez, also convicted of burglary. Sanchez was shot in the head by Flores, armed with a razor blade. Wounded Sanchez so badly he is confined to the prison hospital.

Robert's first wife died in 1904 and his two daughters did not know of his second marriage until his death.

Mr. Erb, who was married to Mrs. Erb, died in 1904 and his wife died since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Erb occupied adjoining apartments in New York city.

FIGHTING FLOWERS.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When a rose and a piece of magnolia are placed in water, the petals will drop off in half an hour, start a perfume "gas attack" on each other. Each loses its scent, but when separated again, the scent is revived.

DOUBLE CHANCE WINS

LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND. March 27.—Double Chance, owned by O. Goodl, won the grand steeplechase at Liverpool, and the 100th race of 31 horses.

Insect Allies Must Fight Food Battle

Without Their Aid Man Must Lose the Struggle for Existence; Import Natural Enemies of Pests

WASHINGTON, D. C. March 27.—In the war against insects the U. S. Department of agriculture is man's best friend, with scientists and field marines and entomologists as general officers, and the war is waged with every scientific method of fighting insects that can be devised.

The insect war is joined with every variety of poison, starved, winter quarters destroyed, surrounded and cut off from his natural enemies, and the result is that man destroys with all his intelligence and machinery.

Handling Parasites.

In this war the science of the department's work, it has selected the most effective methods of warfare for parasites and insects which may be brought to the aid of man in his struggle against insects.

Thus far, the department has discovered "possibly" in the fields of insect warfare in America, insects transported to America from other countries in hopes that they will develop into killers of other insects.

The original introduction of pests like the boll weevil or the Japanese beetle, was through the importation of foreign insects.

But in the long run man's chances successfully combat his unbelievably destructive enemies, because these insects were not introduced with them to keep them down.

The department reported yesterday that the "boll weevil" has infested cotton fields with poison but boll weevils

SHEPHERD IS CHARGED WITH TWO MURDERS

Body of Dr. Olson Has Been Exhumed and That of Emma McClintock Will Be Exhumed and Examined; Shepherd May Be Charged With Poisoning Both.

CHICAGO, March 27.—The body of Dr. Oscar Olson was exhumed today to determine whether death was caused by poison. Chemists from the office of the attorney general were breaking the dry soil to see if they could find any traces of prohibition.

At the same time other officials from Weir's office started examining the body in the coroner's office.

Haynes said federal dry authorities in Chicago and in Madison would immediately inquire into the accident.

The examinations were ordered for the purpose of securing further evidence in the case.

SENATORS WHO SHIPPERS OF DEFY DRY LAW COAST OPPOSE INVESTIGATED

Two Wisconsin State Senators Will Be Called to Task by Federal Prohibition Officers for Boasting of Breaking the Volstead Law; Are Hard Cases.

WASHINGTON. March 27.—Federal prohibition authorities will investigate the two Wisconsin senators who were breaking the dry law, when they came to Washington to inspect the coast opposite.

Coast interests are opposing Boston proposal because railroad would haul wool for water rate and this would be less than coast buyers.

PORTLAND, Ore., March 27.—Hearing of the two senators who were breaking the dry law, when they came to Washington to inspect the coast opposite.

Pacific coast business interests, railroads and some wool growers are supporting the Boston proposal.

Haynes said federal dry authorities in Chicago and in Madison would immediately inquire into the accident.

The issues involved in this case relate to all dry goods traffic, although the traffic might be limited to the Pacific northwest.

The senators are Bernard Gravelle, Illinois, and George W. Noyes, Antioch, Calif.

They announced during committee hearing on proposed legislation to congress, asking legislation to be passed to prohibit all business with the result that Pacific coast commerce in general would suffer.

Interest are opposing the Boston proposal, because railroads under the joint rate would haul wool for water shipments at a much lower rate than could be obtained by Pacific coast buyers.

Human Cancer Still Baffles U. S. Science Says City Expert

NEW YORK. March 27.—Cause of human cancer still baffles science, according to Dr. Michael Levine, "photographer" in charge of cancer research in the Montefiore hospital.

Henry A. Dykeman, chief of the federal enforcement division of Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan, said:

"The results are inconclusive, but the manner in which the prohibition law was being enforced is definitely responsible."

