

SCOPES JURY WILL FIND HIM GUILTY CLAIM

Bryan Sums Up Case for Prosecution and Darrow Makes Sharp Defense; Case Will Be Taken to Supreme Court—Verdict of Guilty Is Predicted By Experts.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 18.—Dayton's day in the sun is waning. The Scopes trial, to all intents and purposes, is practically over. A few hours of flaring oratory as William J. Bryan sums up in triumph and Clarence Darrow fights back in defeat and then the defendant will be found guilty and the case that put this little Tennessee town into the spot light will be on its way to the higher courts. Attorneys for both sides agreed today that Judge Raulston's charge on introduction of scientific evidence means that by next Tuesday night the case will be closed and trials to the north, east and south will be taken up by expert witnesses, counsel, correspondents and visitors. There was a scant possibility that Judge Raulston would permit a reversal of himself and permit the jury to hear the experts brought here by Clarence Darrow and his associates. But the chance was slight.

What seemed equally possible was that Judge Raulston would take action against Darrow, who clearly laid himself open to contempt proceedings yesterday when he commented upon the court's rulings. After Darrow had practically decided the jury to take exception to remark the effect that all decisions from the bench seemed to favor the prosecution, Raulston showed his anger and let the matter drop. But whether or not he was so ready to proceed against the glibulous Clarence Darrow, after Raulston gave the affidavit, if he still believes the jury would not hear the scientific arguments will be made and the jury will be given the fate of the Scopes, who taught the school children of Dayton theory of evolution. Scopes already is furnished with $5000 fine and is undoubtedly released when found guilty.

Realists of the defense staff in bored today to reduce their opinions on evolution and the bible to writing for submission to the court tomorrow. Meanwhile, all other principal had fled to the mountains for a rest. The scientists prepared their affidavits in accordance with the agreement reached between the defense and the Raulston yesterday. The court had ruled out their personal testimony. There will be a great argument when court convenes Monday over whether they will be heard out in open court or simply handed to the court stenographer, but the latter is the most likely course. Copies, however, will be furnished to the press in advance for release when they are formally prepared. The affidavits contained in the affidavits statements are in theory for the judge's information and guidance in clarifying the jury and also to show the appellate court what the defense submitted. The jury will not hear them. Attorneys for both sides are practically agreed to limit speeches to half or three-quarters of an hour for each attorney participating and

FURNITUREMAN SENT TO JAIL

PROHIBITION AGENTS WILL BE DISMISSED

NEW YORK, July 18.—Every prohibition agent in this country is due to lose his job within the next two months, says A. Hyness, federal prohibition commissioner, announced here.

The greatest "shakeup" in the history of prohibition enforcement will start August 1 and terminate September 15.

Within that period, the new federal regime under Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews will reorganize its corps of agents throughout the United States.

Many agents undoubtedly will be reappointed for merit, or because of their peculiar knowledge of office, or because of their political affiliations. The blanket removal of 4000 of all is intended to leave General Andrews a free hand to drop and retain whom he chooses without any embarrassment that might be occasioned if formal discharge were necessary.

WEST IS HIT BOTH WAYS BY RAIL SCHEDULE

SPOKANE, Wash., July 18.—The Interior west is "hit both ways" in two actions started by western railroads. ## BRYAN MAKES CAPITAL OUT OF EVOLUTION

Julian Huxley, Former Instructor in Zoology in Oxford University Answers Bryan's Arguments; Accuses Commoner of Writing Bible Into Constitution.

Editorial note: Julian Huxley, grandson of Charles Darwin's contemporary, Thomas H. Huxley, now lecturer in zoology at Oxford University, England, and former assistant professor in the University of London, has written exclusively for the United Press an article in which he attacks Bryan's position as outlined at Dayton.

There is no disagreement whatever among biologists that evolution has occurred and that it applies to men equally with other organisms. Bryan's own book contains far more evolutionary evidence for evolution than would convict a dozen men of murder.

Human development is even more strikingly shown in the fact that each of them before birth passed through a phase with a tail, and through an earlier phase with gills like a fish and started from one primitive cell.

It is true that there is no better way to learn anything unusually well than by teaching what we know of a subject to others. In distant Liberia, a republic in western Africa, the schools have adopted the same plan. Just as soon as any student has mastered the rudiments of one class he begins imparting his knowledge to others. In fact, he is taught mostly by those who have just finished the class above him. Although this system has its disadvantages, according to American standards, it certainly helps the young teachers themselves, as regulation instructors are not easily obtained, its eager are the children for instruction that many of them walk eight miles to school through swamps and over poor roads.

opening was hindered by rumors of irreparable damage to spring crops and indications of improved yields. Demand, however, aggregated 200,000 bushels.
Precipitation in corn was encouraged by the ideal weather in corn growing sections.

Data followed other grains.
Provisions were lower.
