DEMPSEY ROW WITHIN STATE BOXING BOARD

(By Henry L. Farrell)
NEW YORK, April 15.—Dempsey had a tough and there may have been "chuckles" all over the country when the New York Boxing Commission placed him on the ineligible list for refusing to accept the challenge of Harry Williams.

Perhaps Dempsey doesn't care what the New York commission does to him, or about him and his punishment. He welcomed the sentence as he gave him a "good excuse" to keep promoters away from him and allow him the liberty of the California movie lot.

The mistake made by a previous administration in removing champions by acts and threatening inactive titleholders with punishment that could not be carried out, may have made the last action of the commission on the Dempsey case too little and too late.

It was a good penalty, however, and Dempsey will discover the kick in it when he goes right to fight, if he ever intends to fight again. There are many reasons to believe that Dempsey never intends to fight, but he will retire as soon as he is able to capitalize the limit on his registration in the movies and on the stage.

There is a lot of talk going about offers being made for Dempsey, to fight in California and other places, but that talk is all the good old junk that is being passed about by Jack Kearns, the manager of the heavyweight champion.

Jack Root, the former light-heavyweight champion, who is now a substantial and wealthy resident of Los Angeles, said he would like California could not make a heavy-weight championship fight. Root is holding a fine new fight club on the coast and he was asked if he intended to put Dempsey on in a championship fight. Root promptly announced when he is building a club that in his opinion, "how Jack Dempsey will defend the heavy-weight championship."

"No," Root said, "I will have the fight, but I will not have Dempsey."

TWIN FALLS IS PLAYING BUHL

ALBANIA WITH NO COINAGE IS ON GOLD BASIS

TIRANA, April 15.—The republic of Albania, financially speaking, is in the parage of Europe. It has no national currency of its own, and set it in the one country in Europe where business is done entirely on a gold basis. There are very few really rich persons in the country, but even the poorer mountain peasants carry small burias bags which contain shilling yellow coins.

Just how all this gold got into the country no one knows. Soldiers of the various armies which marched and counter-marched up and down the land during the world war left many of the gold coins and pieces with food and forage only in return for hard cash. Every army had pay to make. No paper was accepted. Then, too, the bandits of the country have "collected" quite a bit of gold from occasional school teachers.

The gold coins were melted, of course, in other countries. Anyone who transacts much business will in the course of a day handle francs, marks, dollars and even gold dollars. Silver currencies in limited quantities, but it is accepted at a rate which would give a stroke of gold to William Jennings Bryan.

"There are no banks here," says a change in the money market, but everyone seems to know the day's rate of exchange for all currencies almost as soon as the counters indicate the approach of dawn.

Since all kinds of paper money go for nothing, small change is scarce. The average tourist soon discovers that he must adopt one or two methods. He must either keep on buying until he has spent the exact value of his gold coin or else he must accept trade goods. Otherwise he is forced to adopt a "never mind the change" attitude.

"Macaroni Verse."

This is a kind of humorous verse in which, with Latin as a base, words of other languages are introduced, using Latin inflections and constructions. The term was selected since it implies a mixture of languages—especially with the mixture of ingredients found in a dish of macaroni. The name is sometimes applied to verses which are merely a mixture of Latin and the unadorned vernacular of the writer. This style of verse has long been known in Italy.

Yawning Said to Induce Sleep.

The last suggestion for the cure of all attacks of sleepiness is the "imitation yawn" system. It has been tried with considerable success by the writer himself. Try it for yourself. First, close your eyes and indulge in a few long, drawn-out, and conscientious yawns. By the time you have completed the job or several it is more than probable that a certain drowsiness will be inducing, creeping over your senses. The explanation is simple enough. Each time one yawns, the bad air in the lungs is more or less expelled and this expelled air automatically induces restfulness. Moreover, the mere sound of a yawn, by means of its sleep associations, will help to bring about sleep.

TWIN FALLS DAILY TIMES

LEWISTON MAY GET NEW POWER PLANT.

