When President Decorated America's Hero

America's welcome to its hero of the Atlantic air flight was brought to a climax in Washington last Saturday when President Coolidge presented Co. C, 42nd Infantry, with the Distinguished Flying Cross at the monument grounds. This is the first picture of the event to be published in this state, and was rushed to 'The Times' by airplane and special mail delivery by NEA Service, of which The Times is a member.

LINDY SHOWS DODGE TRICKS TO NEW YORK

Slips Away From Crowd to Chat With Fliers; Keeps Rich Waiting.

By MORRIS HE HAVEN THAYER. Lindy and his companion (Continued) NEW YORK, June 14.—Colonel Charles Lindbergh showed New York today that it is not so big but that he can get away from it.

Unknown to anyone, he slipped out of his apartment at 4:50 a. m. today and went, in company with Captain Richard Dwyer, to Currier field to spend an hour among the airplanes and the flying men whose company he so much desires. He had breakfast at the club at 7:30 a. m.

Cops Know of Trick. It was not until 10 a. m. when he returned to his apartment here that anyone excepting four policemen who stood guard at the entrance to the apartment knew that Lindbergh had been away.

Lindbergh came back accompanied by Dwyer and "Casper" Jones, a well known aviator, who makes Currier field his headquarters. Ten photographers met Lindbergh at the entrance to the apartment house and he obligingly posed for the photographers.

As he passed through the door a photographer followed him and set off a flash light in the apartment lobby. Lindbergh, for the first time, showed annoyance.

"Let's have a little more co-operation here," he snapped at the photographer. He then retired to the apartment where he had ordered his plane to be suspended the morning engaged in business consultations with Jones, Richard E. Moberg, of the Great Aircraft corporation and possibly others.

Special of Millionaire. Soon after Lindbergh returned to his apartment the review of 100,000 people in the Grand Central Park was called off because of rain and a tubercular boy in the New York City hospital died at 12:30 on a substitute.

The flier and his mother were the guests of Charles H. Brown, chief of the Postal Telegraph company, at a dinner reception and dance at the Mackeray lounge, 42nd street.

He kept the Morgans, the Lamonts, the Gargers, the Howells and the Howells and others of New York's 400 waiting almost an hour, his late arrival in New York having delayed the whole program.

YOUTH HERO OF PEN BATTLE

Wanderer Rescues Sheriff, Halts General Escape of Illinois Murderers.

JOLIET, Ill., June 14.—A 23-year-old wanderer, John Bell, today was acclaimed a hero through his efforts yesterday to prevent escape of the four desperadoes being held in the Will county jail for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter Klein of the State prison.

One of the prisoners was killed, another was dangerously wounded, one escaped, and one was recaptured.

The four men, known as the most dangerous ever housed in the county jail, made their way to a temporary freedom by cutting a key from a piece of bone.

They overpowered guards and obtained weapons from the arsenal of the jail and then seized Sheriff Albert Markgraf and forced him to enter his own motor car.

It was then the alarm spread.

MIDWEST COLD, SIX ARE DEAD

Mercury Slips to Fifties and Storms Are Blamed for Deaths.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—The entire midwest today was experiencing unprecedented chilly weather, according to United States weather bureau reports.

Following two days' rain which extended over several midwest states the thermometer slipped to the middle fifties and was forecast to remain here or sink lower.

At least six deaths were attributed to storms. Three were killed by lightning near Dallas, Texas, yesterday. Near St. Joseph, Mo., rain dimmed a wind shield, causing a driver to slide his car in front of a passenger train. Three were killed.

Snow was reported at Ottawa, Kansas, and in the extreme western portion of the state.

State agricultural experts reported harvesting was being seriously interfered with by unseasonable cold and rain.

MURDER FIEND EVADES SLEUTHS

WINNEPEG, Minn., June 14.—Although the murderer of a woman and a girl here, the stranger murderer, always evades the combined efforts of American and Canadian authorities to capture him.

With rewards totaling $1,500 offered, additional agents today joined in the search for the man.

It was established that the man believed responsible for the two crimes was the same man who was charged with the State office for murdering a woman on the trail of the stranger murderer.

MISSING FLIERS MAY BE FOUND

QUEBEC, Que., June 14.—The provincial government today received a report from a forester in the De Saint Germain district of northern Quebec, north of the Saguenay river, that strange signal fires had been seen in that region at 9 p. m. Saturday.

The forester reported the flares were of a kind that indicated that they were not made by Indians who are the only inhabitants of that district. They were bright and came at regular intervals from a district beyond reach of the forester's immediate observation.

In view of the possibility that the flares might have been made by Captains Nitzsche and Col. missing aviators, the Quebec government was endeavoring to verify the report and indications were made will send aviators to investigate.

