BIBLE VERSES AND PRAYER

AN EXHORTATION—O house of Jacob, come yet, and let us walk in the light of the Lord.—Isa. 2:5.

PRAYER—Lord, "let gone beams of heavenly light make bright our earthly way."

AN INSTITUTION OWNED BY ALL

Those interested in public ownership will find real joy in the realization—that the Twin Falls County Fair belongs to all the people of Twin Falls county.

It is aided and assisted by a money grant of something like seven thousand dollars each year which Manager Frank J. Keenan and his board of directors spend for permanent improvements and upkeep and not for operation. Paid admissions and concessions, so he says, practically enable the directors to meet all current obligations.

Any thinking man or woman who visits and inspects the fair grounds with their many fine and substantial buildings erected to house the exhibits of field, garden, ranch and farm along with the fine arts and manufactures and reflects on the fact that the present Twin Falls tract was up to 1904, a desert of sage brush where the jack-rabbit and other animals roamed at will, must be impressed and amazed at what has been accomplished.

And the Twin Falls County Fair, which opens today for the thirteenth time, stands as a monument to the progress and prosperity of the Twin Falls tract. It is perhaps the best expression of the achievements of men and women who have wrought out of the wilderness a bit of God's paradise; it reflects the honesty of purpose, the integrity, the self-sacrifice of those who were not afraid of the unknown and not unwilling to undertake hard work, inspired by a feeling of confidence in the future. It was the work of those people of vision that has made possible the triumph of today. A display such as that which will be seen this week at Filer, ought to bring to the heart of every resident of the tract a feeling of pride and thankfulness that they are privileged to be part and parcel of this splendid community. And the least thing the public can do in the way of cooperation is to attend the fair as often as possible, thereby giving tangible evidence of the fact that there is a deep sense of appreciation in all hearts for the heroic work of those who have wrought so faithfully and well.

The Twin Falls County Fair this year, as in years past, will provide a liberal education for all who desire to know and learn. The exhibits of live stock, of the products of farm and ranch and garden, of poultry and rabbits, the liberal arts, the work of clever women, of automobiles—all these will tell the story in an emphatic and impressive manner and then there will of course be the usual entertainment features that go with every fair; the program at Filer this week to be unusually interesting and worth while.

We can well afford to make this a real FAIR WEEK.

THE WAY TO PROMOTE

The other day a pair of young men from Oregon entered the office of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce to seek general information as to the possibilities of this big district. They were especially interested in the subject of agriculture but also desired to have other related information.

As to the young men themselves, they are splendidly equipped by technical education, experience and practical knowledge to make their own deductions about any agricultural country's general capacities. They were perfect strangers to Twin Falls, except for their own observations over a period of a few hours, and had never before seen the secretary.

One of the strangers asked if it would be wise for him to try to lease a range here and farm it for a year before planning to buy for himself. The secretary suggested that the wiser course for the strangers to follow would be to work for some experienced farmer before farming for himself, or at least to spend plenty of time acquainting himself with as many as possible of the cardinal facts about irrigated farming before striking out here for himself.

The question of the population of Twin Falls was raised by one of the strangers who asked if Twin Falls does not have 12,000 people. The secretary replied in the negative and said that the best information available indicates that the city has about 10,100 population.

Those two young men, both of whom have spent much time in California and are well acquainted with the west and the pride of westerners in their country, were delighted over the conservatism of the secretary. They appreciated the honest, straightforward information they received, as well as the manner in which it was given.

The above incident furnishes an excellent example of what the Times considers to be the right kind of community promotion. All cities do not confine themselves to conservatism in their contacts with strangers seeking information, but Twin Falls has so many unquestioned advantages that it would not only be dishonest to represent the possibilities here but also very foolish.

The plain facts about the Twin Falls country are good enough to use to promote the community.

Then there was the delegate who came home and told his wife he looked like that because he slipped on a wet piano. —The Haverhill Evening Gazette.

SAFETY FOR SUBS

(Stoermer Times-Tribune) There will probably be general agreement throughout the country as to the wisdom of continuing the congressional investigation into the navy's provisions for rating submarines. Recent news dispatches from Washington carried the prediction, by leaders of the several affiliations of the Senate and the House, that the problem of equipping American submarines with adequate safety devices will not be fully solved during the short session of Congress.

In December: With the exception of the ponies that sailed before the United States navy's submarine, the S-1, was raised from the position to which she sank off Provincetown last winter, the submarine was not recovered because of the fact that the Italian navy, in a similar emergency raised a submarine the F-11, from 131 feet of water, in 36 hours.

The fact that the American submarine was of vastly greater tonnage than the Italian, does not, one feels, afford a sufficient answer to the problem of safety. Outside of the ocean, wind and high seas and conditions of the ocean bottom may offer excuses, but not necessarily adequate reasons for the American navy's deficiency in emergency as compared with the remarkable efficiency with which the Italian navy acted.

