THE STATE WIDE SCHOOL TAX

News columns are filled with accounts of mergers, with expansion of centralized business ventures. The chain stores are reaching out in every direction to absorb the business formerly handled by the individual shopkeepers. Whether we approve of the tendency or not—whether or not we think of it as a forward movement, it is the trend of the times.

The State Board of Education, the Idaho Education Association and the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce have united in an investigation designed to show whether the schools of the State might be benefited through application of the same principles of reduction of administrative costs and distribution of educational benefits to all the districts of the State.

A great mass of data has been accumulated largely through the efforts of the State Chamber of Commerce, and this is being analyzed by experts at the University of Idaho.

The objectives sought through all this labor which will cover the records of every school district in the State for the past two years, is to ascertain whether every school child is sharing equally in the opportunity for education. That such equality does not exist is a generally accepted conclusion. Just what can be done about it, will be determined after the analysis has been completed.

The county school unit, with one school board administering the affairs of the rural schools instead of the present system of separate boards, has been tried with success in some places. Some believe that school management is a business, and that schools will thrive best when that business is brought under one experienced head.

It is anticipated that the report of the investigation will be completed in time for submission to the next session of the State legislature.

AN ENTERPRISE ONLY PARTLY COMPLETED.

When Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator ace, with his three companions on the flight from Oakland to Honolulu, brought his Fokker monoplane Southern Cross down on Wheeler Field twelve miles west of Honolulu, he had accomplished only part of what is undoubtedly an extremely hazardous undertaking.

The Southern Cross, carrying approximately twelve hundred gallons of gasoline for fuel, had only one hundred and thirty gallons left in the tanks when the airplane landed after covering about 2,400 miles. The Australian's problem must therefore be all the more acute when it is known that the next proposed hop is across 3,280 miles of open sea to Suva in the Fiji Islands, away down in the South Pacific. And there is possibility of sending motor trucks ahead with emergency supplies, probably Captain Smith knows what he is facing but to the average layman the feat looks impossible of accomplishment.

Another interesting angle to the flight of the Southern Cross is brought to the forefront by the comment of a local gasoline truck driver who told a representative of The Times last night that his tank truck has a capacity of a little more than six hundred gallons so that the huge Fokker monoplane actually took to the air at Oakland Thursday with two truck-loads of "gas." That gives some idea of the progress that has been made in airplane construction and indicates that while these flights may seem to be without any other purpose than mere notoriety, there is something more behind them, the finding out of just what it will take in the way of endurance, capacity and equipment before man will be able to definitely and positively conquer the wide reaches of the oceans that separate the continents.

That which today appeals to the general public as foolhardy will tomorrow be commonplace yet the world should not forget that it is the Lindberghs, the Chamberlains, the Haldemans, the Byrds and those others who have contributed to the progress of the science of aviation, who are laying the foundation of the new transportation system that is bound to come within the next few years.

And all the world will wish Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith a safe journey back to his native land so far across the sea.

An encouraging note to those in the Twin Falls territory interested in acquiring a knowledge of practical aviation, comes from an instructor at Kelly Field, in Texas, who describes or defines "inherent flying ability" as "the innate faculty of selective and instinctive discrimination of the stimuli of the sensor-motor apparatus to harmoniously adjust metabolic changes in the psychological and physiological equilibrium in such manner as to comprehend and assimilate instruction in the attributes necessary to perform the intricate and complex operations which comprise the piloting of air craft."

A PARENT'S PRAYER

I HAVE A BOY TO BRING UP

Help me to perform my task with wisdom and kindness and good cheer; help me always to see him clearly, as he is; let not my pride in him hide his faults; let not my fear for him smother my judgment and fear; and make him, doubtful and fearful in his turn.

I have a boy to bring up. Give me great patience and a long memory. Let me remember the hard lessons in my own youth.

I have a boy to bring up. Teach me the love that understands; the love that knows no weakness, tolerates no selfishness, keeps me from weakening my son through my selfishness and fear; and in pain, ease of body that must bring sickness of soul, a vision of life that goes on and the death.

I have a boy to bring up. Help me to send him into the world with a mission of service. Grant that in my service those who know not the need of service, and not knowing it, need it most.—Ford and Spence.

You know without being told that all motor cars endeavor today to act like Chrysler in engineering and performance. That is self-evident and obvious. Q. You may have felt that some of these endeavors have succeeded in overtaking the illustrious Chrysler "72"—if not in fact, at least superficially. You can quickly convince yourself. You can quickly prove that Chrysler "72" is still as far ahead as it was four years ago. Q. Not merely in principle or in theory, but in plain, blunt facts of performance which you can see, and feel, and register. Q. But in every one and all of the characteristics which Chrysler "72" created—so far, far ahead that the gap is even greater today than it was at the outset of Chrysler history.

Let Your Account Be Appreciated, Not Merely Tolerated

Twin Falls County Credit Association

Good Credit Is a Golden Possession

A good credit standing like a good name, is rather to be cherished than great riches. It carries with it prestige, influence, confidence, honor, trust, faith and esteem.

One cannot afford to sacrifice this essential part of life, especially as it requires so little effort to maintain it. All that is required is to plan according to one's income, the modern phrase is, "budgeting one's expenditures."

In making purchases on a credit basis one should always have in mind, "Will our income justify this and leave us in a position to pay this obligation promptly when due?"

This is offered as a suggestion in an effort to aid individuals in this vicinity to maintain a high credit standing, one of the most valuable assets anyone can possess.

The Value of a Bank Account

A BANK account with a good balance is a very important factor in establishing bank credit.

It creates confidence for you at your bank as well as among your friends and business associates.

This Bank has splendid facilities for taking care of your account and solicits your patronage.