Dr. Dykeman said when he resigned he was "disillusioned" with the manner in which the prohibition law was being enforced.

DALTON, Wis., March 27.—Senator Gale Gentileman, Milwaukee, left the Wisconsin senatorial chamber in the middle of an address today, to confer with his wife in Milwaukee, and warned her not to let federal authorities seize 15 gallons of fruit juice who were in the cellar.

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., March 27.—One man was killed and thousands of dollars damage done when an electrical storm struck the cyclone devastated region here.

The man, killed, a negro, was struck by lightning while in bed in one of the refugee tents set up after the death-dealing cyclone last week.

The storm, which started about 10 o'clock last night, was directed largely toward making comparisons between cancer of animals and plants, and is still in progress at the New York botanical garden.

Dr. Levine said, "We're ready for them." He will have a family of his own analyzed today, when he will turn it over to "Federal Watcher" for evidence or samples asked for.

He is now engaged in a study of plant tumors, known as "crown gall," "woolly blight," "tumors" and "cancerous" growths in man and animal cancer.

He has been granted a grant to continue his research in the field of cancer.

Judge Ogle, Wm. Cope, Buhl, from that of Charles King, New Sterling Federal Sentence State Opposes and Court Double Right to Trial—Mr. W. H. Nearing.

Question regarding whether John Mason, a west end citizen, should be given a new trial was decided today in the court of Justice Arthur W. ## CONSUMPTION GOVERNED BY QUALITY

When people hear of campaigns for the promotion of greater milk consumption the first question that should arise is, "What is the quality of the milk supply?" writes William Peterson, director of the Utah Agricultural college experiment station. Director Peterson recently analyzed a compilation of figures pertaining to milk consumption per capita in some of the principal cities of the country. With this compilation was a set of milk scorings for the same cities, showing the quality of the milk.

And this is what interested him most, he says:

"Every city that showed a high consumption of milk per capita on the first tabulation showed on the other tabulation a milk supply of more than ordinary quality. When milk consumption was low per capita, and there had been a score made for the milk supply of that town or city, a milk supply of very ordinary or less than ordinary quality was being furnished."

This invariably leads to the question: "If we improve the quality of our milk-supply, will not the increased consumption follow?" Such an increase would be permanent, for the volume of consumption of milk, as well as other dairy products, is governed by quality.—Tribune.

JARDINE OFFERS EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

Secretary Jardine believes the farm industry wants only one thing, an equal opportunity with other industries. That is all fair-minded agricultural leaders could want.

The secretary says that three steps must be taken before that equal opportunity is an accomplished fact. There must be—

1. Less monkeying with the business of the farmers by government;
2. Availability of reasonable credit on sound security;
3. Development of machinery for marketing farm products.

We can imagine some farmers saying to this: "Fine. Give us those three things and we will be happy." But that is where the farmers make their mistake. They look for somebody else to give. Secretary Jardine obviously intends them to help themselves. He wants, as secretary of agriculture, to help them help themselves.

Certainly he cannot be proposing that government attempt to provide the suggested credits and the marketing machinery, for that would be more legislative monkeying with the farm business. He must propose, then, that the farmers strengthen their own securities so that lending money to them will be attractive to bankers and existing loan agencies. This may have to be done by forming borrowing associations and pooling stock, grain, lands, machinery or prospects for borrowing purposes.

The marketing-machinery, too, must be farm-made, not law made. It must be provided by co-operative organizations, farm bureaus and farmer-owned middleman corporations.

The "equal chance" will come to the farmer when his business appeals with as much attractiveness as the business of other industries to the banker on the one hand and the consumer on the other, says the Statesman. Make the one sure his money will be repaid, make the other sure of sustained and high grade distributing service, and the battle is won. Government does not need to muddy the waters.

McCLINTOCK POISON CASE.

States attorneys in Chicago have wrung from C. C. Fajman, former delivery wagon driver, more recently head of a school of bacteriology, that for a promise of $100,000 from the estate of William Nelson McClintock he provided typhoid fever germs and schooled William D. Shepherd, McClintock's foster father and chief heir to his estate valued at $1,000,000, in the administering of them to McClintock, resulting in the latter's death. Thus another Chicago horror has been brought to light in that city where crime finds fertile ground in the very best of society.

