CONSTRUCTION WORK IS UNDER WAY ON CANAL

Winston-Brthers of Minneapolis Making Dirt Fly 24 Hours

According to the Gooding Leader, actual construction work is under way on the newest Reclamation project on the North Side of the Snake river, the Miller-Shoshone canal.

"Saturday was a red letter day for the Miller-Shoshone canal," says the Gooding Leader. "The construction work on the canal was in full swing."

"The construction is proceeding rapidly," according to reports received here this week at the office of Secretary H. H. Stubbins of the reclamation district here. It is reported that the huge steam shovel is being run continuously 24 hours a day, and that it is moving 1000 cubic yards of dirt every eight hours.

"The president of the Reclamation Construction Company of Salt Lake City, Washington, the holder of the contract for part of the 24 mile canal, that is mostly rock excavation, is now on the ground and Wednesday met with Reclamation Engineer E. H. Darrington. It is understood that his company also will begin actual work in the very near future.

"Secretary Stubbins also is informed that Engineer Darrington is expecting to receive any day the plans and specifications for the second and on miles of the canal construction, upon which he will at once advertise for bids for this work."

"Observers of the district met here Tuesday, in regular session, heard reports and made the annual tax levy for the district. The levy is the same as last year, namely ten cents for each irrigable acre and ten cents for each town lot in the district."

ANOTHER OUTWORN CUSTOM ABANDONED

One by one, the original provisions made for the choice of the chief executive of the nation are yielding to the changing conditions of the country. Provisions which were wise and just and adequate in 1789 are useless and expensive in 1928.

A minor, but important accomplishment of the congressional session just closed was the enactment of the Summers bill, substituting the use of the registered mail for the individual messengers for the transmission of presidential and vice-presidential election results to Washington.

In March, 1792, the year of the second election of President Washington, Congress passed an act providing that the States should choose their presidential electors within thirty-four days preceding the first Wednesday in December of those years in which electors were to be chosen. The act did not specify the day on which they should be chosen, but did specify the day on which they should give their votes, which is the first Wednesday in December next after their election.

In 1845, Congress passed another act, amendatory of the first, fixing the day on which electors should be chosen in the United States as the Tuesday after the first Monday in November of the year in which a president is to be chosen. Each State must make provision for vacancies which may occur among their own electors.

The first act of 1792 also provided that the electors should meet and cast their ballots in the prescribed manner and make three certified copies of the same, one of which is to be forwarded by mail to the President of the Senate at the seat of government, a second to be sent to the same official by special messenger, the third to be delivered to the judge of the district court in which the electors assemble.

Since this messenger draws mileage at the rate of 25 cents per mile to bring the copy to the seat of government, the present administration saw therein an opportunity for a saving of $15,000 expense, and an additional $25,000 for advertising the results in newspapers weeks after the event, when everyone knows what the result is.

No one had dreamed of telegraph, radio, railroads, automobiles or airplanes in the days when the law was enacted, and the allowance was adequate to meet the expense. But to modern minds, there was nothing gained by the perpetuation of a custom rooted in economic conditions long since passed.

The new law provides that electors shall make and certify six statements of the votes cast for president and vice-president. One is to be mailed to the president of the United States, two to be delivered to the State Secretary of State, one to be held to the order of the president of the Senate, and the other to be a part of the public records of the State.

This is the second change that has been found necessary in the provisions for electing the president and the vice-president of the country, although there have been great changes in the economic conditions of the nation.

Under the original constitution, all candidates were named for the office of president; the candidate receiving the highest number of votes became president and the one receiving the second highest became vice-president. In 1804 the law was amended to provide the electors of each State casting separate ballots for president and vice-president.

Had the original plan prevailed, curious lineups in high office would have resulted. And where, for example, would Calvin Coolidge be today? Certainly not in a position to make his daily trout catch a matter of public news—perhaps he might never have learned to fish at all, that being one of the great personal privileges which have flowed to him through his official incumbency.

For Governor James Cox would have been vice-president in 1920, having received the second highest popular vote, and would have succeeded to the presidency upon the death of President Harding.

