

SENATORS TAKE FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Champions Gain Lead From First; Holding Pirates to One Run

Johnson Pitches Initial Game for Senators and Holds Pirates to Score of 4 to 1, While J. Harris of the Senators, and Traynor of the Pirates, Each Score Home Runs; Attendance Over 41,000 Persons.

FOURTH FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7.—(Special) Johnson pitched to the benefit of his pitching arm before fifteen spectators in the fourth field this afternoon and the Washington Senators defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of the world series, 4 to 1.

The ace of the Senators' champions mowed down the three-runners, landing after hitting, fanning ten and allowing only five hits. One of these was a rather fluke home run by Traynor into the temporary stands in third.

Lee Meadows started for the Pirates and pitched rambly but had one inning in which the Senators hit him for four singles that brought in two runs. This occurred in the fifth after Joe Harris had started the scoring in the second with a home run into the right field boxes. Johnny Morrison replaced Meadows who was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth but the worst champion never threw his final run.

Before the mastery curves and smacking that ball of Johnson the Pirates failed to make fast hitting. They started a rally in the eighth that drove the crowd wild but it fell short.

Johnson pitched with perfect confidence and was never in danger. He only threw three wild pitches. In one he hit Max Carey, Pirate captain, twice with a pitched ball. The second of the pitched balls was a wild one that drove the Pirates to a stop. Johnson's first wild pitch was a wild one that drove the Pirates to a stop.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

When Dutch and Swedes Fought on U. S. Soil

When Gustavus Adolphus, the great king of Sweden, saw the success of other European nations in planting colonies in the New World, he resolved to America. Accordingly he formed a colonizing company for that purpose, but his death prevented the plan from being carried out.

Queen Christina and Osmunden, Adolphus' zealous minister, however, renewed the project and in 1638 they sent out a colony of "pious, strong, industrious people" who settled in what is now the state of Delaware and called it New Sweden. There they built a fort, which stood near the present city of Wilmington, and they named it Fort Christina in honor of their queen.

The new colony was soon in trouble. This ground was claimed by the Dutch, who had settled New Amsterdam a quarter of a century before. In 1642 several years of bitter dispute between the Dutch and the Swedes, Peter Stuyvesant, the choleric old governor of New Amsterdam, in 1654 sent an expedition to the trouble by expelling the Swedes.

In 1654 Stuyvesant sailed from New Amsterdam with a fleet to capture Fort Christina. Washington Irving, in his "Holland in America," tells how Governor Stuyvesant called upon Gov. John Bingham to surrender, how the proposal was scornfully rejected, and how the Dutch fought a battle, following their ancient rule of always fighting upon a full stomach at a misty dinner in preparation for the fray. Then, according to this tradition, "drifts of wrath and cabbage" they moved forward to the attack. Just before reaching the fort they paused, lighted the pipes, ate a fatious puff and charged gallantly under the cover of the smoke. After an heroic struggle, in which Governor Stuyvesant valiantly fought Governor Bingham in single combat, the fort was captured by assault without the loss of a single man on either side.

Although we cannot accept Irving's story unreservedly, the assault on Fort Christina must have been something of an opera bouffe affair, despite the angle of warfare. But the triumph of the Dutch was short-lived, for in 1664 the English took possession of all the Dutch colonies in America and the British gave up Fort Christina. To day no trace of the fort remains, but nearby stands the little gray stone church, built in 1685, the successor of the chapel in the fort where the Swedish colonists worshipped, as a reminder of the fort where since Dutchmen and Swedes fought in America.

CROWD HEARS WORLD SERIES PLAY BY PLAY AT THE TIMES

TWIN FALLS DIRECTORY MAN MAKES CHAIRS BY GAME FOR TIMES

The elaborate and clever contrivance for illustrating the progress of the game which delighted readers of the Times this afternoon, were designed and constructed by James H. Smith, who is here setting up the Park directory of the city and county, and who is an ardent baseball fan as well as a hand for unamba and places of residence.

A large crowd gathered to follow the first game play by play from the mezzanine by Henry Thoms, who gave the details of the game in clear cut fashion so that every one knew what was to expect and what play to expect. The new scoreboard, made in the Times office, helped very importantly in following the game in detail. This board shows the better and his progress in the game play by play.

Our object issued who brought the game to Twin Falls is that he had a position as if it had been played right here.

The public is invited to the game for the balance of the season. Second game opens tomorrow at noon.

Phone 765 of 35.

Under conditions that could not have been ordered more perfect, the Senators and the Pirates went into the first game of the world series.

The park was flooded with bright sunshine and there was no such warmth in the exposed sections that the fans stripped off coverings. The benches section in center field was filled to capacity before the first.

The Washington club began the first on the field. Buckie Harris led the parade from the dugout and the players.

The champions were all togged out in new grey uniforms.

After Bill McCrechia, manager of the Pirates, had announced to the press box that Leo Meadows was going to pitch, he sent Vic Aldinger, the former Chicago star into front to warm up.

