

Gerald Chapman Must Die Says Board of Pardons; Personal Appeal Fails

State Claims His Life for Death of Patrolman; Decision Reached in Deliberations Lasting Less Than An Hour.

WETTERSFIELD PRISON, Hartford, Conn., April 5.—Gerald Chapman made his final plea for life today—and lost. The state board of pardons listened to the calm, slim man dressed in prison gray, who has become one of the country's most amazing figures, here for half an hour with the denouement of a scholar falling, but less in an effort to win reprieve or pardon—then after brief deliberation, refused the plea.

No such dramatic day has been seen in Connecticut legal circles in many years. First Chapman sat silent and awaiting written notice for half an hour with the denouement of a scholar falling, but less in an effort to win reprieve or pardon—then after brief deliberation, refused the plea.

FIFTH AVENUE YEMASHI
NEW YORK, April 5.—(U.P.)—Gerald Chapman, who today everybody knows what every body else has known in the way of a life for a crime, was today indicted by a grand jury in Cleveland. The board of pardons, which began deliberation at 1:30 after Chapman had been taken to the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., and returned to Hartford, Conn., on April 4, voted unanimously to grant him no further lease on life.

Chapman was in his prison cell when he had to face the state board of pardons. No word came as to how the board, received the news that he must hang at midnight in the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., on April 4.

The board of pardons, which began deliberation at 1:30 after Chapman had been taken to the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., and returned to Hartford, Conn., on April 4, voted unanimously to grant him no further lease on life.

THIRTEEN STATES JOIN IDAHO IN FILING BRIEFS WITH FEDERAL COMMISSION
WASHINGTON, April 5.—Fourteen western states today demanded that the interstate commerce commission consider the "rate reduction" and three quarters per cent now guaranteed to railroads by the transportation act. In order to relieve farm depression.

A brief filed by the states asked the commission to refuse the request of western carriers for increases in freight rates which would tend to enable them to make the allowed profit on operation.

Five and one-half per cent was included in a maximum by the states, which contended that the carriers were not entitled to a guaranteed carrying higher than economic conditions permit. Agriculture was "severely depressed" the brief pointed out. It was filed jointly by Arkansas, California, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nevada, North and South Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin and Idaho.

The Illinois commerce commission, the Chicago Association of Commerce, the "Pacific Coast" Vegetable and fruit growers and other organizations also filed briefs in opposition to the railroad.

The briefs were filed in preparation for a hearing here May 19. The western carriers, prices, investigation and the freight petition for a horizontal price increase.

MENCKEN TO TURN NEWSBURY IN FIGHT OF BAN AGAINST OBSCURITY
BOSTON, April 5.—Henry L. Menckens, editor of the American Mercury, will turn Newsbury, here this afternoon, to the author, to be turned over to him to prohibit sale of the alleged financial number of his magazine.

After a conference with his lawyers, Menckens notified the Rev. J. Francis Chase, secretary of the Watch and Ward Society, that he would sell a copy of his "indiscreet" magazine at Park and Tremont streets at 2 p. m.

Chase, through whose efforts the magazine was barred, told Menckens to be active in "defense of the press" at that hour.

BANDIT PLEADS FOR LAST HOUR COMPUTATION

Preserves Composure While Asking Mercy Although Fatal Hour; But Half a Day Away.

WETTERSFIELD PRISON, Hartford, Conn., April 5.—Gerald Chapman stood in the shadow of the gallows today and pleaded with the Connecticut board of pardons for his own life.

Less than 11 hours were left for the bandit to live, should his efforts fail, yet he sat calmly and steadily as if he were merely a lawyer pleading for some client—a helper perhaps—the man found his last fight for freedom.

BUHL TAKES BASKET BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Propose to Challenge Pennsylvania Team for National Girls' Honors

BUHL, April 5.—Buhl high school girls' basketball champions for their sex in the northwest, are eager for an opportunity to annex the national title and Monday were taking steps to challenge the Sharon, Pennsylvania high school claimants of the national championship, for a series of games to decide last summer.

The local girls copied the northwest winners who they defeated the co-ed of Edinburg, Washington. Buhl school here Saturday night in handily fashion by a 21 to 12 score.

Arrangements for the contesting of the national championship are in a purely preliminary stage, and Coach Harry Barry was not prepared to state whether the Buhl girls will consent, or whether the challenge will be accepted by the eastern school.

In the contest Saturday night, Edinburg started with a rush and fears were expressed that the visitors would reverse the decision made on Friday night by the Buhl girls. As the quarter ended, the visiting sextet had a 21-point margin, the score standing 11 to 2.

Buhl came back strong in the second round and, playing in excellent form, succeeded in bringing the visitors reeling during the quarter while Buhl took the lead with 15 points.

The Buhl girls are particularly pleased with their work, since this is the second year they have annexed the northwest title and view the prospective series with the Pennsylvania team with a little confidence.

FORMER TWIN FALLS COACH BOOSTS PILOT

Baseball Manager Praised By Former Coach Ed Edens in Letter to Twin Falls Times. Zambach, SHIP Develop New Material in Southern Idaho.

Former Coach Ed Edens of Twin Falls high school, in a letter to the California Times, commending the new baseball manager for the Twin Falls Class C baseball team. Coach Edens has been intimately acquainted with Zambach several years and speaks with authority concerning this new pilot for the Twin Falls team.

Edens is Coach Edens' letter to the Times and to the people of Twin Falls who know Mr. Edens very intimately.

"In the first place, his playing experience stands him in good stead for this particular position. He at one time was pitcher for the Detroit Americans, and in his first appearance was pitched against Walter Johnson. He has also played on the Pacific Coast in Seattle, San Francisco, and has been with professional teams in Denver and elsewhere. I feel, however, that his years of experience, teaching the University of California baseball team will help him most and also the Twin Falls club in developing players. It is my guess that the newly organized team will want to develop young players and that is exactly what Carl has been doing for the last ten or eleven years. When he was playing professional ball he also coached the university in the off season.

