BORAH'S "RAMBLING TALK" ABOUT WILSON

(BY JAMES D. WHITMAN)

The speech of Senator W. E. Borah at Filer illustrates the danger of even the greatest indulging in "rambling talks" without checking up on facts or in trusting to faulty recollection. The senator said, "When Mr. Wilson was let out of the secret conference, all but one of his 14 points had been voted out of existence." Senator Borah clearly had no list of the 14 points in his mind, or he would not have said that. Of course, it "went" with a number for they did not all remember them either, and some said, "Wilson got the League of Nations and lost the other 18."

One of the 14 points was the evacuation of Belgium. Surely that was not voted out. Another was evacuation of France. If Senator Borah does not know that France is evacuated, he is a mighty man to jump on her when he thinks she is down. Another is the transference of Alsace-Lorraine to France. Will the senator contend that Clemenceau was so altruistic that he insisted on handing these provinces back to Germany? Another was the restoration of Poland. The Poles seem to be thoroughly restored, despite the implied denial of the senator. And then, of course, there is the League of Nations, pledged by the Democratic platform of 1916, and by the president's war speech, for the distribution of which in Europe congress voted great appropriations.

Then another point was the evacuation of Russia by the Germans, which of course, was carried out.

Autonomy was also granted the people of Austria-Hungary.

That makes one-half of the 14, adopted and not "voted out."

All but one of the others were partially adopted, some of them largely, some but slightly.

"Open covenants openly arrived at," was rejected so far as the Versailles conference procedure was concerned, but the rest of the demand: the abolishment of private international understandings, was mostly covered by the provision of the league for filing of treaties at Geneva. The facts set forth by Webb Miller on which Borah commented Saturday were obtained through this instrumentality. Reduction of armaments is provided for in the League covenant, but it is naturally a slow process. When the League starts to get busy, somebody begins rambling against other nations and that slows it more. Adjustment of territorial claims in an impartial way has met with some success, through mandates, though it has been abused quite badly in a number of instances. Territorial integrity of Italy has been restored.

Senator Borah says that Lloyd George forbade discussion of freedom of the seas while the president was on the way to Europe and that is why it was dropped. Which isn't true and illustrates the danger of "rambling talk." In response to an inquiry of the German government before the armistice, if the allies besides the United States favored the 14 points, they all united in an identic note accepting this basis except in regard to the freedom of the seas in regard to which they "reserved to themselves complete freedom." The point that the time "virtually" dropped away was later specifically repudiated by President Wilson as inconsistent with the principles of a league of nations. The distinguished authority on the law of nations, John Eugene Hartley, in his "League of Nations and the New International Law," takes the same view as Wilson, whom he quotes as saying that "when he placed the question of the freedom of the seas among the 14 points it never struck him that there would be no neutrals and that consequently the question of neutral rights would not arise."

Paul S. Mowrer says, in a recent notable work, "Our Foreign Relations," the ideal would be, as President Wilson saw at Paris, in connection with the freedom of the seas, that there should henceforth be no neutrals."

Noting exceptions, regarding self-determination, and especially the exception of South Tyrol, Gilbert Murray, than whom there is no better authority on international law in Europe, and who is a foe of imperialism, in his "Principles of Foreign Policy," says "In Europe as a whole, however, the decisions were made on Wilsonian principles." "The territorial settlement" is on principles of nationality juster than that which preceded it."

"Removal of economic barriers." Oh no, except in a mild degree. It is one thing necessary, and one thing not wanted by the American Protective Tariff League, which rightly boasts that it defeated the League of Nations, and by other trust owned organizations that help the senator in stirring up hatred. After President Wilson backed the British self-governing colonies against the British foreign office and got them representation in the assembly, which they have often used to thwart the plans of England, the senator said England had six votes. Now that Ireland is in and is voting against Lord Lansdowne says England has seven.

Because the United States stayed out owing to rambling talks the League is not functioning as well as it might, and demagogues in all lands are stirring people against one another, and the contentment is near the realization of the principle of the 14 points as the Constitution was to the Declaration of Independence, before the Bill of Rights, the abolishment of slavery and other amendments were written into it.