Patriotism at Ballot Box in Suppression of Crime, More Work for Unskilled Other Pleas of President at Memorial Dedication

By PAUL R. MALDON. United Press Staff Correspondent. WICKER MEMORIAL PARK, NEAR HAMMOND, Ind., June 14.—(United Press.)—What America needs right now are increased educational advantages, crime suppression, some old fashioned patriotic devotion, more work for unskilled labor and patriotism at the ballot box, President Coolidge declared in a speech here today.

Dedicating the Wicker War Memorial in the heart of this industrial section with great audiences and mills all around, the president traced the development of the United States in the last few years and intimated what he would like to be.

Meat and Drink For Plant Life

Dear Jimmy:

New things are always coming up in connection with running a garden—new theories, devices, fertilizers and plants. Some of them are good, some bad and some indifferent. When I run across one in the first class I like to tell my friends about it.

One of the best of the comparatively new devices that I have seen is a special hose nozzle which contains a soluble and concentrated fertilizing preparation. In operation, the water passes through the hose in the ordinary way, but before it leaves an spray it passes over the chemicals and is enriched by them. As a result the plants are fed as well as watered.

While this device is applicable to many kinds of gardening, it is especially valuable for the spraying of lawns. It is inexpensive, refillable, and altogether a worthwhile addition to your equipment. Quite likely you have heard of it, but without an actual trial you can't know the half of it, as they say in the vegetable.

Yours always,

GARDNER

Splendid Work Being Done by Garden Clubs

One well-kept yard in a block with gardens gay with flowers, a vegetable garden so neat and dignified it looks edible even before the vegetables are gathered, inevitably induces neighbors to start bringing theirs up to the standard. One well-handled yard reveals the shortcomings of its neighbors so glaringly that a general improvement program is bound to come.

Garden clubs have become a popular social as well as civic factor in all the larger towns of the country. The spread of these clubs has done more to beautify cities than any other factor, and the growth of these organizations is only well attested.

Garden clubs are of various characters ranging from those of distinct social aspect to study clubs composed of small groups of earnest women who seriously study plants, garden design, culture, and who do their own gardening. Other organizations make their garden efforts a part of city-beautification programs, making public works such as the planting of parks, playgrounds, school yards and other public institutions.

It has become a prime requirement in most of these garden organizations that the members shall be able to qualify as dirt gardeners—and do not trust the beautiful program, unless public works such as the planting of parks, playgrounds, school yards and other public institutions.

A House for a Wide Plot

This house might be regarded as an ideal lesson for those who finally have that successfully designed house must be absolutely symmetrical; that the doorway should be located in the exact center of the front elevation and that each window on one side must be balanced with another window exactly opposite.

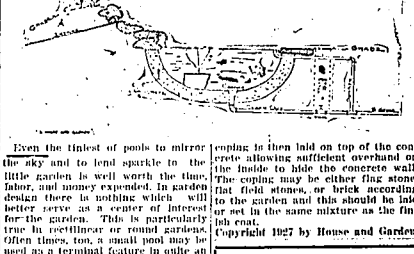

Here we have an extremely good house, architecturally speaking, with in design is directly opposite to theory. The entrance is located in one corner of the central section and built out to the front. None of the windows is balanced on either side. However, we need but one good look at the sketch to appreciate the excellence of design.

Entering the house through a small vestibule, two rooms, a square hall from which the dining room may be entered. Looking into the living room, we see that it is rectangular in shape, has four windows, two of them French and opening on a terrace, and at one end a fireplace flanked by built-in bookcases, facing the dining room. We note that it also opens on the terrace. Connected with the dining room is the kitchen, which is reached through a breakfast alcove.

Coming back into the stair hall from the dining room and going down, we find a small study. Next we come upon a single bedroom and bath. At the end of this corridor is the door communicating with the garage.

By way of the stairway in the entrance hall we go up to the second floor, which, we find, contains three bedrooms and two baths. One bedroom has its own private bath and the other two rooms share a bath from either. William D. Postec, was the architect of this house and Copyright 1927 by House and Garden.

CONSTRUCTION OF A SMALL POOL

Even the finest of pools to mirror the sky and to lend sparkle to the little garden is well worth the labor and money expended in garden design there is nothing which will better serve as a center of interest for the garden. This is particularly true in rectangular or round gardens. Often times, too, a small pool may be used as a terminal feature in quite an effective way.

The construction of a small, simple pool need not be an expensive one. Many have been constructed of half barrels sunk to the garden level, filled with water, and planted, although these are not as pleasing nor as effective as a larger pool constructed of stones and concrete and supplied with a jet of running water.

