GRAVES OF FILM WORKS
Miss Lillian Virginia Graybill, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. D. L. Graybill, and Mrs. Raymond F. Graves, at a quiet little service solemnized at the home of the bride's parents Tuesday at high noon in the presence of a small circle of relatives.

Following the serving of the wedding dinner, the young couple left by automobile for their new home in the Yellowstone park. They went by way of Burley and Pocatello and will return to Twin Falls.

The Rev. D. L. Graybill, father of the bride, officiated. It being his privilege to preside similarly upon the marriage of his son, he declined to do so.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom, accompanied by three daughters, The ring ceremony was used.

Preceding the nuptials, Rachel Anderson, the maid of honor, and the three daughters of the bride sang "I Promise Me." A second solo, "Love You Truly" was rendered. Mrs. Helen Munn, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Fred and Bertha McCleary assisted in serving at the dinner.

Those attending the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Graves, parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gray, Mrs. V. W. Graves, Mrs. Frank Shadwell, Mrs. J. B. Keenly.

The latter of Burley.

Following their return here, Mr. and Mrs. Graves have been residing in the H. H. Schidtman residence property on Yakima avenue.

The bride is well known here, having been an active in young people's work. She is a graduate of the local high school and the Lewiston State Normal School. She has been known as an accomplished singer and pianist. The groom is a popular young local man, receiving his education at the University of Idaho and at the Oregon Agricultural college, before he was graduated from the college of commerce. He is associated with his father in the family estate, loan and insurance business.

The newlyweds were escorted out

NEWSPAPERMAN DRIVE AUTO ACROSS U. S.

Twin Falls Times Honored by Belvoir
Chosen As Leading Newspaper of Southern Idaho Published Drives
Coast to Coast Automobile From Here to Illinois.

Nearly four hundred newspapermen will take part in the new Willby-Knight auto tour from here to the city coast and back again, one of the most spectacular trips any car has been made in the last decade. The pioneer of the tour, the Twin Falls Times, was honored by being asked to drive this car from Twin Falls to Illinois. This drive was made to demonstrate the dependability of the driver, Willby-Knight, before in one hour and twenty minutes with our shifting gear from here to Illinois.

The present tour, which covers coast to coast, is chosen to bring newspapermen all over the country to make these drives and the Times publisher has selected from among the best drivers in the country. The new Willby-Knight is a very easy car to operate and hangs to the road in splendid fashion. It can make all the turns without any trouble and was running between twenty-five and thirty miles an hour with an inexperienced driver at the wheel.

The drive was made from Pocatello to Twin Falls the previous day in two hours and twenty minutes, according to the Standard-Examiner, published in Oregon, who was at the wheel. He made 48 miles on this side of American Falls in 51 minutes.

Buhl staged a great celebration. The crowd is estimated around 5,000 and we believe there must have been at least that many. The most enjoyable part of the celebration was the pleasant shady places in Buhl's park. This park is remarkable for its beauty and size and the water gives it an air of coolness and a delightful place for the kiddies to swim.

The majority feel glad that the Fourth is over for another year. Some went fishing and had poor luck, others wore themselves out watching athletic sports where the fellow always got between you and the thing you were trying to see. The speech was drowned out by the firecrackers and the torpedo. "So all in all, it was not a very satisfactory fourth except to a few and the most of us came home worn out and weary trying to catch a new version of this remarkable anniversary."

During the past year 193 small rural schools in Maine were consolidated, and the two and three teacher school is now common. About 25 junior high schools have been organized in small towns. Most of the state, however, is forest, with widely scattered settlements, and because of these conditions it will be necessary to continue indefinitely a large number of one-teacher schools. About $400,000 was spent last year for transportation of pupils. With better paid and better trained teachers and more satisfactory buildings, equipment, and transportation, the rural schools are improving. A course of study fitted to the needs of these schools is now in preparation.

Boy Scouts are leaving for the summer camp and the church folks are starting their summer assemblies and as a result Twin Falls is likely to look somewhat deserted for the next few weeks. But these outings will bring renewed energy and vigor to each and new lessons will be learned about the great outdoors. Parents should take occasion to visit the scout camp some time during the summer and get a first hand version of what the boys are doing at these summer training schools in the way of getting better prepared for everyday citizenship. Many a boy will not be able to take advantage of this outing who would enjoy it immensely and would be greatly benefited by its influence. Twin Falls should try to have more nearly one hundred per cent of its boys in scouting than we have today. What can each of us do to bring this?

Evolution is a method whereby the past passes o-nils

WHAT EVOLUTION IS AND IS NOT

(By J. W. T. MASON)

Evolution does not teach that man is descended from monkeys. Man represents one direction evolution has taken, and monkeys represent another direction.