Other Viewpoints

LIKE-GREENED LIGHTNING

(Lawiston Tribune)

How fast must an object go to travel through the air without heating? That question has baffled the engineers connected with the General Electric Company. So the other day as a ball of lightning struck a high voltage wire of the Pennsylvania Power Company the photograph was taken with a high speed camera which had been ingeniously attached to the cable.

The camera showed that only four ten-millionths of a second elapsed from the time the lightning hit the wire until the temperature rose to maximum intensity and that the duration was forty ten-millionths of a second.

With the knowledge gleaned from this experiment, electrical storms like these that occasionally play along the ribs of the weathered mountain valleys, are viewed more intelligently. We now know something about the speed of these jagged streaks, which through their swiftness across the blue sky, bar the general electric company has not satisfied the Tribune's thirst for knowledge. These all lightning travel at approximately the same speed or does the great fluidity of electricity make it impossible to apply the same laws which apply to the other fluids? It is highly interesting and it just hints as to how new knowledge about lightning is being gained.

There is something even more remarkable than the measurement of the speed of lightning bolts in the experiment, "It is that man can construct a camera capable of recording the events that last but one ten-millionth of a second."

WHY ALL THIS HURRIH?

(New York World)

One of our readers wishes to know how, if Messrs. Bushok and DuPont had to dissolve themselves, from General Motors in order to work for Gov. Smith, it is possible for Congress to make a law that would prevent them from doing so. The House Republican National Committee who is working for Hoover's election, is responsible for this in his position for the same reason as Mr. Hayden, the head of one of the largest investment banking houses in New York City, wishes his place on the committee of the Republican finance committee of New York State and other similar positions for the same reason.

When Mr. Bushok decided to join in the campaign for Gov. Smith the directors of General Motors felt called upon to assure the country that the company is not in politics. When Pierre S. Du Pont joined the Smith forces, his brother Lambert Du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., resigned in assuring his minority shareholders that the company is not in politics, and that the employees are expected to always vote as their intelligent dictation.

Would any of these things have been thought of if Messrs. Bushok and Du Pont were equally active in the flower game? Their activities in that game would have evoked none of these explanations and would have been regarded as a commendable display of public spirit. The Republicans have come to believe that they have a monopoly of business leaders. Their disilluminating responsibility for all the recent trouble. It will be a good thing for the party, and for the cause of reform, if the members of the present campaign destroy some of their self-conceit.

A LONG TIME ABOUT IT

(Albert Slane in Herties of Reviews)

We nominate president in the middle of August, elect him in November and inaugurate him on the 20th of the following March. He sits about and twiddles his thumbs while his professional sends a message to the members of the House of Representatives and continues to approve or veto bills, appoint judges and other permanent officers, control our foreign policy and dictate much of our domestic policy until March 4. What a telegraph line, no railroads, no automobiles, no highways, news was distributed slowly a century and a half ago. The members of our respect for the dates fixed in the original Constitution seem so ridiculous as the result of the progress of the treatment in 1927. They were a whole man, who had reason for their action. They would succeed in their intention. If Congress is unwilling to change the date it might enact a law requiring Mr. Hoover, if elected to ride on the fast-track from California to Washington for his inauguration. We are sensible enough in our States, at least in many of them, to shorten the campaign by nominating in the autumn rather than in the early summer.

Whereas we elect governors and legislators in November, we set them at work at the beginning of January, thus dispensing with the old legislators and the former executive group, and appointing a new group. We should consider the question of holding their conventions about October 1. From that date on they would all have enough for presidential campaign.

Years passed, and they had almost raptly up to her, nevertheless, and said softly:

"Why, Marjell,"
She looked at him indifferently,
"do you see?" she said calmly,
"as if you or your brother who

"I really don't remember," he replied affably, "probably my father."

Many Thanks,

"I do," replied her father, firmly.

"Oh, excuse me," said the father, sur-

Tired TIRES are like tired fighters!

When a fighter's muscles get tired he lacks speed—lacks strength—lacks resistance—and is easily knocked out...