The Weyerhaeuser Lumber company, "the corporation that is richer than the Standard Oil company" in other words the lumber trust, recognizes the value of municipal ownership, or the threat thereof, in making another trust come to time. Early last winter it appears that the Weyerhaeuser company let it be known to the city of Lewiston that if it would issue bonds in the sum of $1,500,000 and build a municipal power plant on the Clearwater, the biggest lumber mill in the northwest, and the best equipped in the world, would be constructed there by the Clearwater Lumber company, a Weyerhaeuser corporation. The state law stood in the way and Lewiston appealed to the legislature, which cured a defect. Then the city got ready to vote the bonds. Comes now President J. P. Weyerhaeuser, of the Clearwater Lumber company, and tells the city council of Lewiston that his company has made arrangements with the Inland Power & Light company, a subsidiary of the American Light & Power company, and that they will use power of that company and not of the city. So the bond election is called off. Of course, the inside of all this is impossible to get, but it is pretty clear that the lumber trust, using the municipal power proposition to secure better conditions from the power trust. If various municipalities would adopt similar plans, the result would be better power rates or conditions beyond a doubt.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH CONGRESS?

One of the most insidious evils in this country is the constant ridicule of congress. Humorous comment, even when intelligent, is usually directed at the inherent faults of democracy. Congress is certainly quite as efficient and its business is dispatched with quite as much intelligence as is that of the executive end of the government. We would not tolerate denunciation or contemptuous criticism of the President and any such criticism directed at the supreme court is met with frowning disapproval, but too many people feel perfectly free to criticize congress in the most virulent and unfair way with never a reference to the many things to be commended.

It should be remembered that congress is a part of the government and that a break down of its authority, influence and prestige with the people would simply mean a break down of government. If such a breakdown were to occur, what would we substitute? Autocratic government?

The vast majority of congressmen are sincere, intelligent, hardworking men. They deserve quite as much appreciation as criticism.—From Prohibition and Public Morals.

THE SHORTER BIBLE

A great deal of critical comment has been made in regard to the publication of a so-called "shorter Bible," edited by two Yale professors. In this Bible, in various places, words translated as "wine" in the King James Version, are made to read otherwise. It has been made to appear that this is an effort on the part of prohibitionists to revise the Bible. The publication does not proceed from prohibitionists. It is an honest effort on the part of linguists to give what is felt to be a more nearly correct translation. Whether or not their translation is an improvement, no consideration of prohibition one way or the other had anything to do with it.

It is interesting in this connection to note that the words ordinarily translated as "wine" in the Bible are of different character with varying shades of meaning. It is true that in the condemnatory passages, one word is used and in the commendatory passages another word appears in the original. In the somewhat awkward King James Version they are given exactly the same translation.—From Prohibition and Public Morals.

In requesting that notice be given the newspapers of the co-operation of Cheyenne citizens and organizations with the government in regard to the entertainment of boys at Fort D. A. Russell, the chamber of commerce of the Wyoming capital is showing good judgment. This is accentuated when it adds that this is the most satisfactory way of reaching the people interested. Secretary Charles F. Dwight of the Twin Falls chamber of commerce acted on the suggestion and gave the matter prompt publicity, through the medium which would be most effective. What is true in this case is true in all cases; newspapers are the best channels through which to reach the people.

A dispatch from Australia to a London paper says that in view of the forthcoming visit to Australia of the United States fleet, the Anti-Liquor League of Australia is urging the commonwealth government to show respect for the American prohibition policy by prohibiting no intoxicating beverages at official functions. The league also appeals to citizens to refrain from treating American visitors in bars.

THE MOST WANTED... Published by arrangement with First National Pictures, Inc., and Watterson R. Hochberger.

