MAN HUNG FOR SLAYER'S OWN

Most Sensational Kidnaping That the East Has Known for Years—Has Brought Out New Jersey Police; Six Year Old Girl Missing and One Slain.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 5.—One of the most sensational kidnapings the east has known in years, which has almost cost the life of the six-year-old daughter of a prominent family, and the disappearance of a little six-year old girl, brought out New Jersey police at a noon today.

Mary was whisked away in an automobile in front of the home of Joseph A. Flower, vice president of the New York-Triple company. Then came a wild chase through city streets and over state roads to Joseph S. Sandrine kidnaping. The state finally sent Sandrine on the two cars, each with a driver and a passenger. The first car carried only a scaly sound, but it rendered him unconscious and the driver's car was overturned. The driver was killed and the car was overturned. It was discovered that the original driver of the automobile was a man named Philip K. Knapp, who was apparently murdered by the kidnaping in order that he might obtain the automobile. The body of Knapp was found in a clump of bushes under a hedge, near Little Falls, N. J., his head had been crushed.

While several persons saw the kidnaping, descriptions of him vary so much that he is described as a "blond" and in a general way as a description which would fit Philip K. Knapp, the "brilliant" killer who is still at large. Two witnesses describe the kidnaper as a white, clean shaven and with blonde curly hair.

A police of a dozen New Jersey courts and hundreds of citizens today searched the field and wooded sections near Cedar Grove for Mary.

It was almost seven hours after the kidnaping that the body of Raymond Pierce, who was at first suspected of the crime, was found. Pierce had been crushed through the back of the head and his skull crushed. The county physician estimated the man had been dead about four hours before he was killed.

Five last night Mrs. David F. Daly, the child's mother, received a telephone call saying that if $4,000 were deposited in the "only" bank in New York theatrical district that she open at night. Mary would be returned to her. The man hung up when Mrs. Daly sought to learn his name.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 5.—Four days after the kidnaping of a six-year-old girl today appeared on state troops, police and civilian posse in the search for the kidnaper in the eastern Pennsylvania and southern New York.

The murder of Raymond Pierce, negro chauffeur, whose taxicab was hijacked by the abductor, the only word to indicate that the girl may not have been kidnaped for ransom but to satisfy an insane lust.

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO CARNIVAL FIGHTS WYANS LAW ATTACKED ONE BILLION PRIMARY ISSUE IN BOISE CASE

Mayor Hyland's Principal Issue in His Campaign for Renomination for Mayor of New York is the Five Cent Street Car Fare; Plans to Spike This Issue.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Tommyham today took steps to spike the gun of Mayor John F. Hyland, hoping to render the five cent fare issue from the primary campaign.

Both branches of the municipal assembly have been called upon by Tommyham to take final action on the five cent fare law which provides that the traction companies cannot advance their fares until the people approve the increase.

At the time of the introduction of measure by Controller Craig, the traction companies refused to accept it, declaring the bill on its face unconstitutional. The traction companies stand today for the five cent fare law.

Hyland, however, had and would not vote if it were not for the five cent fare law. Hyland was the victim of another political affront when the backers of the five cent fare law, who were well known, secured an injunction restraining the city board from using the city board's name for political speeches.

Following the services, the body will be sent by special train to New York for interment Monday.

STAY IN IDAHO TO WED

The Idaho country girl has a better opportunity for marriage at home than she would in the city. Comparison of marriage statistics for city and country districts in the state by P. V. Ewing of the Agricultural Foundation reveals that whereas the number of single women in Idaho cities is about 65 per cent of the number of its single men, out in the rural sections there are more than two single men to every single woman.

An examination of census figures by Mr. Ewing showed there are 16,032 single women fifteen years and up in the cities of the state, and 15,298 males. In the rural places, or places of 2,500 population and under, however, there are 16,092 single women 15 years of age and over to 44,497 single men.

The figures also show that rural folk have a greater tendency to marry than have city folk. Whereas 63.1 per cent of the rural inhabitants of the state are married, in the cities only 61.1 per cent are found so. This is in accord with conditions throughout the United States which show that while 61.8 per cent of the rural population is wedded, the percentage for the urban population is only 58.3 per cent. The largest percentage of married persons in both the urban and rural sections is between the age period of 35 to 44 years, and the smallest between the ages of fifteen and twenty-four years.