The design which is reproduced above is self-explanatory. The site is excavated to a depth of at least three feet, the sides being kept smooth, and free from projections and holes. If the soil is clay the excavation should be deep enough to place at least six inches of either fill under the concrete for adequate drainage. The next step is to install the piping in such a manner that the water may be pumped to the required shape. This can be done easily if the concrete is not set until the piping is in place and set (the time required is about forty-eight hours) a finish coat made of one part cement and two parts sand moulded to the required shape. This may be finished rough or smooth or polished as you wish, and may be trowelled on to the inside. This may be finished rough or smooth or polished as you wish, and may be trowelled on to the surface to give the desired texture. The coping is then laid on top of the concrete allowing sufficient overhang on the inside to hide the concrete walls. The coping may be either fish scale, flat field stone, or brick according to the garden, and this should be laid or set in the same mixture as the finish coat.

Hard Job Steering

Fifteen-year-old Robby was given a new hubbed for his birthday which he coasted down a hill some distance across the field. Later he was told he might have a little later as a punishment some time in the near future and was greatly pleased at the prospect of having some one to coast down hill with on the new sled.

The new sled, however, proved to be twice a boy and a girl. Robby surveyed the surprising roll faces in sleep; "See he said, he niled on the country."

"Some job, holding onto them and steering, too!"

COOLIDGE URGES CO-OPERATION

President Coolidge has taken up the universal appeal for co-operation among the agriculturists of the world, and in this country in particular, and indorses any movement which will be helpful to the farmers in solving the problem of producing sufficient food for future generations.

At a meeting of representatives of 25 nations at the First International Soil Congress in Washington yesterday, prior to his departure for South Dakota where he will spend his vacation in the Black Hills, the president pledged the resources of the government to the congress.

Among other things, he said: "The interchange of ideas and the personal observations made possible by such international gatherings as this cannot but be productive of a better understanding among different peoples and ultimately lead to a more universal desire for peace among all nations."

"The fundamental importance of the soil as a national and international issue becomes at once apparent when we reflect upon the extent to which all mankind is dependent upon it, directly or indirectly, for food, clothing and shelter."

Steadily the seriousness of the agriculture business is making headway in the world's best minds and the time is near when the farmers, politicians and others will deal with it in a business-like way instead of treating it as a political football.

Organization among the farmers has brought the dawn of a new era which is certain to reflect favorably to them. That President Coolidge realizes such to be the case is proved by another statement in his speech, as follows:

"Long after our minds have ceased to give up their treasures the soil must continue to produce the food necessary for feeding the increasing population of the world."

The chief executive said that his government now is spending $167,000,000 a year through the agricultural department, with $10,300,000 for scientific research.

These expenditures are doing great good and will continue to do so but the government and other leaders, sooner or later, must realize that some process which will assure a fair margin of profit to the farmer, the same as in any other line of business, must be devised.

CLASS COUNTS, ALWAYS

Indicative of the class of feature service which The Twin Falls Daily Times now is giving its steadily increasing list of readers, word comes from New York City that the title story of the late Charles A. Lindbergh, which was published in The Times, ending last Saturday, was issued in book form, the first copies coming off the large eastern publishing house, press yesterday.

Morris De Haven Tracy's "Life of Charles A. Lindbergh," which The Times published, is considered one of the classics of the year and when the big eastern publishers sought material for a Lindbergh book they naturally made their first offer to Mr. Tracy.

The author of the story is a member of the United Press association staff at New York and yesterday furnished The Times' readers with one of the best news stories of the year when he covered the sensational welcome given Lindbergh at New York. His work is a sample of that which gives the staff more latitude, higher salaries and better opportunities than any other news service receives in turn the product of a better satisfied corps of writers.

Tracy, in collaboration with Van Every, also of the United Press New York staff, has enlarged the biography of Lindbergh, elaborating some details, and incorporating others which had not been included in the original manuscript in the short time available.

Material for Lindbergh's life story was gathered by telegraph from many parts of the country with the assistance of United Press bureau men and correspondents; was written by Tracy and was ready for newspaper publication within a week after Lindbergh landed in Paris. "The final chapter was published by The Times last Saturday, the day the Washington airtel here returned from abroad to receive the nation's welcome at this is only one example of The Times' news and feature service to its readers under the new management. Many others, including local and state, are scheduled.

TALKS ABOUT HEALTH

By JOSEPH R. DE LEE, M.D., Member Oregon Memorial Institute, (Written for United Press)

(CHICAGO) — One of the earliest symptoms a woman generally experiences when she enters the state of pregnancy is sickness of the stomach, or nausea and vomiting. Fortunately only about half of expectant mothers are thus affected and of these, only a small per cent are seriously ill. Nevertheless, the disturbance of the stomach is very disagreeable, and since modern science has learned how to prevent and cure it, the hospital for careful observation and treatment, which has been found to prevent serious consequences.

