coal in storage bins.

Heavily attended meetings of union

Babe Ruth Must Do as He Is Told, Says Colonel Ruppert of Bambino's $5000 Fine for Misconduct Off Field.

BY HENRY L. FARRIELL.
NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—"Babe" Ruth is not the manager of the New York Yankees and he does not own the club. As long as he is working for me, he will have to do as he is told. He never can dictate to Miller Huggins or to me," Colonel Jacob Ruppert, the owner of the former American League champions, said today.

KIMBERLY ON SHORT END OF BUHL CONTEST

Long String of Victories for Red Lacey's Warriors Stopped in Sunday's Contest by 4 to 1 Score; Umpires Changed.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—In a story book and almost routine victory, the Philadelphia Athletics today defeated the Red Lacey warriors of the Washington Senators in a 4 to 1 contest. The game was quite fast from start to finish and, barring one inning, doubtless had been over in less than an hour. The long and continuous string of victories which "Red" Lacey's bunch of ball tossers had enjoyed was brought to an end Sunday afternoon, when the Phils trounced their opponents by a 4 to 1 score. Nothing Like Marriage to Stir Up Interest

There is always "human interest" in the marriage of a man and a woman. It is interesting when a chauffeur elopes with the daughter of a citizen who pays a federal income tax of more than $10,000. But if a dishwasher becomes the husband of a lady whose family is given an AA rating, both in the register of society and in the register of finance, the event is a little more interesting. It is supposed that women are more concerned with it than men, but that may be disputed. Some men have been known to acquire fortunes and other men to obtain positions by reason of the women they have acquired. Whenever the daughter of a citizen who pays a federal income tax of more than $10,000, but if a dishwasher becomes the husband of a lady whose family is given an AA rating, both in the register of society and in the register of finance, the event is a little more interesting.

A man was arrested for sleeping in a Chicago theater and we think we have seen the same show. Nine men were unable to land a fish off the coast of New Jersey where boats is thrown overboard. Latest report from the movies claims a movie actor and his wife are close friends. I've seen stuff. We never told a news item from Hong Kong that we don't think it sounds like an auto horn blowing. Human nature is what makes your dog seem to have more sense than any other known dog. Just as the boys are planning for college a New York professor resigns to become a carpenter. Farm Accounting Reveals Losing Methods and Points Way to Bigger Profits.

(From Banker-Farmer)

A farm cannot properly be called successful unless it pays a fair rate of interest on the investment and returns fair wages for the farmer's labor. Agriculture is considered by all odds the most important industry in the world, and yet in no other industry is the business and so neglected. It is common to find a farmer with an investment of fifteen or twenty thousand dollars, yet does he keep books? Perhaps he may list down a note now and then, but that is not a deal, but this is of no value in an analysis of his business as a whole. No other industry, however small, is carried on without books or accounts.

Farming is a business and to be successful must be conducted in a businesslike way. The business man's mind should have indelibly printed upon it two questions: "What profit is my business making? How can that profit be increased?" To know the latter, one must find out the former; and to find out about profits requires the keeping of books.

It is not necessary for a farmer to have a course in bookkeeping, and most every agricultural college in the country has issued a simplified farm accounting book which is simple, and not a few minutes are required each day to jot down the day's happenings.

Accounts increase profits. Instances number a thousandfold where farmers have profited by knowing their business. Accounts kept by plantation farmers in this led them to improve the organization and operation of their farms in ways that added approximately 50 per cent to their net income in 1922, the seventh year they had kept accounts.

When farmers found out that for the first year they had books that cropped to livestock brought more money than when sold outright. His figures showed that his cows and horses compared with other farms in the state, he found the number of acres cultivated per man on his farm as well as the number of acres per horse, were below average. He rented more land and replanted his fields, so that the crop acres per man and horse were increased. He sold some of his acres and bought good cows. The second year his net income from the farm, after paying all expenses and interest on the money invested, had been increased over 100 per cent.

Costs can be regulated. "I have discovered," says one farm bookkeeper, "that the kind of man you have on a farm as well as the particular team, often makes quite a variation in the cost of performing certain tasks. I have learned from the pages of my book that if I could have increased the yield of my wheat field by two bushels and my corn by five bushels I would have earned a substantial profit from them."

While the farmers may not be able to fix prices on their products, they do have a voice in determining the costs of production. To reduce this cost they must first know what the costs are.

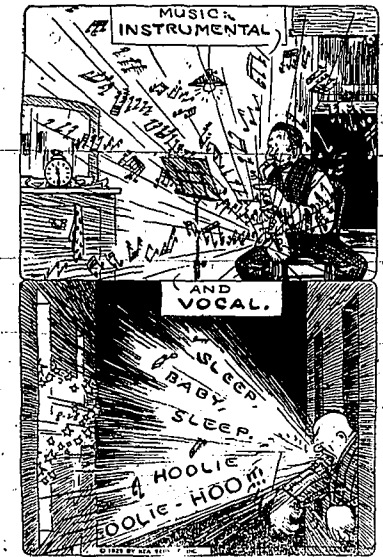

The number of farmers who are keeping books on their business has increased remarkably in recent years, but the number of businesslike farmers is woefully small when listed alongside the sum total of the farmers in the country.