The band played the national anthem and the field was cleared for action.

The lineup:

- Washington—C. Carey, 2b; Moore, 3b; Harris, 1b; Goin, cf; Judge, ss; Barnhart, lf; J. Harris, rf; Traynor, dh; Hueso, c.
- Pittsburgh—Moore, 2b; Hueso, 3b; Goin, cf; Judge, ss; Barnhart, lf; J. Harris, rf; Traynor, dh; Hueso, c.

America's First Golf Club

It has been said that golf was played on the Pacific coast in the sixteenth century by a band of old sea captains. However, the St. Andrew's Golf club of New York city, formed November 28, 1888, was the first golf club in the United States.

SENTIMENTALITY AND CRIME

Already a web of sympathy is being woven around the Oregon convicts who shot their way to liberty. Instead of lawabiding people insisting that the law take its course, maudlin sympathy is going over the records of the murderers to find some excuse for cheating the gallows.

Sentimentality and kindness and psychotherapy are all very well, but they do not bring to life the 11,000 men and women murdered last year in these civilized United States. Model jails do not protect or comfort the families bereft of father or mother nor provide for the wife whose husband fell to the pistol of some casual bandit.

INCREASING INTELLIGENCE

While the population has increased 70 per cent in the last half-century the college population has increased 700 per cent. The institutions of higher education are so crowded that there is a real effort being put forward to limit the opportunities to those who show in their lower work an appreciation of the advantage.

So fast has the growth of education been that not 10 per cent of the present college student body has college educated parents. The last few years have shown an unprecedented development of higher education.

A NEW WORLD'S TITLE FOR THE UNITED STATES

Our national annual fire-loss is $535,372,782. This is equal to about $5.02 per capita. As against this, the annual per capita fire-loss in Great Britain is 72 cents; in France, 49 cents; in Germany, 28 cents; in Australia, and Italy, 25 cents; in Switzerland, 15 cents; in Holland, 11 cents.

Commenting on these comparisons, the publication, "Safeguarding America Against Fire," issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, recently opened an editorial with these observations:

"World titles are no strangers to America. The soil of America seems fertile for their birth and the spirit of America favorable for their nurture. Only among the concentration here of the 'bests' in this and the 'highests' in that, there are, unfortunately, a few 'worsts'—'world's worsts'.

Only by comparisons is a figure of the magnitude of $535,372,782 comprehensible. Let us try to visualize our fire-loss in relation to our national wealth.

Our national annual output of gold and silver, as last reported, is $99,627,535; our production of these metals, $103,119,741. Our fire-loss is five times either of these figures.

As a people, we produced an economic wealth of $1,900,287,000 in our corn crop in 1922. The next year we wasted more than 28 per cent of that amount by fire. Our 1922 cotton crop represented an economic wealth of $1,192,461,000. Our 1923 fire-loss wiped out 44 per cent of that sum.

We produced $864,138,000 in wheat crops in 1922. The next year we wasted more than 61 per cent of that amount by fire.

Our whole oats crop in 1922 was valued at $487,548,000. Our 1923 fire-loss was greater than this whole sum. We paid our Government in 1923 internal revenues, excluding income and inheritance taxes, totalling $309,015,050. We wasted by fire that same year more than half again as much as Uncle Sam collected in these revenues.

It's a costly championship we hold—this one of the "world's worst wasters by fire!"

NEGROES BY ROBERT STEAD

OUTSIDE OF "THE COOL PURCHASER," "THE HONESTEADERS"

"No, she didn't just say that. But she's big, you know; takes a big view of things. Of course, it might have come that in those circumstances after afternoon it rained and we couldn't work in the fields and that night she and I went to dance."

"Oh, nothing much. It was about noon when we got home, and the little man was pretty sore. He told me I thought a good deal of Nellie and wouldn't mind marrying her if I came to that, and I asked her to come over here and that he'd next summer get a house."

"I suppose Spook's hatling suit, with the white and yellow, is quite a bit of a sight."

"That isn't fair. It is merely the other or getting kind."

"I don't know. I can't not know. I have seen Spook since then. Perhaps he's dead. Perhaps he's dead. Something awful may have happened."

"Oh, you're dead watching it, too. But something has happened. I—I can't say you were in the night."

"Hard to lower in the two-foot foot. Not at her room to borrow her. It's snowing, and the wind is strong. There's no snow."

"I was about to summon up a secular remark when something in his face stopped me."

"I turned my eye back toward him. 'Only she was in the night.' 'When did you miss her?'"

"I turned to a window, peering through a little bare spot in the pane. Outside the air was a 'look like' type day," he said, quietly as though trying to disguise the import of his words.

CHAPTER XIV

"Next morning I was stirring my oatmeal and water when the door opened and in burst Jack. His attire gave evidence of haste; he had thrown a garment about his shoulders and his face was pale."

"I was about to summon up a secular remark when something in his face stopped me."

"I turned my eye back toward him. 'Only she was in the night.' 'When did you miss her?'"
