Champion's Widow Fleeing to Avenge Husband's Hanging

MARYSVILLE, O., April 6.—Some where in the Midwest today Mabel Champion, victor's widow of 24, is believed to be fleeing to avenge herself against the state that hanged her husband.

Freedom for freedom's sake was not the goal in the "killing" woman's flight, Mrs. Louise Mitchell, patron of the state reformatory for women, said.

"Mabel was a different girl from the day she was called and told her husband had been hanged in San Quentin," the matron said. "That was a year ago and ever since that, until her escape, Mabel was a perfect prisoner."

"That was what we entrusted her with the keys that made it possible for her to walk away. I believe she is planning secretly to flee to California."

Wesley Champion, the "brilliant" woman's husband, was indicted for the murder of a Cleveland man, although Mabel filed the fatal shot.

Champion was hanged in Los Angeles where he was convicted of killing a man in a dice game and subsequently hanged.

Election of former President Alexandre Millerand to the senate from the department of Seine, the outstanding political event of the week-end. Politicians feared the return of a government candidate in the life of political France is turning against the government.

Besides adding one more irreconcilable fighter to the anti-foreigner forces in the senate, Millerand's victory over a government candidate is taken as a sign that the premier's power is waning.

Osage guards ordered a group of men off company property early today and a short time later scabbers' notices were served under a coal tipple in this town, where the men were to investigate and were met with fusillade of shots.

Retreating from the fire, the guards drove away the trespassers. O. B. Barnes, a guard, was burned by powder which exploded in his face. A bullet passed through his clothing.

PACIFIC SURVEY FINDS ORIENTALS LEAVING FARMS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 6.—The Oriental is leaving the farm for the city; he is entering professional and business life and the government is planning the drive to find it.

With the approval of President Coolidge, two naval amphibian planes, with pilot and mechanical engineer, Donald MacMillan, on his expedition to the tolar wastes this summer.

Their objective is a survey of the Alaskan coast, the only unexplored region in the world. The Stars and Stripes will be planted on it if it exists.

The United States explored the idea of such a naval expedition two years ago when it was projected to send the naval dirigible Shenandoah into that region from the basin in northern Alaska. But it was abandoned on account of the expense.

But the situation now is changed. Norway already has an expedition in the field of Spitsbergen headed by Captain Axel Hagen. A Russian expedition from Russia that the Soviet Union is sending to the Arctic region. England has projected a similar expedition.

The MacMillan-navy venture, which is to be a private venture, is scheduled to leave for the Arctic, Alaska, but it was abandoned on account of the expense.

Close Co-operation in South American

MONTEVIDEO, April 6.—A movement toward more close co-operation between the educational, religious, and medical organizations active in South America, is being urged by the executive committee of the commission on co-operation and unity presented today to the congress of Christian workers in session here.

The survey was made by a commission of which Dr. B. H. Chester, secretary of the executive committee for foreign missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States, is chairman.

Each of the union of forces and the co-operation between various organizations in the present movement has been effected through the committee on co-operation in Latin America under whose auspices the present congress is being held. The committee acts as a clearing house for the exchange of information and church workers having work in South America. It represents the educational, religious, and medical organizations, and keeps the educational and social activities of the several republics before the North American public through school and church and conference and convention.

The commission in its survey finds that the evangelical churches have greatly increased their present activities in South America during the past few years; that many of the churches have established the several evangelistic and social centers; that the churches are planning for the prevention of duplication of effort, such as the creation of a common list of churches in the same communities; that there has been a united effort for the production and distribution of evangelical literature.

BOXING GAME REDUCES N. Y. INCOME TAX

Walker Boxing Law Gives State $921,627 With a Total Gate at Boxing Bouts of $18,000,000; League Players Belong to Organization.

BY HENRY L. PARRELL. NEW YORK, April 6.—Revenue from the state tax on boxing matches made it possible to reduce the state income tax in New York this year. Senator Jimmy Walker told members of the National Sports Alliance at the annual dinner here last night. The state tax was reduced after a long fight during which the opposition in the legislature said that it was not possible. "After the legislature had gone over every possible source of revenue," Senator Walker said, "and every penny had been counted, it was the revenue that the state derived from boxing that made the adjustment possible. Since boxing has been operating here under the Walker law the total receipts have been more than $18,000,000 of which the state's share was about $921,627 not including the cost of maintaining the commission. "Boxing has progressed greatly and there is a firm foundation in New York," Senator Walker said. "Once it was only tolerated, never encouraged. It is now a profession and just does not bring shame upon anyone who enters it. I am now connected with boxing and need apologize for nothing." Jimmy Johnston, president of the Alliance, said the organization had grown in a few years from its foundation and is established and its future assured. Several major league players are now members of the organization and there will be many others before the end of the coming season, he said. James A. Farley, chairman of the boxing commission, said that the organization ought to represent all professional sports.

Insects on Plants

Insects are not apt to gather on plants after they are taken indoors. To remove this annoyance use soap suds for watering the plants or simply hot water. Fill a cup with a spoon pour the very hot water, beginning at the edge of the pot and pouring each spoonful nearer to the plant, but do not get it on the plant. If an insect does not get out, repeat the process the following day.