Evolution neither affirms nor denies the divinity of Christ. Evolution deals with bodily forms and organs. It does not pronounce doctrines about spirit.

Evolution does not contradict the Ten Commandments. On the contrary, whosoever obeys the Ten Commandments is far more likely to progress further in evolution than those who do not.

Evolution does not deny the existence of God. Evolution has no theory explaining the origin of existence. People who believe in God, the spirit, can also believe in the evolution of living forms of matter without contradicting themselves.

Evolution is a method whereby the past passes on its attainments to the present so that life can learn by experience and can safeguard progress.

It was once believed the earth was flat. Many men of that time believed to deny this and to teach the earth was round was to deny the existence of God.

It was once believed the sun went round the earth. Many men of that time, as self-appointed censors of God, believed to deny this and to teach the earth went round the sun was to deny the existence of God.

If the reactionaries of those times had had their way, as the opponents of evolution now seek to suppress the spread of scientific knowledge, mankind would still believe the earth was flat and the sun went round the earth.

"My Mammy says there's something in a woman's heart that sets the stars on a map for good or bad, a seventh sense. I know there is. A woman feels to trust—or not to trust."

"That's right," said "Mammy—but maybe some day, you may come to feel it has betrayed you—in our case—my case—I mean. What then?"

"Nah—shock her head."

"I won't," said "Fairy," she replied.

"The old adage is true," said "God knows," he said—"I hope not, but let's get on—it's getting pretty late."

Fairy rode to the cave by the pool in the moonlight where the Indians brought from the blankees such packets of garments as belonged to the child; rolled them in a bundle and fastened them on Nance's saddle.

"I'm sorry they are, as ragged as they are," said "Fairy."

"It doesn't matter," said Nance, "Mammy has stuff that can be made over. We'll fix him up."

Fairy mounted again and rode with the Indian boy of Blue Stone. They hiked and hiked Sonny to Buckskin's rump.

The little fellow whimpered a bit and clung to his neck, while the man pat his pony's hind shoulder.

"There's a hole in your saddle," said "dog's you don't like Miss Allison?"

"Yes," wailed Sonny at last; "but—but just love you, Brand!"

"I've put in a pretty strenuous effort to make Nance's saddle fit," said Fairy, "but I think there's still a hole in the earth with Miss Allison."

"The service of love is always worth while," said Nance, "it's the biggest thrill in the world." She turned and clung to his pony's shoulder.

"Same now," said "Fairy," "if you'll buck to come right down to the homestead some night soon and see me—if Miss Allison will let me."

"I'll be back again in the girl's breast like a sunlit tide," said "Fairy."

"If you don't, well, won't hunting you," she said.

Then Fairy kissed the boy, mounted Diamond and with hands crossed his pony's neck while Buckskin carried his double burden across the little flat and through the belying deep snow of Nameless whispering of its rifle.

On the other side Nance and Sonny were riding a horse and went forward into another life.

At the cabin door Bud stared with open mouth when they rode up, but Mrs. Allison, who had been watching from the window, ran down the steps, and who had vaguely understood, came forward with uplifted arms.

"I figured it wouldn't be so long before you brought him home," she said, "that's why I was so anxious to have this baby." "Oh, I know," said the little man, "An' supper's all hot an' waitin'."

"I knew you'd understand, Mammy," said the girl gratefully, "you're the seventh, ages all right, and you are mine. No, we didn't pay our rent, but we had lots of it."

And so it was that Sonny Fair came into the warmth and comfort of fire and lamp-light, of chairs and tables, bed with deep shock-sheets, and the quiet of a winter's evening. After two years of riding the big black bump, of sleeping on the earth beside a campfire, and the long lonely days of waiting.

And, faithful as the shadow, Dick, the dog, who had been a friend, the silent and refused to judge until both Nance and Sonny convinced him that all was well, and that was home.

With Nance set to her gracious house with the Scriptures that night it seemed a very fitting coincidence that the book should fall open at the Master's tender words: "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

CHAPTER XI

The Athos of Hope.

It was dark of the moon and Sheriff Justice from McKee's store at Cogova, his hat pulled over his brow, his hands on his saddle horn.

Inside the lighted store four tables were going.

A bunch of cattlemen from the Union were wading in and most of the Cathew men were down from Sky Line.

The nine or ten boys outside of Cogova were present also, and Mr. Justice was the only one who had not been to the houses of the town were dark, for it was fairly late. All these things had already set in the quarter hour he and his party were watching.

There might be someone from Nameless in the town, and Justice was particularly intent on his staying out of sight.

With Justice, he found that all the families were represented inside, that the dogs of the place were settled to insertion, and that no one was likely to be absent.

He wondered if she dared ask Brand to let her take on the trip to Nameless, then hastily decided she should not.
