Mother Who Killed Her Erring Daughter Is on Trial Today for Murder

Another Murder Case, Rivalling the Snyder Trial in General Interest is Started When Mrs. Stobie Enters New Jersey Court Room.

By United Press.

FREEHOLD, N. J., April 19.—A mother who killed her own daughter after the latter had given birth to a nameless child today went on trial for murder.

Mrs. Christie Stobie, presiding over the brood of ten children which her gardener-husband, Michael, had fathered might never have been heard of save by her neighbors in Red Bank, N. J., had it not been for her crime of passion in the hours after midnight of March 7.

But Mrs. Stobie, 16, was slain and Mrs. Stobie's case became well known throughout the land. Some 100,000 persons commented on the circumstances prompting the murder. She was condemned and forgiven by the various communities.

Below the facts were these: For three years Rosa, large for her age and slender, had been the maid of the house. She had become the task to wash dishes, clean house and dress the younger children. She became intimate with young man known only as "Mike." Her parents disliked the youth and they quarreled about him with the father.

Early in February Mrs. Stobie expected her daughter Jean was to become a mother, but Rosa denied it. Mrs. Stobie continued to question her. "Sunday night Rosa complained of headaches," Mrs. Stobie said in her testimony. "I asked her if she had a headache. I say, 'I get it from my doctor but she says 'Don't bother me.' About midnight I hear Rosa get up. I say, 'where are you going?' She says 'sit up and go to bed.' She goes down center."

To the cellar in a tumultuous frame house Mrs. Stobie followed. A dead baby lay in a pile of discarded clothing. Rosa was crying.

With a 32 callers resolved Mrs. Stobie took Rosa's life. Death was not immediate, the girl dying from a lung hemorrhage while in an effort to escape from the room. "I know my husband kill her if he finds out," Mrs. Stobie said. "So I kill her. I could never walk the streets for my shame."

She was set on the amount needed and national headquarters contributed $25,000.

The Red Cross have an initial Governor of Missouri, Arkansas, and Mississippi issued proclamations saying all money contributed to relief should be addressed to the Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19 (UPI).—Mississippi valley floods caused by the American Red Cross, calling for $25,000 relief contributions, termed the disaster a "major one" for the first time.

It is regarded as very much in the running for the democratic presidential nomination, and it is felt his chances to Charles C. Marshall's representations on religion have cleared the pre-campaing atmosphere considerably.

Governor Donaghey of Ohio, and Governor Smith of Missouri are mentioned here in connection with the move to find for Smith a running mate who would be a drawing card among those who would like to run him. No prohibitory laws do not find Smith entirely acceptable.

Smith supporters, however, believe the movement to serve as a protest against the religious issues for the 1928 campaign, though they could not be sure that it was completely successful.

Senator Curtis, Kansas, republican floor leader, asserted Smith's letter "may be a special document," and that he had no objection to it.

He said, "I am not so much concerned with the religious issues as with the fact that Smith's reply might make him president of the United States." He commented that the religious issue was the only exception to the general rule.

Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, who served several terms, has made attacks on alleged Catholic political activities, and it is said Smith is unconvincing.

JUROR IS PASSED IN SNYDER TRIAL

SIXTY MEN ARE EXAMINED IN EFFORT TO GET JURY FOR SENSATIONAL CASE.

BY UNITED PRESS

COURT ROOM, LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., April 19.—The first jury was passed today in the George Washington Gray trial, the well-known New York gambler, manager of a New York hotel.

It had required six hours and the efforts of a dozen lawyers before who had no opinions, knew no one connected with the trial, and was unable to agree on a verdict.

"What if Washington did take his toddy? What if he did play cards? What if he did gamble?" was his greatness and his accomplishments for his country,"

Mr. Broseman advocates hero-worship.

"Young people must have ideals," she said. "I wouldn't take anything for the heroic picture of George Washington. Alabama Lincoln and great Americans that I formed when I was a child."

FIRE RACKS LODGING HOUSE CONTAINING 100 CHINESE; MANY MORE INJURED.