A big factor in explaining the greater popularity of marriage in the country over that in cities is the relatively better economic position of the farmer, according to Mr. Ewing. No matter how poor the farmer's family is, almost always assured of food and shelter, and there is never the fear of losing one's job. Too, there is a greater co-partnership between the farmer and his wife than exists in the cities. The idle woman is almost unknown here; for the wife helps with the chickens, the cows and the hogs while her husband is out in the fields. And so while the city man may be financially unable to marry, for the farmer it is practically an economic necessity.

THE NEW YORK CYCLONE

There is not as much substance as might appear to the charges and counter charges in the bitter New York fight involving Governor Smith and Hearst. Hearst says that Smith intimates that Hyland, a Catholic, is a Ku Klux. Of course Smith does not but he does accuse Hyland of holding a conference with Ku Klux leaders during a vital period of the national democratic convention. This Hyland and Hearst deny.

On the other hand Hearst asserts that Smith and McAdoo met at the Ritz hotel and agreed to nominate John W. Davis. Smith says Hearst is a liar.

All this looks very much as if everybody is far away from everybody else. Perhaps it is all a matter of definition. Maybe what Smith calls a conference between certain Ku Kluxers and Mayor Hyland would, if pressed, define as a casual talk over the situation. On the other hand what Hearst proclaims as an agreement, Smith and McAdoo might say consisted of a few observations intimating that there were other candidates who would be less satisfactory than John W. Davis.

Yet it is not unlikely that whether there was a conference between Hyland and a few Klansmen or not, there was a conversation in which they understood one another. And, since McAdoo and Smith did meet, and nobody denies that they did, it is probable that whether there was a formal agreement or not, both left the conference with an understanding in regard to who would in a pinch be accepted by the other, and that this affected the final result of the building. When words have more than one definition, it is easy to affirm or deny almost anything.

IGNORE THE LAW

Twelve years ago congress presented the people of San Francisco with the tremendously valuable Hetch-Hetchy power site in the Yosemite national park, stipulating that it must be developed for the benefit of the people of the municipality and must never be transferred to private interests.

San Francisco accepted the grant and invested millions in the development of power.

When the engineers were prepared to turn on the "juice" and give the citizens power and light at the same low rates enjoyed by Los Angeles to the south and Seattle and Tacoma to the north, Mayor Rolph and the "greedy wolves" of the San Francisco council stepped in and proposed to hand over the entire project to the local power monopoly.

This was a clear violation of the terms of the grant but, nevertheless, Secretary of the Interior Work, representing President Coolidge, was asked to bestow his blessing on the deal.

Work shilly-shallied. He neither approved nor disapproved. While he hesitated to perform his plain duty and wasted time in meaningless conference, Rolph closed the contract with the power monopoly.

The right word from Work at the right time would have blocked the deal. He was weak when he should have been firm, and Rolph and the arrogant interests back of him evidently felt that the thing to do was to confront the vacillating secretary with an "accomplished fact," as the diplomats would put it.

This is not the first time the secretary has shown a

Mystic Shrine Does Great Work for the Crippled Children

Interesting Story of How Organization Took Up Steps to Relieve Distress; Chain of Hospitals Is Established Which Bars None on Account of Race or Religion; Vast Sumas Are Spent; Growth of Movement Is Phenomenal.

The sudden rise and overwhelming growth of the movement for the relief of the crippled child is probably not in a better order by Daniel Glass, in "The Shrine," the official organ of the Shrine, which meets here next Monday for state session. The movement started in the 1915 meeting by Sophie Pathy, founder, of a school of rehabilitation in favor of establishing a home for crippled children. The hospital committee wasn't ready, so the matter went over a year.

At the Portland session in 1920, W. F. O'Connell, an early advocate of the plan, who had become hospital advocate, earnestly urged the adoption of a program and merely insisting the erection of a home, but the establishment of a section of hospitals. A committee was appointed and this brought in a favorable report at the Des Moines meeting of 1921.

