Ogden Pitcher Takes Set From Mound in Eighth When Bears Threaten.

(Special to The Times)
OGDEN, June 30.—The unique spectacle of seeing a pitcher "jerk" himself from the box was provided by Ogden baseball fans who turned out yesterday to see the Gamblers down the Twin Falls-Pullman aggregation by a 2 to 1 score.

Cooper, who had told the brained pitcher that the "shut" walked from the box in that inning when it appeared that Zambuto's batsman had hit his stride and was in a fair way to knock up a good innoball game.

It is believed the big heaver felt himself weakening and thought he had better retire by this one. He then came back to his place and things ended to the satisfaction of the Ogden delegation.

But to knock took the mound for the brains and forced well except for one bad inning.

THE NATION OBSERVES FOUNDERS' DAY TODAY

Some years ago Gladstone, a profound student of government and of history, surveying from the perspective of a century, the achievement of the founders of the American republic, declared that these founders were the wisest body of men ever assembled at a given time to advance the interests of the human race.

The leaders of the period of the Revolution have never been equalled by those of any other in the building of a nation. The times called for courage—and they had it. They called for patience and perseverance—and they possessed it. But they called above all for wisdom—and they had that in a superlative degree.

The men who argued the case of the colonies in the preliminary stages of the Revolution were intellectual giants capable of coping in debate on governmental problems with the foremost statesmen of England. Otis and Adams could only be answered by the rattle of musketry. The "Summary View" of Jefferson furnished the arsenal on which even an Edmund Burke was pleased to draw for ammunition in fighting in the Parliament against the oppressive policies of the Crown.

They, who formed the Constitutional Convention, were ripe in wisdom, and deep in the crucibilities of the science of government. They knew all governmental forms that were ever tried, and knew strength and weakness. To most of them, the past paraded by and they saw the pitfalls of other times. They were familiar with the political philosophers of all ages, and had the practical wisdom to select the features that were in harmony with the genius of the American people.

Thus they drew on all the wells of wisdom from those of ancient days to those of Locke.

What a marvelous galaxy! Washington, the moderator, Jefferson the philosopher, Madison the scholar, Hamilton the builder, Ellsworth the compromiser, Jay the thinker—practical idealists selecting with unerring wisdom the material for the building of a state capable of withstanding the passions of men, reconciling their conflicting interests, and meeting the necessities of the changing years.

They built for the centuries because they built on the elements. Their genius was in their prescience, and their putting aside of the non-essentials.

These men were marvels—they knew how to build a dream on the realities.

WARNS OF FOOD FAMINE

Unless the exodus from the farms to the cities and population centers of the country cease there is danger of a lot of us, if we do not actually starve to death, we will be very short in the matter of food.

Dr. A. C. True of the United States department of agriculture says that we are in very grave danger of a food shortage, if not an actual famine, unless the tide of migration from the farms to the city is stopped.

Last year there were almost a million more people went from the farms to the towns than went from the towns to the farms, and the proportion is increasing.

"The matter of farm abandonment is quoted as a very serious thing so far as the economic conditions of the country is concerned, for as the cities increase in population and the farm population decreases and the price of food advances, crime will increase the country over."

Dr. True may be right, but there are lots of folks who will oppose him in the statement regarding food shortage to the point where they will be actual danger of starvation or a shortage enough to cause real suffering.

The old law of supply and demand is still on the job and going strong, and it stands to reason that when some of these folks who leave the farms for the cities and towns become real hungry and are unable to make enough to sustain themselves in comfort, they will beat it back to the farm where they are sure at least of enough to eat.

It is true, no doubt, about it, that there are fewer people on the farms than there were a more ago, but it is also true that there are more better people on the farms of the country than then and this ratio will keep on increasing.

Agriculture and farming are getting out of the day but the class, so far as actual drudgery is concerned, with the constant increase in the use of labor saving machinery that will help produce far more with less effort and expense than in the days of not so long ago.

CONCEALING OF PROPERTY IS CHARGED

Edward J. Williams Will Go Judgment from Frank DeKlotz for Auto Injuries, Tries to Show Court That Defendant is Hiding His Interests to Avoid Payment.