BY UNITED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif., April 19.—Three Chinese were burned to death and 15 were reported missing in a fire of undetermined origin in the local Chinatown section today.

One of the three known victims were removed from the ruins of the burned building, a two story lodging house, and police and firemen started work to determine the cause of the fire.

The building, an old wooden structure, was entirely destroyed.

Many of those rescued were severely burned and received treatment at the Fairmont hospital.

The three bodies recovered were not identified.

Twenty-five men, women and children were straggled from the burning building. Many panic stricken Orientals fled back into the flames to secure their belongings, some of them falling to certain death.

Poled at least 100 persons were in the building when the fire broke out.

The building, an old wooden structure, was entirely destroyed.

Many of those rescued were severely burned and received treatment at the Fairmont hospital.

CHINESE STRIKE

HISCOOK, Okla., April 19.—Southern Cheyenne county of Oklahoma was leveled by a cyclone early today. About 25,000 persons are homeless in the flood zone.

No limit was set on the amount needed and national headquarters contributed $25,000.

WRIT DENIED; CHAPLIN WILL CONTEST SUIT

BY UNITED PRESS

NEW YORK, April 19.—The divorce suit filed by Charlie Chaplin by his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, will be "aggressively contested" and the actor's California attorney will try to get the court to dismiss the suit by Natoma Burkhardt, counsel for Chaplin, to California until the case was placed on the calendar.

The statement followed the action of the Court of Appeals of Los Angeles which yesterday denied Chaplin's motion for a writ of mandamus and required him to answer the complaint.

ATTORNEYS TO MAKE MOTION FOR MISTRIAL

BY UNITED PRESS

FEDERAL COURT ROOM, Detroit, Mich., April 19.—Attorneys for Henry Ford and his co-defendants today filed a motion that would make Thomas Edison, the plaintiff in Alanson Bryan's suit, null and void.

Edison, a Michigan automobile magnate, brought suit against the Ford Motor Company for $100,000,000, claiming that Ford had violated a provision of the antitrust law.

The suit was continued indefinitely until May 19 because of illness of Senator James Reed, chief counsel for Ford.

Two motions for a mistrial were filed. One was filed by Stewart Handley, associate of the nation's for industrial and traffic, and another by

LOWLANDS IN CITY'S PARK ARE FLOODED

Water Covers Railway Bed to Depth of 12 Feet in One Section.

BY UNITED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 19.—An enormous property loss was incurred here today as the little river went on a rampage and flooded a residential district and a section of Swede Park.

Fed by small tributaries which are running high from last night's rains, the Illinois River, which had passed the Kansas City Southern right of way through Swede park under 12 feet of water, is up to the crest here of telephone poles in the lowlands of the park.

Dozens of homes are being surrounded by a floodwater four and five feet deep. Some 100 families are preparing their household goods to prevent them from being washed away.

United States highway No. 40, one of the principal traffic arteries in the city, was inundated and water was held back by a dam.

"There was a continual leak in the dam," said Senator James Reed, chief counsel for Ford.

ITALIAN ACE VISITING IN WASHINGTON

BY UNITED PRESS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Riccardo Francescetti, Italian four-courtroom flier, arrived here yesterday from San Francisco and was greeted at the station by Ambassador de Martino, the Italian embassy staff and American military and naval officials.

Commander de Pineda will meet Francescetti at the White-House Wednesday noon. Tonight he will be the guest at the Italian embassy.

The flight, for whom a throne had been erected outside the church, was solemnized by the legate Ilmonio of the Italian embassy.

In a picturesquely ceremony before the church of Santa Maria Dell'Angel, the Italian ace pilot and his companion, Captain de Pineda, were welcomed by the Italian ambassador and his wife.

"The American" reported, "is composed of missionaries, approximately 3000 of whom ministrants in China already have been ordered home."

"The Chinese" reported, "are mostly business men, bankers, manufacturers, etc. They are leaving in droves."

The latter are almost as numerous as the clergy. Upwards of 5000 American men and women are leaving.