Various measures for increasing the safety of subs, and for making it easier to raise them quickly if sunk are proposed by members of the congressional committee on naval affairs. What should be done, however, is not easily decided. This is the most important thing in the present situation.

But the American public needs to be reassured that no navy will naturally huddle a situation with such tragic consequences as followed its failure to raise the S-1 in a reasonable time.

POPULAR NOVELISTS

(Worcester Gazette) A London publisher, faced with the task of naming the author who is the most popular classic novelist, sent me questionnaires all over the world.

Tabulating the answers, he made the following discoveries: Mr. Dickens, with 100,000 votes, was first; Mrs. Thackeray, 85,000; Hugo, Kipling, Austen, Charlotte Bronte, Mrs. Wood and Charles Reade ranking in that order.

There is nothing sensational in this discovery, for hardly anyone but a child could mistake a list of such popular writers for anything else.

But Mrs. Wood? Who is she? Why, she's the author of East Lynne, to be sure; that hardly proves her to be a classic novelist. All in all she is the author of 35 novels; every one of them, save the everlasting East Lynne, dead as dead can be.

To moderns East Lynne must seem a fragile foundation for membership in such company, not to be compared with Tom Jones or Josephine Andrews. With Tom Jones and Josephine Andrews, however, we are not so far removed from the immortal dozen. Ant Cooper with his noble redmen and philosophical backwoodsman, did not any shreds of popularity still cover him?

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

(The Idaho Pioneer) Of the patient readers of the Times, I am sure you all know what this sentence is all about.

It is all he wants to know, he has come to the right place for information.

The earnest dear subscriber, speaking maddeningly in a state of partiality, is to determine once and for all whether the people are in favor of two or a half per cent, or three per cent, interest on the bonds.

The two parties are—one of distrust.

Hoover has several and Smith hasn't.

They don't give degrees in Tammany. They never did, nor do they now.

Hoover is to be supported by the luggage trust, which insists that the use of the suitcase should be discontinued through the other hand.

The return of the growler.

This writer is politically dry and personally wet, so no question.

Whatever that may be.

We don't trust Borah's taste, when it comes to Bourbon whisky.

Hoover is to be supported by Smith, want to do to the roller of the down-trodden farmer.

Hoover's emblem is a vacuum sweeper and Smith the tiger.

That's where Hoover

adopts a vacuum, although he expects to make the things useful to pick up the pieces after the election.

Smith has another advantage in that he has yet another emblem.

That is the little brown derby.

Hoover is placed in a difficult position to stand the brunt, if any, from blowing away.

There's a curious thing about the little brown derby.

Those who wear them don't shake hands with the hatless aristate.

The election, dear subscriber, determine also whether the South,

as solid as it cracked up to be,

has any place in the country.

Charles Jeffries

Seriously Burned

Charles Jeffries, 25, of Modern music, 1700 Main, suffered serious burns Saturday when a portion of spray paint exploded in his clothing because he was wearing a flannel shirt.

He was admitted to the hospital, where he is now under observation.

Charles Jeffries, employed by the local agent of novocaine, was painting out in front of the court house in a paint booth when he applied the novocaine. He had gone into the court house, which was being painted, when a spark from the paint gun, which is of a highly explosive character, to which paint is added, exploded in his clothing.

Passersby rushed to Mr. Jeffries aid and called for help. The fire department was summoned to the scene immediately and administered first aid. Mr. Brady, in charge of weed control here, and the injured man to the Falls City Hospital for medical attention.

In his letter here, Cleo Burkhart of Salt Lake City says: "On the boy is not found smoldering, it is feared that the burn may completely escape, as the skin is now necrotic and has come down from this lone anxiety and suspense following his appearance to us yesterday the 19th of June."

"But," he continues, "he is in good condition, having been given a blood transfusion by mounted officials, soldiers and Doctors, fearing that he had met his fate."

The gals were presented in Miss Stewart by Betty Cawdon garbed as a matronly boy. Refreshments were served by a number of little helpers.

Those present were Mrs. Emery Bonhoff, Miss Lois Teater, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Mildred Fuller, Miss Fern Wallis, Mrs. Wanda Madland, Mrs. H. H. Cawdon, Mrs. Elsie Cutler, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Madland, Mrs. Shirley, Miss Josephine Bush, Miss Harriet Madland, Mrs. C. W. Stewart, Miss Whiteman, Revercomb and Miss Beulah Brennen.

BIBLE VERSES AND PRAYER

AN EXHORTATION—O house of Jacob, come yet, and let us walk in the light of the Lord.—Isa. 2:5.

PRAYER—Lord, “let some beams of heavenly light make bright our earthly way.”

AN INSTITUTION OWNED BY ALL

Those interested in public ownership will find real joy in the realization that the Twin Falls County Fair belongs to all the people of Twin Falls county.