Hearing started this morning before Judge W. A. Babcock in the case of Edward J. Williams against Frank DeKlotz in an effort by the plaintiff to show that the defendant has property which he conceals. The nature of the property alleged to be concealed is not set forth in the pleadings, but Mr. DeKlotz was questioned closely in regard to the property relations between himself and Williams. Williams has a judgment for some $600 against DeKlotz, on account of injuries received when the car driven by DeKlotz struck an auto which Williams was driving last fall on the road near Curry.

CHAUTAQUA IS ENJOYED BY LARGE CROWD

One Speech and Concert: Music Program Pleases Lovers of Music and Carried by Large Crowd. Many This Afternoon Give Numbers Tonight and Thursday.

Wednesday evening, Philharmonic program, followed by recitation, followed by the recitation of Herbert Louis, Irish humorist, who, without pretense of originality, put over quips and many sayings in a way that was quite interesting. Following the serious afternoon address of Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, the program for the day was continued.

The John Hows Reed Concert company, which made a detailed bill last winter in their lyricum appearance, gave a most appreciated musical program in both afternoon and evening. Various numbers were given by Mr. Reed, his sister and his wife and all brought hearty applause.

Before the regular evening program, James W. Evans, parent of the children who are training for community singing for the celebration July 30, Mr. Evans played a part of the time to James D. Whelan, secretary of the Jefferson Athletic association, who briefly explained that this is a public work, for promoting to uphold the principles of the Federation of Independent and assisting in securing Monticello as a national shrine. He said T. A. Lloyd, secretary of the committee, would be pleased to take the plaques of any or all, and their names would be permanently retained in the shrine when received.

In his closing program, Mr. Evans put the audience into a happy and co-operating frame of mind, which resulted in a commendable rendering of the athletic program.

This afternoon there is a large crowd at the tent listening to the Philharmonic ensemble of classical and popular music. The large number who would go to hear the music in any event, was appreciably increased by those, who have heard Director Captain Hurdline say that Director Captain Hurdline has one of the three finest violins in existence, are gratifying their curiosity to determine what sort of a contraption a Paganini violin might be. One old fellow said he had it was a new name for a cornet-like fiddle and old string bow, of which he had hung but which he had never seen or heard.

PETERS CASE IS STILL MYSTERY THOUGH HE IS BELIEVED TO BE ALIVE

Although several have reported that they have seen K. S. Peters, whose disappearance near Death Valley June 1 has created much commotion, nobody has seen him or heard from him directly. The latest report is that of C. T. Griswold, who writes H. L. Bess that he met Peters at Ash-ton a couple of weeks ago and talked to him directly. He is generally believed that Griswold, who knew Peters well, was not mistaken. "My theory that it was on his way to Canada to receive his pension is correct. His car will not be arrested before September in the summer court, which will not pass on it until months later, and a man would afford no protection should the defendant be acquitted, when the extradition treaty would cover the offense.

DIMONTON, Alberta—Continuation of the new Roman Catholic college in this town is to be located in the city college. It is to be started immediately.

Earthquake Does Little Damage in California State

The shake came on the anniversary of the great temblor which shook down buildings and did heavy damage.

BUHL CHAUTAUQUA OPENS WITH PLAY

Splendid Attendance at First Evening When "Pollyanna" Is Presented. Six Days of Solid Talent Will Appear in the Town.

BUHL, June 28.—The Buhl Chautauque opened last evening with a good sized crowd to listen to "Pollyanna." The drama appeared with a splendid cast. The first night's production and the presentation of the same girl, "Mighty" will be presented the closing night and the John Hows Reed concert company will appear this afternoon and evening. Mr. Saylor is superintendent and has had a number of friendships already in Buhl.

When the Philharmonic orchestra visits our city on the third day under the direction of J. C. Handley, one of the most unique numbers that Chautauqua has ever brought will be heard by all audiences. Mr. Burt impersonates the composers of the music presented by the orchestra.