How tires get "Tired" Due to the low air pressure carried, the sidewalls of a balloon tire are sharply flexed...

What happens in those rapidly flexing sidewalls when ordinary old-style cord is used? Like the taut, strained muscles of the fighter, these stiff, inflexible cords begin to tire...

Then under some ordinary, every day shock, the weakened, over-flexed sidewall fabric gives way. A perfectly sound...

looking tire collapses and costs you several thousand miles. Economy lies in choosing the tires that you know have sidewall scientifically designed and tested to withstand fierce flexing—Goodyear.

Supertwist Cord neutralizes fierce flexing. The new type cord used in Goodyear Supertwist Balloon tires is engineered to withstand sidewall flexing for the life of the tire.

It is made by a patented Goodyear process. Stretch a piece and it comes back—like rubber. Hence, being violently flexed 25,000 times an hour or even 50,000 times an hour means nothing to this wonderful, elastic Supertwist cord.

Let us save wasted miles. Tired Tires may waste 10 per cent to 25 per cent of a mileage you pay for. Why risk even a 10 per cent loss?

Let us equip your car with Goodyear Supertwist Balloons—with the shock-absorbing sidewalls and the famous All-weather tread. They cost no more now. They cost much less per mile. And you are saved all worry about Tired Tires. Come in and compare our reasonable prices.

Players Well Cast in 'Hell's Garden'

All the "newbies" of Twin Falls will be the guests of the Toby Walker company this evening at the grand theatre when they give the second performance of the play, "Hell's Garden," a comedy in which the cast is excellent. The most notable work of last evening was done by Everett Walker, who played the role of the "old man," and Dick Costello, who played the role of the "young man." The play is a comedy in which the cast is excellent.

ANOTHER OUTWORN CUSTOM ABANDONED.

One by one, the original provisions made for the choice of the chief executive of the nation are yielding to the changing conditions of the country. Provisions which were wise and just and adequate in 1789 are useless and expensive in 1928.

A minor, but important accomplishment of the congressional session just closed was the enactment of the Summers bill, substituting the use of the registered mail for the individual messengers for the transmission of presidential and vice-presidential election results to Washington.

In March, 1792, the year of the second election of President Washington, Congress passed an act providing that the States should choose their presidential electors within thirty-four days preceding the first Wednesday in December of those years in which electors were to be chosen. The act did not specify the day on which they should be chosen, but did specify the day on which they should give their votes, which is the first Wednesday in December next after their election.

In 1845, Congress passed another act, amendatory of the first, fixing the day on which electors should be chosen in the United States as the Tuesday after the first Monday in November of the year in which a president is to be chosen. Each State must make provision for vacancies which may occur among their own electors.

The first act of 1792 also provided that the electors should meet and cast their ballots in the prescribed manner and make three certified copies of the same, one of which is to be forwarded by mail to the President of the Senate at the seat of government, a second to be sent to the same official by special messenger, the third to be delivered to the judge of the district court in which the electors assemble.

Since this messenger draws mileage at the rate of 25 cents per mile to bring the copy to the seat of government, the present administration saw therein an opportunity for a saving of $16,000 expense, and an additional $26,000 for advertising the results in newspapers weeks after the event, when everyone knows what the result is.

No one had dreamed of telegraph, radio, railroads, automobiles or airplanes in the days when the law was enacted, and the allowance was adequate to meet the expense. But to modern minds, there was nothing gained by the perpetuation of a custom rooted in economic conditions long since passed.

The new law provides that electors shall make and certify six statements of the votes cast for president and vice-president. One is to be mailed to the president of the United States, two to be delivered to the State Secretary of State, one to be held to the order of the president of the Senate, and the other to be a part of the public records of the State.

This is the second change that has been found necessary in the provisions for electing the president and the vice-president of the country, although there have been great changes in the economic conditions of the nation.

Under the original constitution, all candidates were named for the office of president; the candidate receiving the highest number of votes became president and the one receiving the second highest became vice-president. In 1804 the law was amended to provide the electors of each State casting separate ballots for president and vice-president.