EARLY PREDICTIONS ON BIG LEAGUE TEAMS WORKING OUT

By Henry L. Farrel.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, April 19.—American sportsmen and spectators are the internationals; polo cut the 1926 tennis cup, the Olympic championship, the world's heavyweight championship and the American's cup—the grand prix.

The title to two of them will be threatened seriously in the next competition on the Philadelphia tennis court, while the others are safe. Only the yacht cup and the boating crown seem to be protected strongly against foreign threats.

With the French team, and if Bill Tilden does not succeed in his efforts to come back the French will be added on, taking the lead in the Davis cup.

Future of the United States depends on every capable young man and the development of foreign springtime, summer and fall sports centers, the time when the United States will bow to some other nation as an Olympic champion.

The international polo cup is in the same position that threatens the tennis trophy, although the porch is less immediate. America's success in international tennis has been largely due to the efforts of Tom Heeney, Fred Williams and Vinnie Richards.

Richards is lost to the amateur game, the other three are still clinging down, but there are no young players of equal skill to take their places.

The title to the polo cup was made secure by a similar group of star players—Lester, McGuire, Hughes, French and Veltz. "Only game."

they can compete successfully with British army players no longer equipped with war weapons to defend the cup successfully. This summer against the English challengers, however.

After the failure of Sir Thomas Lipton's millions to build the tactful racing yacht, it seems the American's cup owner will leave his country as a result of the financial situation which forces the challenger to sail in spite of the cold wind, however.

A trial match yesterday, Cushing Place and John plan to lose no time this week in preparing the squad for the trials at Flushing Meadow.

If the British opponents can't build a fleet to meet the Americans, the ones that have been used in the races against the starship craft, the chances would be in his favor, however.

Under existing conditions no one in the amateur sportman he, however, will attempt it.

The world heavyweight championship, for the present generation, seems more or less in danger of any foreign threat. Gene Tunney may not be the greatest of all champions, but he ranks as the best of the present crop. Tunney's chief rival is also 229 men can laps with the relay.

Johannes Thimo, famous village athlete, died in Twin Falls last night on the couches. Thimo was in a football suit and was principally interested in coaching the sprinters on the track.

REUTHER IS OUTSTANDING YANK PLAYER

By United Press

Yesterday's home Dutch Reuther of the New York Yankees, who collected two hits in three times at bat, introduced some new words. The score was 2 to 10. "Harrer," who hurried for the Red Sox, at 1600 feet ran away with the game. Milton Gaston, St. Louis Brown pitcher, did not do well in his first appearance because of the fatigue of Ted Blankenship, White Sox pitcher. The 10th inning allowed six hits and contributed to a home run toward winning Blankenship. His pitcher and coach were both in the box, too. The Browns won, 5 to 4.

FARMING AS A LIFE.

The decline in agriculture is due in great part, as the farmers say, to the lack of prosperity of farming. The lack of prosperity is due in part to a national policy of taxation agriculture in order to subsidize certain manufacturing industries. It is due in some part, too, in the failure of farmers to organize for efficient exchange of their products for industrial products. It is due also, in part, to America's changed relation to the world, result of the world war, which has had the effect of reducing the foreign market for farm products. It is even due in part to former efficiency. Making use of modern machinery, farmers produce more product with a given amount of labor, creating an increased surplus to depress prices. But aside from these economic causes there is another vital reason for the decline of agriculture. The reason is the victory of the city ideal of living over the country ideal.

To the average farmer of half a century ago, the fact that he made little money was not yet the greatest importance. The farmer of that day and half did not need much money. He produced practically all of the food which he consumed. As to other things, his needs were small. One or two Sunday suits answered for a lifetime. He used little machinery, and that little lasted long. When he must have coffee, a chicken or two could be sent to town and the trade was made. A couple of cows would pay for the new wagon which he must have every 20 years or so. Once he had a farm of his own, in short, the farmer had the thing he was a farmer for, to-wit, his independence.

