GIANTS WILL HAVE A LONG LEAD BY 4TH

If McGraw's Pitchers Stand Up Half Way the Giants Will Hold Such a Lead by July Fourth That They Cannot Be Beaten to the Flag During This Season.

NEW YORK, May 10.—With any kind of pitching staff the New York Giants will be so far ahead in the National League pennant race by the fourth of July that they cannot be caught, many smart baseball men believe. The four-time champions are getting better every day and are expected to have in years with "Jack" and "Doc" that they cannot be beaten to the flag during this season.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, is not one of those who believe that the New York club is so much ahead that there will be no contest after mid-season.

"The Giants are a fine ball club and they are moving along at a fast pace but I believe that they will not walk away with the pennant. There are other good clubs in the league that have not started yet and they are training season and they have missed a few games but they are not far behind from injuries but there is so much reserve strength on the club that it is not likely to be hurt."

The Pittsburgh club ran into a lot of bad weather and was not in good condition to start the race and the Cincinnati Reds had to play several games with four regulars out of the lineup.

"The showing of the Philadelphia Phillies has been one of the big features of the season. It is a very hustling club that may not be a pennant contender but it is not going to be for any other club. They are really not a set-up in the league now. The Boston Braves have a young ball club and they ought to improve as the season advances."

Most of the western ball players who observed the Chicago Cubs said that the club was playing over its line and was bound to take a fall. It looks now that the Cubs have had their fling. They have lost six games in a row and have been beaten against the real strength of the eastern section. Rabbit Maravalle may improve the team but he can't back into the game. He should bolster up principally and the result is not a sensational hitter.

BUHL DEFEATS TWIN FALLS IN CLOSE GAME

(By HARRY DARRIV.)
Twin Falls 7
Buhl 9

BUHL, Idaho, May 16.—Buhl's baseball team won the district championship here Friday afternoon when they defeated the fast Twin Falls nine in one of the most hotly contested exhibitions played by high school teams on the local field. The outcome was in doubt until the last Twin Falls man was retired in the eighth.

The local team led the scoring by putting across one run in the eighth inning. They added three more in the fourth and two more in the fifth, and it looked like an easy victory for the home team. Twin Falls came back in their half of the sixth with the score reading 6 to 0. They scored two runs, five runs before the stanza was closed.

The home team blew up in the sixth and Mullina was pounded for four hits and his teammates made three costly errors. The first they had made up that point in the game. Twin Falls came back in the seventh with two runs and when Captain Eddie Martin hit one over the fence with Sears ahead of him on first base, the game was a one-point lead.

The locals then came back in their half of the eighth and put first and a pair of singles. The remaining stanza was a tie, with the final reading was: Buhl 8, Twin Falls 7.

Twin Falls used three pitchers to stop the onslaught of the Buhl straggle, and the pitching of Nye, Frankler and Martin proved effective for the Buhl team was held to seven hits, but errors contributed to the downfall of the visitors. "Doc" Mullina pitched the entire game for Buhl.

Sears led the batting for the visitors, hitting a single while Walker distinguished himself with a pair of three sackers. Farrar also potted three singles.

The Twin Falls delegation had the edge over Buhl on the mound in three good writers but they were outplayed in the field. Homing pulled a nice double play in the first part of the ninth by appealing Martin's line drive and then catching Sears, who had singled ahead of Martin, off first base.

Buhl has gone through this season with but two defeats, and they were with the winner of the Boise valley section for an inter-district championship series, either at Buhl or in that section. Buhl will play Kimberly at Buhl next week in the last scheduled game. Buhl previously defeated Kimberly.

TWIN FALLS AND BUHL TIE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Championship Series of Three Games. Should Be Played to Decide District Championship. As the result of the All-Boise Valley All-Star Games the Nat. Cont.

(By Goldfish.)

Twin Falls	550
Buhl	550

According to the drop Twin Falls and Buhl baseball teams are tied for first place in the district championship race. The All-Boise Normal games cannot be counted because they are not in the high school class and the writer would like to see a series of three games played between Buhl and Twin Falls for the district championship. As the record stands now Buhl has won eight games and lost two, which would give him a percentage of 80 per cent. Twin Falls has won nine games and lost three which would give them a percentage of 75 per cent.

Therefore, if the All-Boise Normal games are eliminated then a championship series is absolutely necessary to decide the district championship. If there was an agreement entered into between the high school of this district to count the All-Boise Normal games as part of the district series, then the championship is settled and Buhl has it, but according to our hope no such an agreement was entered into.

A game should be played in Buhl and one in Twin Falls and the third game on some neutral field. The filer or whoever name can be agreed upon.