Had the original plan prevailed, curious lineups in high office would have resulted. And where, for example, would Calvin Coolidge be today. Certainly not in a position to make his daily trout catch a matter of public news—perhaps he might never have learned to fish at all, that being one of the great personal privileges which have flowed to him through his official incumbency.

For Governor James Cox would have been vice-president in 1920, having received the second highest popular vote, and would have succeeded to the presidency upon the death of President Harding.

LIKE CHEASED LIGHTNING (Cleveland Tribune)

How fast must an object go to travel like a streak of charged lightning? That question—ling, bothered me until I came to the General Electric company. So the other day as a bolt of lightning struck a high voltage wire at the Pennock-Power company they photographed it with a high speed camera which had been ingeniously attached to the cable.

The camera showed that only four ten-millionths of a second elapsed from the time the lightning hit the wire, until its voltage reached the maximum intensity and that its release was forty-two millionths of a second.

With the knowledge gleaned from this experiment, electrical storage like that of the Leyden jar play along with it can be viewed more intelligently. We now know something about the speed of those jagged streaks which throw themselves across the night sky.

But the General Electric company has not satisfied the Titania's thirst for knowledge. How "all lightning travels" approximately play along with it? The great flash of sheet lightning throw itself across the upper regions of the atmosphere and strike in the lower regions where the charged clouds appear violet in the upper regions of the atmosphere and white in the lower regions where the lightning is at work. It is not surprising that it is just balls on or far more knowledge about the sky god.

Why All This Hiss? One of our readers wishes to know how, if Messrs. Haskell and DePout were to be named for president from General Motors in order to work for Gov. Smith, R. H. Hobbins for the C. & N. Railway, member of the Republican National Committee who is working for Hoover's election, to remain in the same position for the same reason that Mr. Hobbins, the head of the Pennsylvania railroad, Mr. Hobbins remains in his position for the same reason that Mr. Hobbins, the head of the largest investment banking houses in New York City, remain in their place while serving on the committee of the Republican Finance Committee of New York State and collecting subscriptions for the campaign.

Why All This Hiss? (Continued) When Mr. Hobbins decided to join in the campaign for Gov. Smith the directors of General Motors fell out again to assure the country shareholder company is not in politics. When Pierre S. Du Pont joined the Smith campaign he was elected to the board of directors of the U. S. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. hastened to assure his employees and through them the country at large that his company is not in politics, and that the employees are expected to always vote as their independent electors.

Would any of these things have been thought necessary if Messrs. Haskell and Du Pont were equally active in the Hoover camp? Their activities in that camp would have evoked none of these explanations and would have been regarded as a commendable display of public spirit. The Republicans have come to believe that they have a monopoly of high office leaders. Their disbelief is a responsibility for all the recent hubbub. It will be a good thing when the next election for the cause of some government as well. If the present campaign destroys some of their self-implacable.

ACQUIT
All speed tranquility, her tasks well done,
Through opened fields she strays,
And a man's gold-chain in her flowing hair,
While soft winds fan her forehead smooth and fair.
Great peace and plenty reigns thru-out the land,
She views the rippling fields on either hand,
Then lives her happy eyes to vault above:
A radiant world, when her children dawn love.

After Many Years.
They were very much in luck, but at last came the day when they had a bitter quarrel and parted, each resolving never to see the other again so long as both lived.
Years passed, and they had almost forgotten the life, love affairs, when one night they came face to face with each other at a dance. The man felt rather embarrassed, but he went eagerly up to her, nevertheless, and said:
"Why, Mabel?"
She looked at him indifferently.
"Let me see," she said calmly, "was it you or your brother who used to be an old advance of mine?"
"I really don't remember," he replied affably, "probably my father."
Many Thanks.
"I understand," said the young man, "that you absolutely decline to marry your daughter."
"She," replied the young man, reaching for his hat, "will you shake hands on parting?"
"Of course," said the father, surprised. "And I am glad to see that."

U.S.C. BASEBALL TEAM RETURNED

Win 15 of the 27 Games They Have Played During Oriental Tour.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—University of Southern California's wonderful baseball team is home this week after completing a 15,000-mile jaunt from the Orient and playing a summer schedule of 27 games with leading teams of Japan and Manchuria.