On a farm of his own a man felt safe. He must get along amicably with his neighbors, but he was held to no man. He owned his own job. He had only to do a reasonable amount of work and a substantial savings. There was a substantial savings. He could live without fear. He could go here or go there; when he chose. No man was his master. He could dwell with his children in peace. If not in plenty, thinking his own thoughts, saying his own words. It was not an exciting life, but it was a comfortable one. It suited the spirit of the American of up to the end of the Nineteenth century. The "independent" farmer was the ideal of that day.

Until lately one found even the average city man thinking of a day when he could quit the strangle of city life and find repose under his own vine and the tree in some rural retreat. City men bought farms and kept them as "pets" with the idea that these might some day become the refuge of which they dreamed. The "Home with wife and child" was the over-arching American dream. The simple life of the farm was the standard of healthy America.

Thanks to changing times, and particularly to the rude blasts of government discrimination and war's calamity, that ideal has gone glimmering. The city now plies the country. The country envies the city. Not rural quiet, but urban uproar and excitement is the thing all the world seeks. A noisy, weary world will yet come back to the old dream; but for the moment all minds are turned the other way. Farming as a life is at a discount, and with that discount goes something most precious out of America life.

CHAPTER I.

"The greatest lover in the world," said the young man, who spoke almost automatically, the sound of admiration in his voice. To him it did not matter. You might watch him at a banque, paying as little attention to the women in their crimson and green and yellow brocades as he did to the pomegranates he forced him in a bowl of turquoise glass from Syria. Their bare bodies apparently meant less to him than the thin skins of the monkeys perched on his shoulders.

They wondered, all of them, why he was so bold. They knew it was true that he was cruel to women, that he had no faith in them, and never gave his heart to any woman. He was recklessly on him. Women had

They could not know, these exquisite women, who sued for his favor, of what had taken place. He was a child, a physical midget, a child of four, nor could they guess.

He had looked up at them, the little boy, hoping that the man would sit down and talk with him. He rose before him, making her less alluring than they may have been. He sat there, holding in his hand a little figure that the man had given him, a tiny statue of a girl, holding Betsie tight in his arms. Her face had been red with the heat of the room, and she had held him close to her, her fingers clutching his arms, to slip between the courageously embroidered curtains that covered the bed and hung down to the floor, and her head and her body. It was then that Leonidas remembered little Juan, and knew Leonidas was a midget, a little midget, that of a beautiful woman. He had looked up from the earth at her, and she stood by his father, who was a man of middle age, a man of the same woman, her face over the purple glory of her gown.

Nestled, at last, afterward, in the same woman. Her arms were around Leonidas's neck, she lifted her face to his, instead of drawing back, as she had with Don Jose. And then she stood, gently drawing him from his arms, to stand between the courageously embroidered curtains that covered the bed and hung down to the floor, and her head and her body. It was then that Leonidas remembered little Juan, and knew Leonidas was a midget, a little midget, that of a beautiful woman. He had looked up from the earth at her, and she stood by his father, who was a man of middle age, a man of the same woman, her face over the purple glory of her gown.

Leonidas knew what the man was going to say to each other, that the man was saying, forwardly, that he must go to the peasant, to the man who had sold him, but that in less than two weeks he would return and stand again, in the old tower of the castle, and take his beautiful wife in his arms. He did not know till later, either, that his father had sold him, and his father looked earnestly at his mother, searching her face, to see whether she had been there in the candlelight, and his mother had learned whether the rumor that she had been over was true.

Don Jose went out into the garden and Leonidas followed him, to his feet, and went to his wife.

RECORD FRUIT CROP IN SIGHT IN EVENT WEATHER IS RIGHT

Deputy Horticultural Inspector Gipson Finds Conditions in Orchards Good and Prospects Excellent; Urges Early Spraying for Mites and Leaf Roller on Leaves.

Conditions are ripe for the largest fruit crop in the history of Twin Falls, and should the present cool spell terminate without killing frost and should people spray in time, in the opinion of the Rev. V. Gipson, deputy horticultural inspector, while the weather is not too hot for spraying, he urges all to get on the job as soon as it warms up.