DEATH TAXES AS BUSINESS KILLERS

Assistant Treasury Secretary Tells Facts of Fate of Two Successful Men.

Men cannot be expected to continue to work day after day, increasing the production of this country and benefiting others, if they know that on death the major portion of their earnings will be dissipated in Federal estate and state inheritance taxes, declares Charles S. Dowey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in the American Bankers Association Journal. He says:

"I am going to relate a table in terms of modern business conditions. John Henry and Walter Brown were aggressive, hard-working men, each had started business for himself. As the time this history opens John Henry had just died, leaving his entire estate to his son, John Henry Jr., and had appointed his old friend Walter Brown, as executor. Prior to his death John Henry had moved to California, leaving his business in the hands of his son under whom it has continued to make excellent headway. The father had been doing a little speculating in oil. This venture had not proved successful and he was in debt to the sum of $500,000, on which the following death duties must be paid:

|--|-------------|
| Capital stock of Henry & Co. | 1,000,000 |
| Personal debts due banks | 500,000 |
| Walter Brown soon made the unpleasant discovery that in addition to the personal indebtedness of $500,000, and administration expenses of $250,000, the following death duties must be paid: | |
| Federal estate tax | $497,500 |
| Michigan inheritance tax | 125,000 |
| Total | $1,122,500 |

"Added to the personal debt and administration expenses, this made a grand total liability of $1,622,500. The year was 1920. Money was tight. Other manufacturing companies in the line of which credit have been interested in a purchase had no money for extensions nor were the banks in condition to handle a loan of this type. Here was a most successful business, built up from small beginnings by one man and carried on to further successes by his son, about to be placed under the hammer.

"Is there any justice in taxation that may force a man and his family to lose the fruits of his entire life's labor, and permit others to benefit as a last resort? Here this was forced into a bond issue. A loan to settle the debt, administration expenses and death duties of $1,622,500 was negotiated, upon the following basis:

| The capital stock of the company was left at $1,000,000 represented by 50,000 shares. First mortgage 5 percent bonds were offered the public with a bonus of two shares of stock for each $100 bond. The bankers to protect his bond customers, kept 10,000 shares to assure control of management, and John Henry, Jr., received the balance of 18,500 shares. John now has a good job as general manager of his father's old company, but they do not pay him very much. |
| "Now we must return to Walter Brown, executor of John Henry, Sr. He has always kept close to his own manufacturing business. The more he considered his own situation, the more clearly it seemed to him to resemble that of his old friend. |
| "He therefore called a lawyer and set to work to compile a schedule of assets, requesting that an estimate of administration expenses and death duties be made. The schedule of assets was as follows: |

|---|-------------|
| Capital stock, Walter Brown Co. | 1,000,000 |
| California real estate | 1,000,000 |
| and Colorado | 500,000 |
| Total | $1,500,000 |
| "Within a few days Mr. Brown's lawyer had the following report: Assets and admin. expenses: $500,000 | |
| Fed. estate tax | $176,625 |
| Mich. inheritance tax | 250,000 |
| Mich. inheritance tax | 412 |
| Mich. inheritance tax | 412 |
| Total death duties | $1,178,762 |
| Total expenses | $1,178,762 |

"On this basis the estate entered a reduction from $5,000,000 to approximately $1,178,762, but this left no assets except the corporate stock and making a heavy loan on that. Mr. Brown then saw and he knew of John Henry, Jr. setting every little hope of opportunity to determine what he would not subject his own son to the same tribulations.

TURNIPS FOR FEED'S PLAN OF J. S. KEEL

Fifty Acres of Vegetables Planted on the Northside Will Be Expected to Furnish Provender for Cattle; Will Plant Sudan Grass and Clover Next Week.

That he intends to plant Sudan grass and clover next week on land on the northside of the river, the week following is the statement of J. S. Keel, who is doing a lot of farming on his ranch. Mr. Keel says that he expects to get a big turnip crop from his grain field which will furnish the cattle feed. The place was not touched by the recent blizzard.