More than 700 Twin Falls record this for this season:

KIMBERLY WINS BALL GAME WITH HANSEN TEAM

(Special to The Times)
Hansen 6
Kimberly 13

KIMBERLY, May 16.—The baseball season for the local high school teams came to a close yesterday afternoon when the Hansen team went down to a 12 to 6 defeat. The Kimberly team has played 12 games during the season and finished with the long unbeaten record of seven wins and five losses, a percentage of 58.3. Hill pitched his usual good game and never was in danger. A number of very good plays were made by each team and a considerable number of errors, each team facing about equally in the latter respect.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's heroes McNulty and Myatt drove in three runs each and gave the Indiana 16 to 7 victory over the Ited Sox.

With a six run rally in the sixth the Athletics pulled a game out of the fire and beat the Tigers 8 to 7. It was the Athletics' eighth straight victory.

Three bad errors by Jimmy Conway paved the way for rally and the Athletics copied another one of the Cincinnati Reds by a score of 1 to 2.

Joe Bush was knocked out of the box again and the Browns were beaten by the Senators 12 to 7. Bush hit safely in his 30th consecutive game.

Kanna's wild throw in the ninth inning let in two runs and the White Sox won 7 to 5 victory over the White Sox.

Four runs scored on a punch in the first inning enabled the Phillies to beat the Cubs 8 to 4.

Stim's wildness helped the Robins into an 8 to 5 victory over the Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA -- Walter Hanson, winner of the Utah open basketball tournament last year, announced that he would not defend his title this year. He said that his business plans would prevent him to compete only in the American and Canadian open tournaments and the U. S. A. championship.

ST. LOUIS -- In an effort to get the local athletic defense against the body network, Stanislaus Zbrosko, the heavyweight wrestling champion, has invited Frank Johnson former Harvard coach, to join his training staff here, next week. Johnson is known as a advisors specialist and has won many important matches through his success in cultivating Joe Street's tactics on the mat.

Nearly a Billion Dollars Loss

Statistics show that almost a billion dollars was lost to the public through the purchase of worthless stocks during the past year.

That's a tremendous amount of money, and it seems so foolish when this loss could have been easily prevented.

The old saying, "Investigate before you invest," invariably leads to the door of a bank, and if the bankers' advice were followed on all investments, the losses now staggering would be practically nil.

Talk to your banker before you make investments and thus save yourself from loss.

There are Two Ways of Lining Brakes

The Old Way is to cut off the old rivets with a hammer and cold chisel, to detach the new lining with a hand drill (sometimes the holes are made with a hand saw and punch) and the heads are bolted into the lining as well as can be done with the best of mechanics.

The Modern Way—the old rivets are removed with a Manley Riveting Machine. The holes in the new lining are drilled with a Manley Brake Lining Machine and with the same machine large holes are drilled in the trunk in the brake lining for the heads of the rivets. The rivets are finally set with a Manley Riveting Machine.

Result—the lining is riveted snugly to the band or shoe, the heads of the rivets are evenly counter-sunk, and this kind of a brake relining job lasts twice as long, eliminates cutting of the bed from by hot heads and actually costs you a lot less, because the use of Manley Brake Relining Equipment saves so much time over the old hand method.

This is another reason why our owners prefer to have us do their work.

WASHINGTON DAILY NEWS LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The explanation that President Coolidge opposes any more American loans to European countries which can't forget the war and get back on a peace basis is the polite way of accounting for Ambassador Houghton's hint to that effect in the speech before the "Pittsburgh" in London.

It wouldn't sound so well to say that "I will grant provisionally the ambassador with his inspiration. The unromantic truth, however, unspoken by the president, is that the word along to Houghton to make the point."

WHAT the ambassador said meant principally for France. He certainly wasn't aiming at England. Indeed, the English probably are glad he said what he did. He expressed what certainly to face their own loss and the fact that this country's diplomatic representatives in Europe have to be able to give the necessary relief of the necessity of doing so.

The French are sure to resent it, and French resentment would mean more to a very near neighbor, the English, than it will to America.

For all her resentment, Houghton's warning may have a tranquillizing effect on France. She'll be frantic at anything else for enough American money.

THE administration is entitled to credit for doing what was unavavoidably a disagreeable thing rather than for an American ambassador in France had spoken as Ambassador Houghton did. He would have risked making himself "persona non grata" by putting "big business" words into the mouth of the American representative in London. However, and as his personal views are an unofficial dinner, the president managed to shut the French government off from any comeback. The French press will know but the government can't.

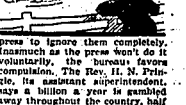

A "GRAIN" man by the name of Ives was sitting in the lobby of the Cator Hotel one evening telling me what he thought of Congress. He wasn't a bit subdued. One of the members of the very body Ives was "panning" was sitting over in another corner of the lobby.