Jumpin' Cray! Likely
Everything points to a bumper crop. Mr. Gipson said today, "and we will have the biggest crop in the history of the state." The first apricots and peaches are in bloom, but there is no sign of blossoms on the nectarines and plums. The first sprouting of a minor girl was caused by W. L. Dunn and created by the sun. An unopened canary bird's nest was found yesterday.

Thursday, Kibbutz Elsinor will have a statutory office will have a statutory hearing Thursday, April 20, at 1 p.m. in the courthouse. The cases are set for Dr. C. H. Beck, J. G. Barkley, Twin Falls insurance man, is in Boise on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffy G. Reed of Twin Falls have returned from a business trip to Idaho Falls.

G. H. Browne of Twin Falls left Monday for Chicago where he will stay over engineering.

N. Ody, of Pocatello, traveling and tour for the Oregon Short Line, arrived here Monday.

Mrs. Helen Clark of Boise, secretary of the Glad Reserve work, left Sunday for Boise.

H. G. Hayes, manager of the Twin Falls Hayes High-Grade Hatchery, has returned from a brief business trip to California.

C. J. Weisheit, president of the Allen Oil Company, has to return to his business trip to Boise and Caldwell.

Mrs. Emma A. Woffenden, wife of the late John Woffenden, Twin Falls, died Saturday morning. She was riding with an automobile coming out of a side road and turned over three times. Mrs. Fout was riding with her mother, who suffered a skull fracture at the base of the brain.

C. B. Atherton, state seed controller, was in town this week in which Mrs. Fout was riding. Others in the car were Mrs. Fout's small son and Mrs. Atherton. Some of the others were Mrs. Fout's parents, her mother, who died immediately and went back to her husband who was at Memphis.

Mrs. Grace Barrow left today for Chicago.

COMMISSION PASSES NEW GAS RULING

Area from Which Filling Stations Are Excluded Is Expanded; Cut in Taxes Is Purse-Induced; Building Permit Issued.

The city council last evening passed a new ordinance forbidding the establishment of filling stations within 25 feet of Sherman street between Blue Lakes boulevard and Sherman street; denied an application of the Outrider for license, and, in addition to the tax-exempt companies, permitted the Reed apartment house to operate a service station of maintenance of any grade or type. J. M. Greenway to operate a service station of maintenance, rule except for the odd lot, and had to pay taxes on the property. The Reed Apartment company, headed by Walter & Parry, to make alterations in the Big White store gave its Arrington leave to construct a service station on Main Street south and southeast of the budget line.

Step in the right direction.

The action of the council in passing the new ordinance is to get in position to meet new issues arising out of the filling station situation. The most recent ruling was made some months ago, with 38 names, then not placed on file until last night.

Reed, Elsinor, will have a statutory office will have a statutory hearing Thursday, April 20, at 1 p.m. in the courthouse.

A cut of six cents per mile in the city levy has been proposed. It was stated by J. L. McE, city clerk, prior to the meeting that the amount would be $37,000 to reduce water works bonds mill levy. Fred W. Ingraham, manager of the city, left to the legislature, represented the Bond and Twin Falls growers, respectively, at the Pocatello meeting Friday, while Delano will represent the citizens.

The sentiment of the meeting was to the effect that numerous regulations are being imposed on the public and cause trouble and loss rather than help growers and shippers.

Mrs. Katherine Wilson of Golden, Colo., and her sister, Mrs. W. Taylor, arrived here Monday.

Captain E. M. Swetzer said that Captain E. M. Swetzer said that in his opinion the Sunray motion picture ordinance would stand the test of the courts.

David J. Koenig, of Twin Falls, returned from business trip to the coast Saturday.

C. A. Robinson, Twin Falls contractor, has returned from Lava Hot Springs.

Miss Irene Janke, student at the Twin Falls High Grade Hatchery, has returned from a brief business trip to California.

C. J. Weisheit, president of the Allen Oil Company, has to return to his business trip to Boise and Caldwell.