It is aided and assisted by a money grant of something like seven thousand dollars each year which Manager Frank J. Keenan and his board of directors spend for permanent improvements and upkeep and not for operation. Paid admissions and concessions, so he says, practically enable the directors to meet all current obligations.

Any thinking man or woman who visits and inspects the fair grounds with their many fine and substantial buildings erected to house the exhibits of field, garden, ranch and farm along with the fine arts and manufactures and reflects on the fact that the present Twin Falls tract was up to 1904, a desert of sage brush, where the jack rabbit and other animals roamed at will, must be impressed and amazed at what has been accomplished.

And the Twin Falls County Fair, which opens today for the thirteenth time, stands as a monument to the progress and prosperity of the Twin Falls tract. It is perhaps the best expression of the achievements of men and women who have wrought out of the wilderness a bit of God's paradise; it reflects the honesty of purpose, the integrity, the self-sacrifice of those who were not afraid of the unknown and not unwilling to undertake hard work, inspired by a feeling of confidence in the future. It was the work of those people of vision that has made possible the triumph of today. A display such as that which will be seen this week at Filer, ought to bring to the heart of every resident of the tract a feeling of pride and thankfulness that they are privileged to be part and parcel of this splendid community. And the least thing the public can do in the way of cooperation is to attend the fair as often as possible, thereby giving tangible evidence of the fact that there is a deep sense of appreciation in all hearts for the heroic work of those who have wrought so faithfully and well.

The Twin Falls County Fair this year, as in years past, will provide a liberal education for all who desire to know and learn. The exhibits of live stock, of the products of farm and ranch and garden, of poultry and rabbits, the liberal arts, the work of clever women, of automobiles—all these will tell the story in an emphatic and impressive manner and then will of course be the usual entertainment features that go with every fair, the program at Filer this week to be unusually interesting and worth while.

We can well afford to make this a real FAIR WEEK.

THE WAY TO PROMOTE

The other day a pair of young men from Oregon entered the office of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce to seek general information as to the possibilities of this big district. They were especially interested in the subject of agriculture but also desired to have other related information.

As to the young men themselves, they are splendidly equipped by technical education, experience and practical knowledge to make their own deductions about any agricultural country's general capacities. They were perfect strangers to Twin Falls, except for their own observations over a period of a few hours, and had never before seen the secretary.

One of the strangers asked if it would be wise for him to try to lease a range here and farm it for a year before planning to buy for himself. The secretary suggested that the wiser course for the strangers to follow would be to work for some experienced farmer before farming for himself, or at least to spend plenty of time acquainting himself with as many as possible of the cardinal facts about irrigated farming before striking out here for himself.

The question of the population of Twin Falls was raised by one of the strangers who asked if Twin Falls does not have 12,000 people. The secretary replied in the negative and said that the best information available indicates that the city has about 10,400 population.

Those two young men, both of whom have spent much time in California and are well acquainted with the west and the pride of westerners in their country, were delighted over the conservatism of the secretary. They appreciated the honest, straightforward information they received, as well as the manner in which it was given.

The above incident furnishes an excellent example of what the Times considers to be the right kind of community promotion. All cities do not confine themselves to conservatism in their contacts with strangers seeking information, but Twin Falls has so many unquestioned advantages that it would not only be dishonest to represent the possibilities here but also very foolish.

The plain facts about the Twin Falls country are good enough to use to promote the community.

Then there was the delegate who came home and told his wife he looked like that because he slipped on a wet bank.—The Hailey Evening Gazette.

Daily Poem

FOREVER AND A DAY.

I little know or care
If the blackbird on the bough
Will sing to me again,
Or if the birdsong sounds now,
For she is gone away
And when she went she took
The springtime in her look,
The summer in her cheek,
The laughter from the brook,
The blue from out of May
And what she calls a week
Is forever and a day!

(Warreter Gazette)
A London publisher, tired with the laudable ambition to know who is writing what, has issued a small pamphlet containing information all over the world tabulating the answers, he finds that Dickens leads with Scott, Stevenson, Dunne, Thackeray, Eliot, Fine, Kipling, Austin, George, Barnes, Mrs. Wood, and Charles Reade ranking in that order.

There is nothing sensational in this; but there is bound to be some difference of opinion in the case of Mrs. Wood and a shaking of heads.

In America there is still the omission of Nathaniel Hawthorne. That Dick and Scott, Stevenson, Thackeray,

Dunne, Austin, Charlotte

Bronte, Charles Headle and even

Charles Kingsley should maintain a measure of popularity can, surely be granted. But as to Mrs. Wood?

Why, she's the author of "East

Lynne to be sure; that hardly personalizes on stage and center table. All in all, there is no room for Mrs. Wood.

Every one of them, and the everlasting East Lynne, dead as dead can be.