He could have Ives plainly, getting mad at the very word. This congressman evidently was angry and radder. His face turned pink. His lip turned red. Then it turned purple. He was one of those who think "one of the worst influences we have in our national life is our bad habit of holding Congress."

Finally he got up and came over to me. "I can tell you one thing," he said. "All the fools aren't in Congress, anyway." "I sure isn't," I answered. "His answer is too limited."

TAKING time by the forelock, the International Reform Bureau, in Washington, is getting together all available information concerning the evils of bootlegging, with a view to asking Congress in December for a federal law forbidding publication of advertisements on prices, their results, or any other information concerning them.

In short, the bureau wants the press to know them completely. Inasmuch as the press won't do it voluntarily, the bureau favors legislation. The Rev. A. N. Pringle, its assistant superintendent, says a billion year of bootlegging way throughout the country, half of it on the ponies.

MORRIS ORSANTI and J. R. Johnson were indicted together in Oromo county, California, for a violation of the dry laws. There were 21 counts in the indictment, which included the judge. If he shows to "kick the pair pretty hard, though Orsanti said the whole 21 counts related to one transaction.

Orsanti got three months in jail. Orsanti got 20 years in a federal prison. The United States supreme court has just refused to review his conviction.

Real "Dogs of War"

The saying, "Let loose the dogs of war," once had a meaning. In the Middle Ages dogs were sent out toward the cavalry of the enemy with kettles of burning rosin on their backs, the odor, smoke and flame of which usually excited the horses. A stout jacket of leather underneath the kettle protected the dogs in case the hot resin was spilled.

MOVEMENT TO STOP SALE OF WAR MUNITIONS

BY JAMES D. WIELAND.

The question of limiting the sale of arms and munitions which is now being threshed out by the League of Nations is one bristling with difficulties. It was generally recognized before the formation of the league that under the then existing international law, one nation as such had a right to sell arms, warships and other contraband of war to another nation, as such, during the time of peace, but not during war; also that individual citizens of one country had the right to sell such contraband during the existence of war, provided that in the event it had to cross water it was subject to capture and confiscation by the power at war without compensation to the seller. Based on President Washington's message of neutrality between England and France, Alexander Hamilton in his treasury circular of August 4, 1793, said: "The purchasing within and exporting from the United States, by way of merchandise, articles commonly called contraband, being generally warlike instruments and military stores, is free to all parties at war, and is not to be interfered with." On May 15, 1795, Thomas Jefferson, as secretary of state, replying to the protest of the British minister over contraband sales to France, took the same position. He said: "The law of nations, therefore, is satisfied with the external penalty pronounced in the President's proclamation, that of confiscation of such portions of these arms as shall fall into the hands of any of the belligerent powers on the way to the ports of their enemies."

This has always been the American policy from Washington to Wilson. The case of Huerta in Mexico is no exception since Huerta's government was not recognized by the United States.

There is, however, a worldwide feeling that the permission to sell munitions to powers by private individuals, whether foreign or domestic, and either in war or in peace, tends to encourage the war feeling, since the narrow financial interests of munitions and arms makers in large military establishments is quite obvious. Hence the sentiment has been strong in the League of Nations in favor of abolishment of private manufacture of war implements. This would mean that each nation as such, would have to make its own arms and ammunition in the teeth of the protests of taxpayers against extravagance. In such cases, there would be no such direct interest in favor of war as where arms and supplies are made by private trusts and sold to the nations.

Toward this ideal the nations of Europe in an organized way are leaning. The reactionary wave has retarded the movement, but the tide runs strong. Had either Ramsey McDonald or Herbert Asquith won the prime ministership at the last election in England, and had Marx carried Germany, the movement would have been much more sweeping. It will eventually win.

During the great war, William Howard Taft pointed out one feature of the arms traffic often overlooked. Defending President Wilson for continuing the historic policy of the United States he, in substance, pointed out that refusal to permit private firms to sell, under the existing plan of private manufacture, would mean the development in every nation of large factories, the owners of which would be interested in large orders. This condition existed in Germany, where it was realized that in case of war with England the British fleet would prevent much importation of contraband reaching destination on Teutonic shores. On the other hand, England and to some extent France after the formation of the entente, had fewer private munition factories, knowing that they could import from neutral countries. He pointed out that to change our policy after war started would constitute practically unequal discrimination toward those countries which had not prepared, and which presumed that we would continue our historic attitude of allowing sales to be made by private individuals and firms to foreign nations at the seller's risk.

The principle underlying Mr. Taft's argument was not new, and was developed at length in Wharton's International Law Digest, and in Moore's International Law Digest, Volume Seven, pages 955 to 973, long before the Great War.

Since the withdrawal of the protocol by the tory administration of England, and the election of Hindenburg, the steps toward the ideal sought through abolishment of private manufacture have become more slow than would otherwise have been the case, and consist rather of recommendations for regulation of certain sales than for entire abolition. But unsatisfactory as they are, they are in the right direction, and in advance of The Hague rules which permitted such without restraint.