Sullivan Applies for Lower Rates for Packed Apples

Acting promptly on information received from the Interstate Commerce commission by Congressman Smith yesterday afternoon, as stated in The Times, Agent D. E. Sullivan in behalf of the Oregon Short Line Railroad company, co-operating with the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, applied for an emergency rate on apples. As stated, if the application is granted, the rate would have to be notified and set 30 days before for a hearing, whereas, should the road apply it could be granted at once.

identical with the erection of the Seattle Ritz Hotel's hospital at Atlanta, Ga., made what is known as the "Shrine" building, a speech which "Desert" Dist. reports as follows: "I was lying in bed yesterday morning about a week and some poor fellow who had strayed away from the rest of his band—he was a mountain lion—came upon a baritone horn—stood under my window for 25 minutes playing a waltz, and what do you think he was playing? It was 'I am Only Blowing Hobbies'."

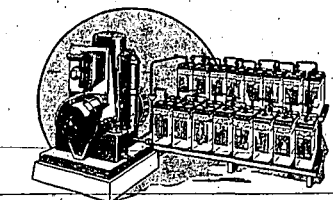

Up to December 31, 1924, investments, including land and improvements, buildings and equipment, of the five general units in operation, were as follows: St. Louis, $1,067,500; St. Paul, $1,200,000; St. Louis (12 months), $700,000; St. Paul (12 months), $560,000; Portland (12 months), $560,000. The average per cent per patient day of the above units was: St. Louis $3.91, St. Paul $3.75, St. Louis (12 months) $3.75, St. Paul (12 months) $3.75, and Portland $4.65. The average of all units is about $3.87.

The Shrine Unit. In 1922 it became evident to the board of trustees that the children of the five general units, who were in possession, were greatly in need of orthopedic surgical treatment, the father having no means of such advantage. Establishment of a hospital in its own building, with a large investment, was deemed inadvisable, so it was decided to organize a "mobile unit," consisting of an skilled surgeon, a band, nurse or superintendent, and a small staff, two wards were leased in a general hospital. This "mobile unit" arrived in January, 1923, and has since that time in the wards, which had been equipped by Alpha temple.

STAY IN IDAHO TO WED

The Idaho country girl has a better opportunity for marriage at home than she would in the city. Comparison of marriage statistics for city and country districts in the state by P. V. Ewing of the Agricultural Foundation, reveals that whereas the number of single women in Idaho cities is about 65 per cent of the number of its single men, out in the rural sections there are more than two single men to every single woman.

An examination of census figures by Mr. Ewing showed there are 10,432 single women fifteen years and up in the cities of the state, and 15,298 males. In the rural places, or places of 2,500 population and under, however, there are 18,092 single women 15-years of age and over to 44,497 single men.

The figures also show that rural folk have a greater tendency to marry than have city folk. Whereas 63.1 per cent of the rural inhabitants of the state are married, in the cities only 61.1 per cent are found so. This is in accord with conditions throughout the United States which show that while 61.8 per cent of the rural population is wedded, the percentage for the urban population is only 58.3 per cent. The largest percentage of married persons in both the urban and rural sections is between the age period of 35 to 44 years, and the smallest between the ages of fifteen and twenty-four years.

A big factor in explaining the greater popularity of marriage in the country over that in cities is the relatively better economic position of the farmer, according to Mr. Ewing. No matter how poor, the farm family is almost always assured of food and shelter, and there is never the fear of losing one's job. Too, there is a greater co-partnership between the farmer and his wife than exists in the cities. The idle woman is almost unknown here, for the wife helps with the chickens, the cows and the boys while her husband is out in the fields. And so while the city man may be financially unable to marry, for the farmer it is practically an economic necessity.

THE NEW YORK CYCLONE

There is not as much substance as might appear to the charges and counter charges in the bitter New York fight involving Governor Smith and Hearst. Hearst says that Smith intimates that Hyland, a Catholic, is a Ku Klux. Of course Smith does not, but he does accuse Hyland of holding a conference with Ku Klux leaders during a vital period of the national democratic convention. This Hyland and Hearst deny.