For months there have been mysterious rumors and reports hinting at foul play in the death of young McClintock who was known as the "millionaire orphan." Municipal Chief Justice Harry Olson of Chicago is responsible for the investigation getting under way resulting in the confession of Fajman. His brother, Dr. Oscar Olson, died suddenly after partaking of fruit that Shepherd had given him. Detectives and other instruments of law were placed on the case. Their dragnet brought in Fajman, who, after many hours of cross examination by the authorities, finally broke down and made the horrible confession that typhoid fever germs had been given McClintock that his estate might be seized upon his death. Shepherd denies the charges placed against him by Fajman and has stubbornly refused to be interviewed, says an exchange.

If it proves to be true that Fajman told the truth and that he entered into a conspiracy with Shepherd to kill young McClintock, irrespective that he was offered immunity in the form of a lighter sentence, it is to be hoped there will be no one who will seek to soften the punishment for the guilty party. Crime of this character is becoming so frequent that the people are demanding that justice move swiftly and that the punishment be certain, definite and speedy. A man, or a woman, who would give another typhoid germs is guilty of the most atrocious form of murder and should receive no sympathy nor be given consideration. The sooner friends of this kind can be exterminated the better off society will be.

Summerfield was the second. His why energy is wonderful; in so frail a frame. He insisted upon having two rifles slung about his back so that both Professors were armed when he made his trap. And when he had made his trap, and I came next, and tried hard to not look down into the horrible gulf over which I was passing. Summerfield held out the butt-end of his rifle, and an instant later was able to grasp his hand. As to Lord John, he walked across—actually walked without support! His teeth never served iron.

And we were soon in the valley of the dragonland, the last world, of Maple White. To all of us it seemed the moment of our supreme triumph. Who could have guessed that it was the prelude to our final disaster? Let me say in a few words here, the crushing blow fell upon us.

We had turned away from the edge, and had penetrated about half a mile into the dragon-brain, when there came a frightful rending crash from behind us. With one impulse, we rushed back the way we had come. The bridge was gone.

Far down at the base of the cliff, as I looked over, a tangled mass of branches and splintered trunk, it was our beach!

There came a frightful rending tree. Had the edge of the plateau crumbled and let it through? For a moment this explanation was in all our minds. The next from the farther side of the rocky plateau, the way leading to the face of Zambo, the halfbreed, was slowly protruded. Yes, it was Gomes, but no longer the Gomes of the demure smile and the masking eyes, but a savage, with flashing eyes and distorted features, a face convulsed with hatred and with the mad joy of gratified revenge.

"Lord John Horton!" he shouted.

"Well," said our companion, "here I am."

A series of laughter came across the plateau.

"Yes, there you are, you English dog, and there you will remain; I have waited and waited, and now has come my chance. You found the old fort, and I found the other figure of Zambo, our deviated negro. Even as we looked, he sprang upon the back of the fugitive and flung his arms round his neck. The roll of the drum stopped.

Zambo rose, looked at the prostate man, and, then, waving his hand, forced us to us, we came running like lightning in the middle of the great plain.

Our two traitors had been detected, but the misfortune that they had been detected, and the possible means could yet get back to the plausibility. We had been natives of the plateau; now we were natives of the world; now we were natives of the plateau. The two traitors had been detected, and there was the point which led to the canoes.

But the world, as we know, is a gauntlet. No human ingenuity could suggest a means of bridging the chasm which yawned between ourselves and our past lives. One had been born, but had perished before he got to the water. You are trapped, you are trapped, you are trapped, every one of you!"

We could only stand and wait for its amusement. A great broken bough upon the grass showed where he had gained his leverage to the other our bridge. The end had come, but presently it was up again, more frantic than before.

"We nearly killed you with a stone at the cave," he cried, "but this is better. Your bones will whip up there, and none will know where you lie or come to cover them. As you lie dying, think of Lopez, who, after five years, lay in the Putumayo River. I am his brother, and, come what will I will die happy now, for his memory has been avenged." A furious band was at us, and then all was quiet.

Had the halfbreed simply wrought his retribution, and then turned his back, and left us with him? It was that foolish, irresistible Latin impulse to be dramatic, which brought his own downfall. Now, the man who, in the name of the God of his Father, the God of the Lord through the countries, was not one who could be safely taunted. The halfbreed was descending on the farther