CLOVER CHILD DROWNS IN THE DITCH AT HOME

The body of Edward Tvedy, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tvedy, was found in the lateral more than a mile and a half above his home, at 7:30 last evening, about two hours after he disappeared. The body was carried down the ditch at the point on the Miller farm where it was discovered.

Edward, the youngest of four children, was playing with two other children just before his mother missed him. They knew nothing of his whereabouts when asked and a search of the lateral was instituted immediately. The lateral is about four feet deep and runs westerly.

Coroner P. J. Grossman was notified at once. On his return he declared that an inquest had been held to be unnecessary.

Health Hints

by the Father of Physical Culture

BERNARD TOWNSEN

The quiet content, the animated expression, the satisfaction with their life and its surroundings, attending with good health, the eyes, are unmistakable characteristics of a healthy baby. The aspect of a child in ill health is so different that it should leave no room for doubt as to its condition.

The position assumed by the infant when it is suffering from any disease something a mother must carefully consider. When the child is in pain, or is feverish, it usually lies on its back, arms and legs stretched. When it is awake it is impatient in its desire to be lifted out of its crib, walk about the room, or put down again.

However, not infrequently, the beginning of acute disease is marked by a certain form of collapse, in which the child may lie stupid and inattentive for hours at a time. In prolonged illness, when the situation is grave, and in severe acute conditions, the child may lie with its face turned toward the ceiling, nose toward the ceiling, and its arms and legs extended.

If a child attempts to assume a sitting posture while ill, it is usually an evidence of difficulty in breathing, probably as a result of some inflammatory condition of the respiratory tract.

Harley House-owners Only Slight Injuries When His Bicycle Gets In Front of Car While Turning Corner From Main Avenue

Harley House, Times newsy, was hit by an auto at the corner of Main avenue and Second street, east, last evening, while riding a bicycle, and sustained a number of small lacerations, but was not seriously injured. It is said the driver was not to blame. Harley, who is 11 years of age and a son of O. B. Harney, was delivering papers on his wheel, and was running parallel with the car. When the car turned off Main, Harley also turned, but was unable to check the bicycle until it got in front of the auto. Though both wheels of the car passed over his body, his injuries were not deemed slight by the surgeon who arrived at once on the scene.

The driver of the car, which had an Oklahoma license, stopped until he found that the boy was not badly hurt and then arranged for the repair of the bicycle.

A publisher brother of Harley was killed last winter when he was run over by an auto after he had dropped off load of hay on Main avenue.

Twin Falls Chautauqua Association Gets Telegram Today Stating That Famous Franchiser Will Speak Here Saturday Evening, August 8.

Barton E. Morse received a telegram this forenoon from the Chautauqua Association in Portland, Maine, stating that Billy Sunday, the famous evangelist and lecturer, would appear here on the evening of August 8 on the Twin Falls chautauqua circuit. This will be the second evening of the chautauqua and will be a special number over and above the regular program, as advertised for the week.

The regular lecture scheduled for that evening by Captain Goddard, the Arctic explorer, will be given in the afternoon of the same day. Billy Sunday is one of the greatest men in America today and appeals to the masses second only to such great orators as William Jennings Bryan, Senator William E. Borah, etc. He has a great message and while somewhat speculative for a preacher yet he acts his "stuff" over in a way that the masses get it.

WASHINGTON DAILY NEWS LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The Russian's soviet regime trying to boost the world with such a deluge of news reports, even an expert to tell from the real thing—that would feel little but not more presently will cease to be worth anything.

It seems like a large order. Nevertheless, the busy correspondents of the soviet forces are attempting to fill it.

The Russian information bureau in Washington—which pretends to be purely commercial, without political interest—has the most exact the soviet government has to anything like diplomatic representation in Washington.

The report is to say it isn't true. However, the bureau might be expected to say that anyway, true or otherwise. That's part of its job.

THE European version is that the game's been going on for some time, first from Petrograd, then from Moscow and now from the soviet government.

The money made in inflation of the currency of the soviet is to be circulated in that it's used for the double
