TWIN FALLS BEATS PAYETTE'S RECORD

Some few weeks ago we published an editorial clipping from the Boise Capital News which stated that the record production on potatoes was made by Payette and this record was 759½ bushels per acre. At that time the Twin Falls Times doubted that this yield was larger than any yield in Twin Falls county and now we have the proof.

Walter Coiner of Hansen had two and three-quarters acres of potatoes last fall which yielded 1350 bags averaging 105 pounds to the bag. This makes a yield of 862½ bushels per acre or 493 bags to the acre. This ground was measured by M.-C.-Clear-of-the-Twin-Falls-Canal company and the potatoes were bought by DeLong and Cryder of this city.

We hope that the Capital News will correct their error and state the facts and give Southern Idaho credit for what justly deserves. Twin Falls county has held this record production for years if we understand production records at all.

POLITICAL PLOTTERS PLAY IN BORAH'S SHADOW

You know there is no better little "eat-to-the-ground" in Idaho than Ray McKaig. And there is no better example of it than the fact of his timing his "Borah-For-President" call just a day or two before he knew that John Hart would succeed in getting Joe Peterson to fling his second best hat into the senatorial arena. If you know Ray you know the reason why.

In speaking of Joe Peterson's "second best hat" we speak advisedly. Joe cannot well afford to go to Washington for about half what he is making in his law practice and it doesn't look as though he intends to make much of a bluff at it. But Joe probably did it all for his friend John, who just wanted to see what might happen if someone should openly come out against Gooding for the nomination. It is understood that there is a candidate for governor in Twin Falls and a candidate for attorney general in Boise who are already slated to stick their heads up as soon as John sees just what happens to Joe's head. All of these men are among the so-called "friends of Borah," as John is, and as Ray McKaig has tried to be.

Now comes an erstwhile friend of McKaig's to raise the question: "Is McKaig now trying to play in with the anti-Gooding wing of the Republican party?" We hadn't thought of that—but the suggestion does recall the recent liaison between Scott Hall and McKaig. We remember that "the friends of Borah" in a session or two of the legislature have flirted with Scott Hall. Well, you do it anyway you like it.

Those who attended the Lewiston convention where John Thomas was made to succeed John Hart as national committeeman, will admit that it was not so easy a change as John Hart could have made it. In spite of twelve years in that honorable position he did not wish to pass. It must not be forgotten that previously at a Coeur d'Alene convention a combination of ex-service men had John Hart on the skids and all ready for a ride when John Thomas and the friends of Gooding said to Hart, "If you still want to hang on a little longer we'll help you." They did. He hung on. But there is always an end. It came.

It is historically recorded that "the friends of Gooding" once saved John Hart at Coeur d'Alene. It is likewise recorded that "the friends of Gooding" insured an easy nomination for Borah at Idaho Falls. It is to be expected that both of these statements will be denied in public. However, some of those who are the friends of Borah are going to see that the "friends of Gooding" get the helping hand when it is needed. There are some mighty good men on both sides. They will try to see that Gooding is repudiated if he wants it and if there is nothing more against his record than has been dredged up.

There will be a lot of talk spread about "Gooding's stock shipping." There will be many a scared-head raised to frighten the timid. There will be other candidates heralded as "splitters of his natural strength." All of this happened to Borah in 1924, without avail. There will be many who say "Frank Gooding hasn't one man in Idaho who he can really call a friend—nobody likes him." But that is the stuff of which senators seem to be made. We don't know of a man who can really call Senator Borah a friend—unless it pleases Borah at that particular time. After all, Borah said that during the next six years he only has God to answer for his actions! It is safe to say that he only picked on God because he knew he would have a very silent partner.

Now tell us what you think about it!—Idaho Pioneer.

LIBRARY MEET ON BOOKS HAS LARGE CROWD

Various Works Recently Received Are Reviewed: Two Delightful Musical Numbers Are Given Between Brief Talks.

Over two hundred people met Saturday in the high school auditorium to listen to the program of music and book reviews put on by the public library. In calling the meeting under Miss Jessie Fraser, the librarian, said, "A work of art is beauty desirable in itself; that object would be, but rather to ask the opinion of readers of some of the outstanding books in different departments" regarding such works.

The meeting opened with a solo by Wilton Peck, to which Mrs. Peck played the accompaniment. Mrs. J. H. Stever followed "Thunder on the Left," by Christopher North, a work which was pronounced parallel and fascinating, which had been read three times with increasing interest, but the conclusion of which evoked the reader. The title was based on the folk interpretation that thunder means lightning, but the poet indicated that the note he gave came measure to convey and we should ponder carefully to find out what it is.

"The Italian Soviet Republic," by James D. Williamson, who deplored that while it was intended to fairly present the case between the Bolsheviks and their foes, and in a technical sense did so, he showed an undue bias toward the Bolsheviks in the handling of the notes. The book was condemned as presenting that viewpoint with execrable bias, but reading of some other acrey on the other side was urged in order to get a balanced view.

Mrs. C. C. Kimball told a charming story of the poets which she had heard give readings during her stay in New York City. These included Rudyard Kipling, Ernest Gruen and others. The personal touch in the review added much to its interest.

A piano solo by Mrs. C. G. Brown was received with continued applause, as a vocal solo by Mr. Peck had been, on the policy of making the program short prompted response by an audience.

Missions in India

Mr. H. G. Humphrey read a paper on his trip to India, "India—Life of Christ," by Burton Jones. The talk has to do with missionary labor in India and growth of Christianity there which much exceeds the growth of population. The main idea is to emphasize the fact that India is ripe for conversion and to take into account the hindrance and the obstacles in the path among whom missionaries work, to show that all the best in which they believe is included in the life of Christ and that it can be applied to conditions in one country as well as in another.

Professor's House

"The Professor's House," by Willa Cather, was subjected to a searching criticism by Mrs. E. L. Johnson, who told the story and developed the plot, or explained the situation in a most vivid style. The work evidently presents a most interesting study in psychology, without that degree of pedantry which would discourage reading.

R. F. Parry presented a somewhat gloomy picture of "Six Years in the Malay JUNGLES" by Wells. The qualifying "somewhat" in this case has no reference to the life of a jungle dweller, but to the author's method of relating to the discontents of living in a place where life is not the product of ill-bred, stulte, primitive folks, when it is more in an attempt to live a year in a jungle and where the mercury runs up to 170° Fahrenheit, bearing a few other illustrations, it would seem to be a nice place to live.

Miss Helen Caldecott, a teacher in the public schools, gave a most interesting description of the French play:

IF YOU Treat Wheat with

you are doing all you can to insure your crop.

Controls seed borne diseases, increases germination, vitality and yield. Not a single case of smut was reported last year where the Semeasan dry treatment was used. It is necessary to sow as much seed as possible to save as much seed.

Semeasan is the only scientific seed disinfectant, it is compounded by the world's best chemists to accomplish results.