O the other hand Hearst asserts that Smith and McAdoo met at the Ritz hotel and agreed to nominate John W. Davis. Smith says Hearst is a liar.

All this looks very much as if everybody is far away from everybody else.

Perhaps it is all a matter of definition. Maybe what Smith calls a conference between certain Ku Kluxers and Mayor Hyland would, if pressed, define as a casual talk over the situation. On the other hand what Hearst proclaims as an agreement, Smith and McAdoo might say consisted of a few observations intimating that there were other candidates who would be less satisfactory than John W. Davis.

Well-it is not unlikely that whether there was a conference between Hyland and a few Klansmen or not, there was a conversation in which they understood one another. And, since McAdoo and Smith did meet, and nobody denies that they did, it is probable that whether there was a formal agreement or not, both left the conference with an understanding in regard to who would in a pinch be accepted by the other, and that that affected the final result of the balloting. When words have more than one definition, it is easy to affirm or deny almost anything.

IGNORE THE LAW

Twelve years ago congress presented the people of San Francisco with the tremendously valuable Hetch-Hetchy power site in the Yosemite national park, stipulating that it must be developed for the benefit of the people of the municipality and must never be transferred to private interests.

San Francisco accepted the grant and invested millions in the development of power. When the engineers were prepared to turn on the "juice" and give the citizens power and light at the same low rates enjoyed by Los Angeles to the south and Seattle and Tacoma to the north, Mayor Rolph and the "grey wolves" of the San Francisco council stepped in and proposed to hand over the entire project to the local power monopoly.

This was a clear violation of the terms of the grant but, nevertheless, Secretary of the Interior Work, representing President Coolidge, was asked to bestow his blessing on the deal.

Work shilly-shallied. He neither approved nor disapproved. While he hesitated to perform his plain duty and wasted time in meaningless conference, Rolph closed the contract with the power monopoly.

The right word from Work at the right time would have blocked the deal. He was weak when he should have been firm, and Rolph and the arrogant interests back of him evidently felt that the thing to do was to confront the vacillating secretary with an "accomplished fact," as the diplomats would put it.

This is not the first time the secretary has shown a

Mystic Shrine Does Great Work for the Crippled Children

Interesting Story of How Organization Took Up Steps to Relieve Distress; Chain of Hospitals Is Established Which Bars None on Account of Race or Religion; Vast Sums Are Spent; Growth of Movement Is Phenomenal.

The sudden rise and overwhelming of the local temples at great expense of the movement for relief of crippled children under the auspices of the Shrine is graphically told in a brilliant article by Dudley Glass in "Desert Post," the official organ of the El Rosh Shrine, which meets here next Monday in state session. The movement started in the 1919 meeting by Noble Kitchin, founder of the Shrine, who offered a set of resolutions in favor of establishing a home for crippled children. The Imperial council was not ready, so the matter went over a year.

At the Portland session in 1920, W. F. DeWald, Keadick, an early advocate of the plan, who had become Imperial potentate, earnestly urged the adoption of a program not merely involving the erection of a home, but the establishment of a system of hospitals. A committee was appointed and this brought in a favorable report at the Des Moines meeting of 1921.

The Winding Speech. Strong opposition to the suggestion was voiced in some quarters at the Portland meeting to the appointment of the committee, which was the first of the Shrine, who had been identified with the erection of the South Pacific Mason's hospital at Atlanta, a noble what is known as the "Blowing Babies" speech, which "Desert Post" reports as follows: "I was lying in bed yesterday morning about 4 o'clock and someone called who had strayed away from the rest of his kind; he was a magnificent performer upon a harp, he stood under my window for 25 minutes playing a solo. And what do you think he was playing? It was 'The Only Blowing Babies'."

"And after a little while, early next morning, I thought of the child that underling minister of the early morning, and wondered if there were not a dear youngster in the tent who was playing for Shriners; an Only Blowing Babies."

"We meet from year to year; we talk about our great order; we read reports of the hundreds of thousands of dollars which have been contributed and our visitations are as though great mosques erect

SEED SEALING OFFICERS ARE NAMED TODAY

Ralph Bristol, Assistant State Agronomist, Appoints Men to Take Preliminary Step Toward Certification of Alfalfa and Clover Seeds.