HOSPITALS NOT NEEDED BY OSTEOPATHS

Attorneys for Medical Assn That Standardization Desires No Property Rights and Is Not Discriminatory; Alleges That Osteopaths Do Not Use the Building.

Confine themselves to the question of discrimination, "as requested by the court, District Judge Chapman in his brief filed this afternoon in behalf of D. L. Alexander, et al., in the above captioned case, is not discrimination within the meaning of the law, and argue "that the osteopaths have not been deprived of any constitutional right by the standardization of the hospital, for the reason that the services rendered are not necessary for the practice of osteopathy, and that the rights granted to the profession are necessary in Idaho "does not necessarily include the right to be permitted admission to all public buildings for that purpose."

Clerks Saver Case. The court in Saver v. The Hospital, is cited to sustain the contention that parts of the hospital set aside for operations for the use of the apparatus furnished therefor, and the part equipped for obstetrics are not available for the use of the osteopaths. This leaves but the rooms and wards set aside for patients, the brief states. It is then contended that the osteopathic "system of treating disease for the internal organs, the use of drugs and by means of manipulation" as defined by the supreme court in the Saver case does not necessarily require a hospital. The fact that the Twin Falls hospital is well equipped for surgical work is mentioned. It is contended that the evidence showed that since the building of the hospital there were no cases treated therein by osteopaths, and it is argued that this indicates either that the building is unnecessary, for that purpose, or that the number of patients treated is so small that it is not economical.

"Densy Need of Hospital." It is contended that the Smith-William Lambing, said on the stand, though frequently treated by osteopaths, has never been treated in a hospital. It is argued that under the conditions required by the evidence, osteopaths do not need the hospital. It is further contended that even if the certificate of the county commissioners, for the public health and safety, if it is required, might locally prohibit their practice there under the police powers of the county.

CO-OPERATION FOR (Continued from page 1) strong, self-supporting church would render far better service on the canal zone than a group of scattered churches. It should be understood that these churches on the canal zone are mission churches. They are completely self-sustaining after the buildings have been erected. It must be borne in mind that most of the people on the canal zone are not permanent residents and are, therefore, not in a position to carry the whole responsibility of providing permanent church buildings. It is for this reason that the denominations comprising the Federal Council have undertaken the responsibility of securing funds to make possible a church equipment which, when once furnished, will be sustained by the people on the zone.

A large part of the congregation to which the Union church ministers is made up of soldiers, sailors, marines and the thousands of sailors who through the canal zone at certain periods of the year.

The Church in System. The funds for the churches on the canal zone have been furnished in part by appropriations from denominational boards and in part by contributions from interested individuals. The organizations which have made appropriations are as follows: The Congressional Church Building Society.

The Methodist Episcopal Board of Home Missions. The United Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Presbyterian Board of National Missions.

The Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church in America. The United Presbyterian Board of Church Extension.

SHORT-LINE MAY ASK BONUS UPON ROAD WESTWARD

Those who are on the inside of the railroad situation here declare themselves convinced that a proposition will be shortly put up to build and to tract relative to a bonus for construction of the line to King Hill, opening a direct road work. The intention is anticipated to lay the foundation for construction work next year, following preliminary campaign work similar to that which characterized the reconstruction campaign for the Rogers-Walla branch.

It is said that while the Union Pacific receipts this year have slumped considerably, it is in a position to do a great deal of construction work which will be of value later.

No official announcement has been given out, however.

MEMORIAL TO BE OBSERVED ON MAY 30TH

Twin Falls merchants will help their places of business open this day morning, May 30, and close at 11 o'clock.

It was announced following a conference at the chamber of commerce last evening. This reverses the tentative position, assumed earlier in the week when it was proposed to keep open Edna day, May 30, and close Monday, June 1.

W. H. Burdick said that he had proposed the change to submit to members of the committee which included American Legion and Grand Army members. Burdick learned that the rules of the Legion would not permit the transfer to Monday. Commander Earl Kenna of the Twin Falls camp of the American Legion, explained the rules which permit only observance of Memorial day, May 30, and thank the merchants for the consideration of their former position.

Used beds, springs, chairs, tables, davenport, etc., reupholster. A-1 shops. Prices very reasonable. Exchange Department, A. H. Vincent Co., 207-209 Shoshone south.

FIFTY THOUSAND DERBY ON TODAY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—The pulse of the turf world quickened to Kentucky Derby tempo today as the crowd of about 20,000 spectators gathered for the first running of the historic $50,000 stake. The latest field that ever faced the barrier in the classic turf was to go in the post time this afternoon, 25 thoroughbreds having been listed in the central field view last night. Two or three scratches today would still leave the field the
