NEWS OF THE SPORT WORLD

SANDE WINS CLASSIC ON FLYING EBONY

Kentucky Derby Won by Idaho Jockey on Flying Ebony; Idaho Jockey Finishes Length and a Half Ahead of All Others With Unknown Black Colt.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—Many of the roughbros, which ran in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, were on their way back to the metropolitan tracks today. Flying Ebony, winner of the $50,000 classic, traveled in royal style alone in a special car but the other stars had to share their quarters. Official figures show that $348,818 was bet on the derby, $165,000 of it going down on the favorite Quatrain which failed to show.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—Between a brisk shower which sprang up a few minutes before the start and the race and a terrific downpour which soaked thousands of spectators to the skin, Flying Ebony, a black horse, raced to an immortal victory in the $50,000 Kentucky derby Saturday. He defeated a field of 19 and outdistanced three 3-year-olds.

The black colt, owned by Clifford A. Cochran of New York and superlively ridden by Earl Sande, an Idaho boy, finished one and a half lengths ahead of Captain Jim, a Louisiana-owned colt, straining the zills, and a quarter distance in front of Son of John, came third, being second place by a neck nose. Finest, a three length farther back, finished fourth, a half length ahead of Glee Along.

The crowd, which largely favored the local and New Orleans handicaps, carrying a mad roar, struggled across the finish half beaten for twelfth place.

Flying Ebony, coupled in the company of eight others, comprising the mutual field, paid his backers $830 for each $1 investment on his chances. The place price was $230 and the show money $530. If Flying Ebony had not been included in the mutual field, his odds undoubtedly would have reached 100 to 1. Captain Jim, favored by his backers with $550 to place and $440 to show, whose ticket in the mutuels paid $550 on Son of John.

The race, witnessed by 70,000 to 80,000 spectators, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America, was decided under highly dramatic conditions. After a day of stormy squalls, black clouds suddenly gathered in the southwest, threatening a deluge every second. When the official saw the approach of the impending advance, it was hurriedly decided to advance the post time and attempt to beat the oncoming downpour. Given Floral Horsehoe.

As Sande was called to the judges' stand he received a floral horsehoe, emblematic of victory, the downpour broke in all its fury, soaking the spectators and raining thousands of costly grooves and hats worn by the women. The rain-soaked spectators made a wild dash for protection in the backing sheds under the stands but the crowds was so tremendous that only a few of them managed to duck a soaking.

All the news all the time in the Times.

"Million Dollar" Pair

Here's the "million-dollar" battery of the Philadelphia Athletics, Gordon Cochrane and "Tiger" Grover. Of course, the players didn't bring that much in actual money. Cochrane, catcher, is shown on the left in the accompanying picture.

Begin and patriotism. Human comes more nature and less and reason develops. These are the greatest authorities on the subject agree that the time when spiritual awakening is most likely to take place, if at all, is during the childhood developed to its fullness at the age of 20 years; William Cullen Bryant wrote "I was a child in his youth; Peter Cooper was yet a boy when he planned great works to be developed in the future; Joan of Arc came at the age of 13 years; James A. Garfield was but a boy when he planned the outline of a great career for himself and culled the inspiration which carried him to the highest point.

World Asleep. "Many there are who go through life without experiencing the awakening of the soul and who know nothing of higher spirituality. The awakening of the spiritual life is not inevitable. A noted authority on psychology says that most of the world is asleep. The natural world, deprived of the intellectual attributes and of the spirituality of man, is asleep to an extent it is almost beyond our power to realize; since there are vast numbers of us of which we know nothing.

We speak of China being asleep, and of the millions of people who are asleep awake. China is asleep to the higher spiritual things; it needs to be awakened. Christ in the morning should it so awaken the world will be benefited by his being aroused. Should he be asleep in his slumber, the world will suffer. It depends on us how the awakening shall take place.

The idea of the necessity of being awake permeates the Old and the New Testaments. Christ in the morning awoke that he might be awake to keep the apostles awake. At the Transfiguration we are told that when Peter, James and John were awake they wanted to build three tabernacles. We see the results of false awakenings. Christ in the morning awoke in the case of the three foolish virgins. John fleeing from his duty in awakened by the crowd and he ran out to rescue himself. God's nursery school is full of children who are asleep. We need the deep sleep of certain Loyals and the spiritual life may every member of the church be awakened. We need the lessons of Scripture.

TWIN FALLS BACCALAUREATE

Seldom have we listened to such a high type of service as was presented at the Methodist church last evening when the baccalaureate address was delivered to the class of 1926 of the Twin Falls high school. The sermon was remarkable for its wonderful scriptural truths and for its beauty and symmetry of English and the figures of speech are seldom equaled. Its application to daily life were very apt and the speaker is to be congratulated on the remarkable address which showed much preparation and wonderful polish.