CHAPTER XIV (Continued) "Then where the doctor did they drop from?" asked Lord John. "A question which will, no doubt, be eagerly discussed in every scientific society in Europe and America," the Professor answered. "My own reading of the situation for what it is worth—" he flung his chest ostentatiously and looked insolently around him at the words—"is that evolution has advanced under the peculiar conditions of this country up to the vertebrate stage, the old types surviving and living on in company with the more modern creatures as the reptilian animal with a quite a respectable length of pedigree—the great tree and the ancestor in the comparatively rapid form of Jurassic type. So much is clear, and now comes the question as to what is to be done. What is the scientific mind to think of their presence? I can only account for it by your going out into the world. It is probable that there existed an atoll upon the South America, in its past geological history, and that the conditions developed into the conditions we have seen, some of which—these are the more recent types—have an appearance and shape which, if it had been accompanied by corresponding intelligence, would do us no harm to say the least, and credit upon any living race. As to the Indians I cannot doubt that they are more recent immigrants from below. Under the stress of famine or of conquest they may have come here, but they were not the same as the young friend (as described) but they have no doubt had a better fight to hold their own against the speemen who would regard them as heretics, and were a terrible one upon them with cunning which the larger beasts would lack—hence the fact that their numbers appear to be limited. Well, gentlemen, here I read you the elder sister, or is there any point which you would like to discuss? Professor Summerford for once was too depressed to argue, though he thought he had plenty to say. Lord John merely scratched his warty back with the remark that he could not see how it was possible in the same world or place. For my own part I performed my duty of honoring this man by listening to a strictly polite and practical level by the remark that one of the Indians was insane.

"The boy came to feed some deer," he said in a hoarse voice, "and he fitted him up with an empty head and an old man."

"The old man," he said, "was off like a streak."

Quick as I was, those hands were quicker still.

with a bad cry and with eyes I felt out the whole infernal rank of them and gave this country a bit of a shock. I was not at all clear on the subject, but I had been had in some way marked us down, and that we were watched and that we were not to be taken away from their neighborhood the better. In three sides of us was a wall of fire, and there we fought and overcame in an ambush, on the fourth side, which I had seen in the middle of the lake, there was only low scrub with scattered trees and occasional open fields. It was, in fact, the plain which I had traversed on my solitary journey, and it led us straight for the Indian cavern. This was most for every season, for our food.

JUDGE REFUSES NEW TRIAL IN PAUL PATE CASE

Affidavits Are Filed by State to Show That Jury Was Not Separated at Meal Times During the Proceedings and Received No Communications from Outside.

Paul Pate was denied a new trial this morning by Judge W. A. Hatcher after affidavits had been presented by Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor to the effect that the jurors had not been separated at meal times and that there was no communication to any of them when eating. All the jurors swore to the same statements, as did also E. B. Williams, the bailiff who had them in charge. By consent of T. K. Hackman, attorney for Pate, it was agreed that affidavits by Tom Koto, proprietor of Tom's cafe, and Rose Wagner, waitress, which have been prepared but not filed will be filed later. These affidavits will be to the effect that instructions were given by Judge Hatcher to the jury, and that the jurors had not been separated at meal times and that there was no communication to any of them when eating. All the jurors swore to the same statements, as did also E. B. Williams, the bailiff who had them in charge. By consent of T. K. Hackman, attorney for Pate, it was agreed that affidavits by Tom Koto, proprietor of Tom's cafe, and Rose Wagner, waitress, which have been prepared but not filed will be filed later. ### CHEMIST SEEKS REVOLUTIONARY BEAUTY MAKER

Plan to Meet Needs of Hollywood Fad is Being Worked Out by H. L. Walter, Chemist, Here

H. L. Walter, city and county chemist, stirred by sympathy for the afflicted and desiring the spirit of humanity which should be the result of any scientific work, has started to work on an invention which will have a far-reaching revolutionary effect. The chemist's mind was turned in that direction by the following interesting relative to the no-stocking craze in Hollywood, given in the Times Monday from Hedda Hopper, the movie vamp:

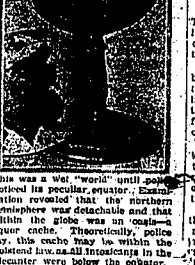

"Any girl who has beautiful legs has had to be very careful in her selection of stockings. Besides, it saves money and is more comfortable."

"The women who are denouncing the no-stocking fad are no doubt still wearing the old fashioned gear by habit when history will be as proud as 'Old Ironsides.'"