Inventory is indispensable. The basis of any system of farm accounting is the annual property list or inventory. It is the starting point of the farm records. One must take into consideration decreases in the value of his property, no business man can form an accurate estimate of how he stands financially. Increased cash may be due to property which was sold, or increased debts may be due to improvements made. If a farmer is falling behind, the inventory will emphasize this fact. Often when a man is discouraged and thinks he is making no progress, his records often show that he is better off than he thought.

At the end of each year a financial statement is drawn up. This is the farmer's rating and no farmer with good financial statement need fear walking into a bank and asking for a loan.

MEN'S DRESS

W.A. Churchill, Secretary

BORN TAILORS GUILD

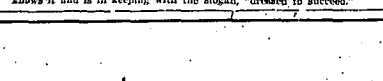

The Effect of Good Dressing

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN appeared at the French court dressed like an ordinary farmer. The treaty of alliance between the United States and France was signed against a most suspicious background of suspiciously dressed courtiers in satin breeches, gold-embroidered coats, hooded slippers and powdered wigs. The king was there in all his regal splendor. The assembly room was bedecked with the most lavish luxuries of the period.

And in the midst of all this splendor stood the American envoy in his faded old brown suit and hold-all—a shabby fur cap in his hand. This incongruous appearance was taken, both at home and abroad, as being representative of American simplicity and democracy but nothing could be further from the facts. Franklin had, it was afterward learned, ordered a suitable court costume from his tailor, one that would enable him to take his place with satisfaction among the diplomats and nobles of Europe. But the costume was not finished in time.

The effect of proper dressing is just as great upon a man as it is with women. It gives him a self-confidence and self-esteem that is not gained in any other way. The very fact that some men tend to be careless and negligent about their clothes gives an added impetus to the man who does know what to wear and when to wear it.

The American citizen of today demands a higher standard of tailoring and appearance than ever before. Each year has brought an increased fastidiousness among men. Starting with a well-tailored custom-made suit, the 1925 man selects shoes and socks a few shades darker, a hat that will tone with but not match the suit, and a tie that affords a pleasing but not pronounced contrast. He looks well, he knows it and is in keeping with the slogan, "dressed to succeed."

WASHINGTON DAILY NEWS LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Every time another country comes to terms with the United States concerning its war indemnities to the latter it becomes just that much harder for France to continue stalling off a settlement. To that extent the recently concluded Belgian-American agreement will be a most gratifying and profitable bargain for this nation, it is a good thing.

Probably it figures some sort of an arrangement when the French debt commission drops in at Washington in mid-September. The commission would look pretty foolish trying to make out that France can't do at least as well as most little-stopped Belgium.

On the other hand the French certainly will not see an equal than 200 million in interest, and in the same ratio, France's debt being earlier than Belgium's, the former would get a "one-O" amounting to something like a billion and a half—quite an item.

Foreign Clover Seed Is Found to Be Worthless

During the last five years approximately twelve and one-quarter million pounds of Italian red clover seed had entered the United States from Italian ports. This seed is classed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the state experiment stations which have thoroughly tested it as "no good." It is not adapted to the production of clover in this country.

Reports coming from experiment stations in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New York and several other states, present a body of information which leads to a most important conclusion. These are that Italian red clover seed is worthless except in Idaho and Washington, where the climate is such that the Italian red clover is not much better, and that native American clover seed is the best of all to withstand the winter weather and the attacks of mildew and anthracnose.

Strain of Early Tomato Propagated at Michigan

A new strain of early tomato is being propagated at Michigan State college under the direction of George E. Starr, assistant professor of horticulture.

"The experiment," says Mr. Starr, "is being carried out with the intention of producing a tomato that the Michigan grower can get on to the market in time to get the benefit of the high prices that prevail a week to ten days before the usual crop is ready for market."

Mrs. Peavey, candidate for election to the school board for a three-year term, has progressively interested in education in Idaho for 25 years.

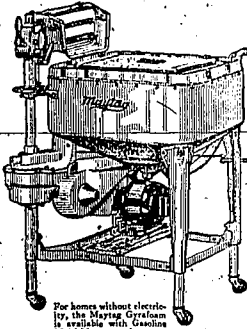

After her graduation from our state university, she taught in the public schools continuously until her marriage. She has been a taxpayer during 29 years of residence here. She is interested in the schools as a parent, having had from one to four children in Twin Falls schools for fourteen years.

Mrs. W. Zenas Smith

Mrs. Smith, who is running for the one-year term on the school board, has a thorough knowledge of Twin Falls schools from the education point of view.

Mrs. Smith received special training for her profession from Teacher Training courses at Iowa State Teachers' College, at Highland Park College in Des Moines, Iowa, and at Drake University. Previous to her marriage she had ten years of teaching experience, five of them here, and for the past four years she has done much substitute teaching. She has a daughter in school and has owned property for ten years.

For sale: The experiment includes selecting and breeding for earliness. However, size, color and quality have not been neglected and a choice, attractive, as well as early fruit is expected to result. Mr. Starr is at present experimenting on a seedless tomato.