Enthusiastic over the hospitality and friendliness of their Oriental hosts, the Traveling Trojans make the claim of having completed one of the most enjoyable and successful trips to that part of the world ever made by a university team. From the standpoint of avoiding good feelings between Japanese and Americans, the trip was well worth while, according to Coach "Valone Sam" Crawford, who found the Oriental peoples through students of baseball and excellent competitors.

University of Southern California's men won 15 of the 27 games played, which is one of the best records ever made by an American university team in the Orient.

Every man on the team returned in splendid health and Japan with personal gifts from the hospitable Japanese and Manchurian. Major Dwyer, all-American unwarlike last year, went along as manager and brought home invitations from Japanese clubs, asking the Trojans to come again soon.

Others making the trip were Karl Krueger, John Van Arne, Floyd White, George Williamson, Dick Schultz, Ted Sahbber, Lawrence Dill, Lawrence Manlove, Al Welch, Elmer Goran, Howard Elliott and Webster Gilson. Dr. Bruce Hagler of the Trojan university went along as official university representative.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterdays hero: Ernie Oratti, recruit first baseman, who home run hit the Cardinals in the eighth inning, only score of the game and enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat Philadelphia 4 to 2.

Big home allowed the Cardinals only three hits, including the home run during the seventh inning of the pitched. He was removed by the manager for a pinch hitter and Wally Pihlak hit the game winning run of only one more hit. Left Haines allowed the Cardinals to score.

Chicago's Pittsburgh pitcher, formerly of the Giants, pitched a stellar afternoon as he won his fifth victory of the season from McGraw's Cubs. He pitched a stellar game, pitched better than they all were treated alike.

The Chicago Cubs returned to third place with a double victory over Boston, 4 to 1 and 1 to 3. The Cubs won the first game by hitting the first game to score their four runs but were forced to come from behind twice in the second and third innings to down Barnaby's Braves.

Possibly the biggest surprise of the day was St. Louis' defeat of the New York Yankees, 5 to 2 and 3 to 1.

They won the first with very little difficulty. Crowder holding the Yankee batsmen to eight hits which were well enough scattered. The seventh inning was closer. Mitchell allowing but six hits, one a home run by Tony Lazzeri, in the ninth inning. The Philadelphia Athletics made the most of their chance, winning a hard fought game from Cleveland, 1 to 0. Shantz and Walters both pitched excellent ball, allowing but six hits each but the Athletics scored two runs and a pass in the third inning for the winning run.

Boston won a tight game from Detroit, 2 to 1, scoring the deciding run in the last of the ninth. Stoner allowed only seven hits in nine for Boston in the Red Sox, but the Sox twice were able to launch them.

WHAT THE STARS DID YESTERDAY

Editor's note: Today the name of "Goss" Goalin, Washington outfielder, who is leading both leagues in hits in being replaced by the name of Harry Hellman, Detroit, who led the American league last year. Hellman has been unable to hit his stride this season, and is hitting only .256.

Joe Judge (.274) singled and doubled in four trips in four games. He doubled again, driving in both Yankees when he failed to hit in four trips in eight games.

Paul Warner (.312) tripled and singled and scored two runs in four trips in St. Louis (102) in three games in three trips.

Fredy Lindstrom (.353) doubled and singled in four trips in second game.

Babe Ruth (.333) singled, doubled and scored two runs for the Yankees in three trips in first of double header, singled once in four trips in second game.

Frank Pritch (.291) failed to hit in four trips.

Goss Goalin (.287) and Rogers Hornsby (.275) did not play.

Pennant Race Is Out on the Home Stretch at Last

By United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The double defeat of the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh's victory over the New York Giants Friday, may be taken as indications of two of the most thrilling home stretch pennant flurries have had since 1903.

The Yankees, trailed as long as the greatest team in the history of baseball, were expected to have the American pennant safely tied up by this time, when the major league teams started their "leg" race last April.