"Of course, the long-legged girls will continue to wear stockings and long skirts."

"Being a man in whom 'the milk and honey' has not tapered off, it occurred to Mr. Walter that something should be done to equalize the disadvantages under which girls, of whom Hedda leaves her harpoons. As a consequence he is working on an individual, which, when completed, will be a revolutionary invention, which, when completed, will be a revolutionary invention, which, when completed, will be a revolutionary invention. It will no longer be necessary to have the same old-fashioned gear by habit when history will be as proud as 'Old Ironsides.'"

RADIO HURTS MOVIES SAYS FILM MANAGER

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 16.—The radio is threatening the popularity of the movies, according to leading motion picture executives. Movie fans, in increasing numbers are being kept away from theatres by the radio habit, according to the film authorities, who attribute many of the season's screen failures to the latest entertainment craze.

"The radio is doing to the movies what the motion picture did to the theatre," U. P. Fitzgerald, general manager of the U. P. Studios, announced in an interview with the United Press.

"Just as the movies eliminated the cheap melodrama road companies and gradually cut in half the number of stock companies, so the radio slowly but surely cutting in on the popularity of the films," he said.

"The radio is advancing tremendously in popularity and the picture industry must keep pace and progress accordingly, or be forced to close down many of its theatres," said Fitzgerald, a prominent director who has started a national survey of theatre owners to determine the extent radio has encroached with the picture.

"The failure of some of the most widely heralded productions the past season is the result of the radio craze."

"The radio fan will not get a movie which might be a new movie which he can get his entertainment longing for at home."

A. C. Leece, president of United Studios, agrees with Fitzgerald that "the picture industry is not particularly interested in the former movie enthusiasts listening to their radios."

"Several years ago the picture houses flocked to the theatres regardless of the weather," he said. "But today the radio is keeping many of them from the theatres and the picture industry is suffering."

"Radio competition is not taken seriously, however, by all of the cinema authorities in Hollywood. Jaycee Williams, president of the Motion Picture Distributors' Association, predicted the radio would eventually prove an aid to the film. "Many theatres are installing radio to broadcast their musical programs," he said. "The radio is

Sheds Tears Over Old Style Petticoats

OLEYLAND G. April 15.—Alas! Poor Petticoat! I knew her well! But that was some time ago, says George J. Grossman, erstwhile petticoat maker.

"The thing was when Grossman turned out as neat a petticoat as never whipped a skein, ankle."

But that was in the era before the emancipation of "woman began to be discussed."

"Back in the old days a lady was recognized by the width of her skirt, thick silk petticoats—the more the better."

The older, the petticoats the more modest the lady.

Grossman sadly tells his tale. "Can't give them away nowadays! Haven't made a petticoat in six months."

"I used to make hundreds of petticoats of heavy silk and satins with embroidered noserings and ruffles and quilting," he says.

"Just little costumes slips now. He adds sadly, "Little slinky-pammy plaiding things only fit to wrap around a toothpick."

GALDWELL SALMON SUITS ON TRIAL

Suit by A. E. Caldwell, against the Salmon River Canal company, involving $10,000, is on trial today before Judge T. Bailey Cox. The suit is a libelous, because of investments in the Salton is disallowed from receiving O. C. Hart represents the plaintiff and Judge James H. Ballwell of the firm of Ballwell & Chapman, with whom is associated J. L. Barrie of Boise are attorneys for the defense.

The plaintiff claims that during the years 1921, 1922 and 1923 he planted crops and made normal demand for water for the same and the company refused to deliver the same. He filed claim for the cost of seed and labor and for what he claims to be a reasonable return in the way of profits for crops which he claims that he would have raised. Last year water was delivered by order of Judge Lee.

The defense claims that this land was part of the territory cut out when the tract was reduced by the federal and state reclamation services; that such reduction was necessary; that the company obeyed the order of the nation and state in the matter; that Caldwell knew of the facts when he planted the seed and did not plant in good faith; that moreover, Caldwell is plaintiff in a suit now pending in the federal court, which here jurisdiction and that he is thereby obtaining from certain damages here which such suit is pending there.