The whole program went off in splendid style and without a hitch. The class looked splendid for its first public appearance as a body and was the subject of much scrutiny. The class and the community are to be congratulated on such a remarkable beginning of commencement week.

THE TRIAL OF FORMER GOVERNOR DAVIS

Kansas is undergoing the humiliation of seeing a former governor, Jonathan M. Davis, standing trial on the charge of accepting a bribe while endeavoring to grant a pardon. The trial is now in progress at Topeka, where there is an array of legal counsel representing both the state, which is prosecuting, and the governor, who is defendant. Because of the prominence of Davis in Kansas the outcome of the case is being watched with the keenest interest.

The state will seek to prove that while Governor Davis solicited a bribe through a bank commissioner, Carl J. Peterson, for a pardon for one Walter Grundy, the Hutchinson bank embezzler. Associated with the charge is another to the effect that he accepted a bribe through his son, Russel G. Davis, in payment for the pardoning of Pollman, a former banker convicted of forgery. It will be remembered that in this case the son was caught in the act of actually accepting the money with the understanding it was to be used to influence his father, then the state's chief executive.

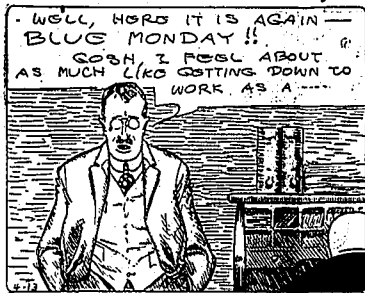

It is quite apparent reading between the lines that as this case comes to trial there is a political background. It has the appearance of a wayward boy committing acts reflecting on the good name and character of his father. The state has still to prove to a skeptical public that while governor of his state the elder Davis was partly by bribes taking. Governors as a rule do not engage in that kind of business. They may make mistakes as executives, they may commit errors, they may be poor managers for, a state, but they are seldom bribe takers. There is too great a risk in accepting money in this manner. There is little if anything to be gained.

But if the son of a state's chief executive does indiscreet and even dishonest things, it necessarily follows that the greatest disgrace falls upon the parents. The natural inclination is to shield the son in every possible manner. While Governor Jonathan Davis may have been an inferior executive, and that is not charged, and there is the possibility he asked and received bribes, the proving of the charge is going to be a very difficult matter. It will surprise no one greatly if the allegation evaporates either before or after it gets into the hands of the jury.—Ex.

A SCORE CARD FOR RURAL SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS

We have long had score cards for the purpose of rating school children, score cards, and certificates both for the purpose of rating teachers and, in some states, certificates showing educational qualifications of school superintendents. Now comes the Department of Rural Education of the Kansas State Teachers College at Pittsburg, with a score card for rating rural school board members. This card is said to be widely used in certain parts of Kansas. It should be of direct benefit to the schools and the children. After all, few officers for whom farm men and women vote are entrusted with more important responsibilities than school board members. Unfortunately, many farmers go to the school election and vote for trustees or directors without having given careful attention to the qualities of those for whom they vote. In many states school board members will be elected during the spring and early summer months. They will decide such important questions as: How shall the schoolhouse be lighted, heated and ventilated; how safeguard the lives of the children through satisfactory sanitary conditions of the school and school grounds; what kind of tools will the teacher and children have to work with next year in the way of libraries, reference and text-books, maps, and other teaching materials? Most important of all, they will decide upon the educational, professional, and personal qualifications of the teacher. According to the Kansas score card, candidates for rural school boards should have a good common school education, own their homes, read a standard farm paper, and at least one magazine of recognized worth, be in favor of spending money for well-trained and efficient teachers and of retaining such teachers once they have been found, and, of utmost importance, should have expressed themselves believing that rural school boys and girls should have as good buildings and equipment, as well prepared and efficient teachers, as good supervision of instruction as have city boys and girls. Other desirable qualifications are enumerated. The Kansas State Teachers College at Pittsburg will furnish a copy free of charge.

Salesman For Skin Cream

Learns How To Clear Up Pimply Complexion

Arthur Reich, Brooklyn, N. Y. writes: "I was a victim of creams for healing pimples, blemishes, etc. but when my face broke out with blotches, pimples, and blackheads I tried one salve after another with no permanent result. I found it as impossible to sell skin cream as a bald-headed man skin setting his tone. Finally I decided I would have to get the cause—the blood. I was afraid that this was a waste of time after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills, my skin took on a new healthy look blemishes started to disappear and I realized more, tests such as complaints in a safe way. It has been given all over the world for 67 years. I'm only skin, you bet." This old for sale at all druggists.