Instead, the Yankees are three games out in front and in serious danger of losing the pennant. The Philadelphia Athletics' ball team composed largely of scrappy youngsters.

The National league was headed by the St. Louis Cardinals, who had the title for the baseball fall this year, and it has not disappointed. The St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants are in the midst of one of the most bitter home stretch flurries in the history of the sport, and within a space of five or six half seasons behind the leading Cardinals are grouped the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Browns and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

STATE LEADERS OF REPUBLICANS FACE PROBLEMS

Would Retain Balance Between North and South Sections of the State.

BOISE, Aug. 25.—The geographical placement of candidates so that the proportion to population of all sections will be properly represented, is the task that confronts leaders in the Republican party in Idaho at the present, according to a Boise writer.

Northern Idaho, comprising two of the 44 counties, now has the secretary of state, Fred E. Latta, who is from Blaine county, the state treasurer, who is from Nez Perce county, the lieutenant governor, Oscar E. Halsey, who is from Benewah county, and the first district congressman, Burton L. Branch, who is from Latah county.

In other words, the north has four congressional or state representatives. Yet it is the smallest end of the state. The south, on the other hand, with thirty-four counties, has the following representation: Two United States senators, in W. E. Borah of Ada and John Thomas of Gooding county, respectively; governor, H. C. Baldrige, Canyon county, attorney general, Frank Stephens of Twin Falls county; state mine inspector, Stewart Campbell of Blaine county, and state superintendent of public instruction, Mrs. Mabelle M. Lyman, and congressman, Addison C. Smith, of seven.

This ratio is considered about correct by the party leaders, and they are trying to maintain it. The north seems to be well satisfied with the senatorial situation, including the appointment of Senator Thomas in succeed the late Frank R. Gooding.

There has been some discussion, of course, but it has not advanced very far, even in the north.

This developed in John Gray and his friends in Coeur d'Alene. Gray would like to go to the senate. With others he thought the successor to the late Senator Gooding should have gone to the north. However, the Gray movement has not so far advanced to any extent. The possibility is coming before the convention at the close of the present month is very remote.

Then the same section of the north developed a candidate for attorney general. Senator E. V. Houghton of Coeur d'Alene was pronounced and still being grounded. Frank Stephens is not asking to succeed himself and is seeking his own term.

As to the nomination of the houses of representatives, an attorney of Pocatello is thought to be in line for the nomination of an attorney general. He comes from the same county and attorney general Stephen.

Spokane Falls, a probably reported in political circles, is willing to step aside after holding the office for one term.

Two years from now there will probably be a complete new lineup, due to the fact that from governor down most of the elective state officials will have had two terms and will be ready to retire.

Some efforts are being made to dislodge State Treasurer Byron Deffenbach, who is serving his first term. Deffenbach was elected at Weiser two years ago. One of the facts that he had to economize under his appropriation, he discharged some of his deputies. It is reported this caused some opposition to Deffenbach.

The fact that Deffenbach county has the treasurer'ship, and is likely to get it again, probably eliminated the favorite sons from receiving political preference just at this time. Lieutenant Governor Fisher has announced that he cannot be a candidate to succeed himself for business reasons. He is also from the north, St. Maries, in Benewah county.

Mark Means of Lewiston, Nez Perce county, would make a very able lieutenant governor, many of the party leaders believe. But Mr. Means is from the same county as the state treasurer, seeking re-nomination, and won't be a candidate.

By the same rule Floyd Fourn, also from Idaho county, who might be considered for the lieutenant governor'ship, is eliminated because Secretary of State Latta is from his county.

Senator Christensen of Bonner county might have been considered, but he was defeated for re-nomination. Senator Donald Callahan of Shoshone county is a "wildcat" prospect who might be considered. Because Senator Bonhott is in the race for attorney general, his committee Senator Ralph Nelson to him, Senator Nelson is, they say, probably obtaining it, but if he should step aside, Nelson might have an excellent chance.

The lieutenant governor'ship is largely an honorary office, yet it is one that is looked upon as a possible stepping stone to governor. That was the case with the present chief executive, H. C. Baldrige, who was lieutenant governor.