The nausea and vomiting of pregnancy are due to some kind of poison, which, circulating in the blood, we doctors do not yet understand their nature. It is not what is popularly known as "acid blood poisoning" — nothing like that, heard that this is one of the symptoms. Some so-called poisons come from early pregnancy. They could cause some disturbance of the chemical composition of the blood, and they irritate the nerves controlling the stomach.

More often the nausea and vomiting are due to lack of water and sugar in the system, and these can be cured by the patient drinking a great deal of fluid, in any form agreeable to the stomach, and by taking a small amount of food, particularly many fruits, cereals and sweet fruits, at frequent intervals during both day and night.

Sometimes the nausea and vomiting are caused by a disease of the stomach or liver, such as lack of acid in the stomach, or ulcer, or gall stones, etc. In these cases the doctor will prescribe appropriate treatment. Sometimes the thyroid gland in the neck is not working right. Then he will give you a little iodine, or thyroid extract, to correct its action.

Look around you and you will find that the men and women who are wide awake to every opportunity to better themselves and their condition, who are willing to sacrifice some of the little pleasures their evenings might give—are the ones that achieve success in life.

More active candidates are wanted and nominations should reach this office at once to be included among the names of the candidates that will share in the distribution of really wonderful prizes.

BOY SCOUTS BEGIN FLAG DAY BY RAISING OF U. S. EMBLEM

Former Mayor Ashton Points Out Things Symbolized by Stars and Stripes at Morning Exercises on High School Campus; City is Decorated.

Calling attention to the fact that while last year's national celebration of the centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the country this year celebrated the centennial of the official adoption of the American flag, by the Continental congress, July 4, 1776.

E. L. Ashton, former mayor, this morning in his address to the Boy Scouts at the official flag raising on the high school campus, pointed out the continual keeping in mind of the principles for which the flag has ever stood.

The flag, he declared, is a symbol to the American people, that they should while, to uphold its principles, it is a symbol of the nation, that they are united in common interest and purpose; it is a symbol of the nation that the greatest nation on the western continent is an example of success which is the result of the flag in an enlightened country. He said that some years ago when the wind blew down the old flag school building, the boys showed the right spirit when they reached the flag before it fell.

There was a good attendance of scouts and a number of others present at the ceremonies at 6:15 today.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio: "After having my first baby, I lost weight. After taking four bottles of what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I was sickly and gained no weight. My neighbors told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weighed 118 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without any bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. R. Russell, 1006 N. New Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health! That's the best gift. Health is riches that cannot be stolen and surely, health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

CHRISTIAN MEET IN JEROME WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The state convention of the Churches of Christ of Idaho in Jerome was the best held in many years, according to Rev. J. Elliott, superintendent of the Christian church at Kimberly, who has returned.

He states that the best success prevailed and reports from the various churches of the state showed a healthy growth and sound conditions during the last year.

Speakers from outside the state were Miss Ethel Tremaine of Chicago, Miss Cynthia Munn, of St. Louis; W. F. Turner, of Spokane; J. R. Golden, of St. Paul; Prof. W. L. Myers, of Eugene (Or.); Fred Collier, of Moscow, of Spokane; and W. P. Poole, of Spokane university. These and ministers of Idaho made fine addresses.

The Rev. M. Simpson stated that the Rev. P. L. Cook was elected for another term as state evangelist; the Rev. C. E. Burgess, of Boise, as president of the board; the Rev. A. Lowrey of Jerome, as vice president; the Rev. R. E. Johnson, of Caldwell, as president of the next convention.

SCHOOL BOND ELECTION IS UP TO VOTERS

Considerable Discussion on Whether Combination of Two Propositions Strongest or Weakest Chance of Issue

The election on the $75,000 bond issue opened quietly at 1 o'clock today and up to press time interest had not been intense, though a good sized vote is anticipated to vote the issue. Predictions regarding the result depend largely on the viewpoint of the prophet, and the views are various.

Some issue that the combining of the two propositions in one bond issue strengthens both while others declare that the chances of both are weakened. Those who take the first view assert that many who are not favorable to the gymnasium, but strongly opposed, and some who want the gym but are indifferent to the larger school facilities involved, will combine to put over the joint issue of $75,000, which will not exceed $20,000 will be devoted to the gymnasium and not to exceed $55,000 to the new building plan. Those who think that the combination weakens both say that those unfavorable to either may largely vote against both. All admit that the matter is speculative to a large degree.

The polls close at 6:30 this evening in the following places: in the Lincoln and Bickel schools. After the polls close the votes will be counted at the high school.