Regular Fellow,
"One other thing on which I wish to point out is that he is a mighty fine fellow personally, and his habits and character are clean and above reproach. He is far from being a common ball player.

"I am more than interested in seeing Twin Falls succeed because I know what a fine bunch of sports the community is made up of and I know Carl is exactly the type of fellow who will be to and for. I want to recommend him most highly in all my personal friends and trust that he will give him as royal reception and the best treatment as he did me during my stay in Twin Falls."

PLENTY OF WATER

There is no need for alarm over the water situation so far as the upper Snake river valley is concerned. The water has never failed and the two years within the last forty when water was not up to the average in supply will be remembered as two of the best years in the agricultural history of Idaho, with abundant crops, planted, cultivated and harvested under ideal conditions and returning to the crop makers a good price, all of which contributed to good business conditions.

This section of the state never entered into a dry season under better conditions than the present. The fall was such that opportunity was taken advantage of to put the soil in good condition. Late rains and snows impregnated the soil with moisture, which will be drawn upon as the seasons warrants and with the soil in the shape and condition that it is there is no reason why the future should not be looked forward to with every assurance of an abundant year, a big acreage, a big yield and a profitable return.

Nature has been kind so far this season and with seeding well along and the soil working fine and an early spring, work well advanced and with an April first snow and rain storm adding further to the moisture and with every reason to look forward to more spring rain and snow, the people of this section of the state have a right to prepare, plan and look forward to another season of prosperity, fruitful crops and to this time every reason to look for a fair and equitable price to be paid for the result of their labor.—Idaho Falls Times-Register.

This agrees with the following statement on the same situation by Dean E. J. Holdings of the horticultural department of the state, which, however, applies rather to less favored localities than to the Twin Falls tract:

"There is no reason for great alarm, because reports from water masters and from the higher altitude districts where reserve snow supplies summer run-offs indicate a reasonable yield, and there is yet hope of rain and snow to make up for anticipated shortage. The general situation, however, shows a prospective water supply perhaps below normal.

"The crop plan for the year should be selected with the above observations in mind. There is yet time in many irrigated sections to trim our sails to meet the situation. Cultural methods to conserve moisture will help in many sections. This especially is applicable to the non-irrigated sections and to those districts that normally have a limited water supply. Early planting of crops not easily affected by frost will help meet a water shortage situation."

TRADE WITH RUSSIA

While political jockeying goes on in Russia; while selfishly imposed policies hamper Russia's economic rebuilding inside its own borders, and while the persistent effort to propagandize the world for communism goes on, draining the vital funds of the country for that purpose, there appears to be a diligent, far-seeing group of business heads silently, yet effectively, going ahead rebuilding the business structure long in decay. Russian trade with the United States is on the upgrade. Until recently Germany and Russia had not established a steady trade; orders have been placed in France and Great Britain. With none of these nations has Russia been able to make any definite or permanent trade agreement, although secret trade and political agreements have been charged, with some grounds for the charges, says an exchange. Russia will not be able to establish working agreements until its government more nearly conforms to the business principles that trade treaties must encompass. The need for trade treaties in the end probably will supplant the politician, and in the end Russia will be a business-conducted nation.

In the year ending last September the Russian trade with the United States amounted to $100,767,657. This was nearly double that for the preceding year and breaks all records. Russia was not a heavy trader with this country in prewar times, as in 1913 the total business transacted was only $16,000,000. In 1925 the United States shipped to Russia $87,088,022 in goods, while Russia sent to this country goods valued at $13,679,635. Cotton took the lead in our exports, with 297,618 bales, valued at $4,281,833.

Lack of business cannot be held up as a call for recognition of the soviet government. However, general recognition will make possible greater and swifter development of the vast resources of Russia, which will be of first benefit to that country, with general industrial benefit to the world. Russia's trade today is in spite of the soviet government, not because of it.

STOMACH WAS DOUBLED UP SAYS PORTLAND MAN

At Least That's the Way A. R. Kelley Says It Felt, But Karnak Fixed Him Up Fine From Head to Foot.

"I tried on many medicines and treatments without getting any relief that I had just about come to the conclusion they were all bunk, but he gave me when I got Karnak I saw right away, for this medicine has fixed me up as fine as a field from head to foot," declares A. R. Kelley of Portland, Ore., just off of a long business trip.

"Why, before I got Karnak I could hardly eat a meal without having pain through my stomach afterwards that would almost double me up, and I had to stop eating for a while. I was always bloated up with gas, which just crowded around my heart until it seemed like it would press out of place, and just made it seem like a trip hammer. I was always throwing sharp pains in my back and side in the region of my kidneys, and I felt you nothing says a person can't be in this kind of condition all the time. "My sleep was broken and restless and mornings I felt so weak and sore that I was barely able to drag myself out of bed. And the bad part of it was, would anything give me relief. "But when I found out about this new medicine, Karnak, and that a person could get his money back if the first two bottles didn't help him, why, I knew there must be something in it. I started right in on the medicine and I want you to know, it has sure done the work. "Why, my appetite is so good. I just eat like a starved fish now, and get nothing hurts me one bit. All that pain and soreness has gone from my stomach and from my back and sides. I feel like a man made new. Why, my stomach is in such good condition I just feel like I could digest milk now. I sleep like a top every night. Just feel fine in a fiddle in every way, and am telling everybody I see what a remarkable medicine Karnak is. Why, I'd back this medicine to the hilt any time."

Karnak is sold in Twin Falls exclusively by the Schmidt-Johnson Drug Co., and by the leading druggist in every town.