WOMEN BIDDING FOR A PLACE ON FRENCH BOURSE

Suffrage in Finance Center Likely to Be Granted Within Two Months.

PARIS.—Within the next few months French women probably will be brought into a position of equality in suffrage and office-holding matters that will open to them the doors of the bourse.

The feminine sex for more than two centuries has been told to stay in her kitchen and her salon and leave the financial affairs of the nation to men. French "bankers" have at times attempted to crush the rates, only to find a triple barrier of municipal guards and policemen lined up to inform them that it couldn't be done. The law was strengthened in Napoleonic days to the extent of authorizing the use of armed force in effecting all undesirable from the sacred precincts of Moneydom.

But the Chamber of Deputies already has voted the Female Suffrage Bill, and although there is still some hesitancy among the more conservative and timid Senators, there is every reason to believe that France will follow the example of other nations during the winter parliamentary session.

This will open a new field of activity for women, just as the admission of women to the bar, which dates back less than 25 years, brought a new element into French life. Several of the national universities and banks are studying the problem, with a view to instituting courses in banking and other branches of commerce. And the bourse itself is transferring some of its departments to adjoining buildings in order to permit the increase in the size of the great hall where the daily operations are carried out.

MARKED INCREASE IN AIR MAIL RESULT OUT IN COST

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 27.—The young, developing industry of aviation is being well in this section of the country and recent announcements of air mail rate cuts stimulated the business greatly.

Low rates and large volume became the watchword in lines operating out of Cleveland. Heavy cargoes marked the new reduced rates on all lines from this city while the inauguration of the new Cleveland route to Atlanta has added more than a ton of mail to the total.

New rates of five cents an ounce have become effective and the public is taking advantage of them. Double sections on most lines are required to handle the extraordinarily heavy cargoes attracted by the new rates.

are like tired fighters!

When a fighter's muscles get tired he lacks speed—lacks strength—lacks resistance—and is easily knocked out. When the cords of a balloon tire are tired out—they are lifeless—without resilience—unable to absorb punishment—and an easy prey for any sudden shock.

If it seems strange that a tire should become "tired," read these amazing facts:

How tires get "Tired"

Due to the low air pressure carried, the sidewalls of a balloon tire are sharply flexed where they come in contact with the road.

In a tire of average size this violent flexing or bending occurs over 25,000 times an hour, at common touring speeds—over 200,000 times during a single day's run over fine hard roads.

What happens in those rapidly flexing sidewalls when ordinary old-style cord is used?

Like the taut, strained muscles of the fighter, these stiff, inflexible cords begin to tire. Fatigue sets in. Finally they become tired out—de-talized—lifeless—with no resistance.

Then under some ordinary, every day shock, the weakened, over-flexed sidewall fabric gives way. A perfectly sound looking tire collapses and costs you several thousand miles. Economy lies in choosing the tires that you know have sidewall scientifically designed and tested to withstand fierce flexing—Goodyear.

Supertwist Cord neutralizes fierce flexing

The new type cord used in Goodyear Supertwist Balloon tires is engineered to withstand sidewall flexing for the life of the tire.

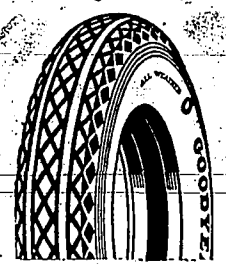

It is made by a patented Goodyear process. Stretch a piece and it "comes back"—like rubber!

Hence, being violently flexed 25,000 times an hour or even 50,000 times an hour means nothing to this wonderful, elastic Supertwist cord. Each individual cord is inherently relaxed. Strain which quickly tires ordinary cord is easily absorbed. Fierce flexing does no damage.

Let us save wasted miles

Tired Tires may waste 10 per cent to 25 per cent of the mileage you pay to get. Why risk even a 10 per cent loss?

Let us equip your car with Goodyear Supertwist Balloons—with the shock-absorbing sidewalls and the famous All-weather tread. They cost no more now. They cost much less per mile. And you are saved all worry about Tired Tires. Come in and compare our reasonable prices.