Plans for the sealing and certification of alfalfa and clover seeds in Idaho have been completed and the officers charged with the work have been named.

Officers in charge of the seed sealing for the Twin Falls tract and also of the resealing of the alfalfa establishments in Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hamon and Marquette, Idaho, are as follows:

Mr. Bristol expressed the hope that the seed producers and cleaners would cooperate by giving attention to the requirements of sealing of the alfalfa in order that they might make the necessary minimum quantity to take care of the situation.

Threshing of clover and alfalfa in the Twin Falls tract will be completed and further information from the state department will likely be made public before it starts.

FEDERATED GROWER SOCIETY MAY COME TO TWIN FALLS

Meeting Here This Afternoon is Addressed by Agent of the Organization from Salt Lake City.

A meeting of growers, which comprehends the organization in this county, was held at the home of the affiliate with the Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers' association, in Boise, held at the office of the distributor, C. C. Company this afternoon and addressed by Director Hart of that city.

The director, who arrived this afternoon from Salt Lake City described the organization as a representative, non-profit association, and said that it was a federation of growers, cooperative associations.

He said that there were 15 cooperative societies in Utah connected with it and that it was nationwide in extent.

Fruits of all kinds, vegetables of various sorts, including potatoes, are handled. He said that in the event the organization is formed, it should be completed satisfactorily, a man would be stationed here, most sales were direct, 75 to 85 per cent.

Time of starting it was stated today by W. Orr Chapman of the firm of Bothwell & Chapman. The company has brought action of such notes against Tom Kato, E. J. Finch and Sylvester Nowlan.

Now we would advise that fellow to get a pair of spectacles that would read the scales alike the first and second time. Some one says we had better be careful in making such remarks, we might be called to tell the Judge who we have reference to. Now Mr. Wheat Buyer, if you don't like our way of talking it just start something and we will tell you who we mean. We don't believe in those slight of hand performances in order to get business. We don't have any trouble in getting our share of the business on the Old Piano Style from Square and Upright. If you know anything wrong about our methods tell it. We want to know. We can't afford to be wrong, that's all.

Testing Wheat. Mr. Farmer, when you get wheat tested by more than one buyer, to be fair to the wheat buyer you should have the sample tested at both places, as one load of wheat may have a different test from some other part of your field. We have heard this remark, "Wheat tested different out of the same field." Nothing miraculous about that. We know of some boys by the same father and mother that don't test near alike. Furthermore, we know of more than one instance where a wheat buyer tested a load or two and found that the farmer was quitting him and selling to the other fellow. He called the farmer and told him he found he had made a mistake, that his wheat tested higher than he had told him the first time.

I CAN'T AFFORD IT. A conservative person would like to own an automobile, but will say, "I cannot afford it." There are many things that a conservative man or woman would like to own, but wisely realize that his or her finances make it possible to "go ahead and buy." And so it is with many follies in need of dental attention. They will say, "I cannot afford to have it done." That, in this instance, the longer one puts it off, the more expensive it becomes to both one's own health and his pocketbook. With my dentistry offered at the very lowest fee, in keeping with the very finest dental materials and workmanship. YOU CAN AFFORD IT. GOOD FOR $1.00. J. H. GASPER, Dentist. 118 Main Ave., North. You buy a horse. It looks like a million dollars. But when the "hop" wears off you find it a broken-winded, spavined old nag. That's no bargain.

You buy a tire. It looked fine in the dealer's window. But in a few weeks it develops shoulder breaks, blowouts and all the other ills to which tires are subject. And that's no bargain.

Goodyear Balloons (Made with SUPER-TWIST)

are the one real tire bargain of today. In spite of the high price of crude rubber.

You Pay. Only a little more than a year ago. Less than half of what you paid a few years ago.

You Get. Double and triple the mileage of a few years ago. Comfort you never dreamed of before. Economy through fewer auto repair bills. Safe, sure All-Weather traction. The finest, best-looking tire ever built. We have your tire in the size you want at the price you want to pay.
